MILITIA INVITED

To be Escorts in the Monster Hibernian Parade

Chief Marshal H. O'Sullivan Invites Militia Boys to Participate—Local Companies Preparing for Their Annual Camp Duty

That Chief Marshal Humphrey O'Sullivan means to make the monster Hibernian parade of August 24 a memorable event is evidenced by the fact that he has extended an invitation to all of the local militia companies to act as escort for the Hibernians in the big parade. As the militiamen know what an invitation from Mr. O'Sullivan means there is little doubt as to the acceptance of the invitation.

Company M. It would appear will be unable to attend as the 21st Regiment of which it is a part has been ordered to Pine Plains from August 23 the day preceding the local parade, until August 30 for maneuvers such as the Sixth regiment went through at the same place two years ago.

The local members of the Sixth regiment are enthusiastic over the fact that they are to go into regimental camp at South Framingham from July 23 to 30. South Framingham is a welcome name after the strenuous times at Pine Plains. Preparations are under way at the armory at present for the annual tour of duty. The local companies of the Sixth regiment have taken no action on Mr. O'Sullivan's invitation as yet owing to the near approach of the camp season.

REVOLVERS USED

Attack Made on Everett Police Officer

EVERETT, June 27.—An attack in which several revolver shots were fired, was made on Patrolman John Fleming early today by three men who had been drinking heavily and were attempting to disturb the peace. Two of the men, Italians, giving their names as Lodoalfo and Savociano Bilisio, were captured after a chase, while the third is being hunted on the marshes near Chelsea where the trio fled.

On attempting to arrest one of them after he had warned them to stop their noise-making, Officer Fleming was set upon by the three and beaten down. The men then ran, firing at the policeman as they did so. Other patrolmen heard the shots and soon a squad was in pursuit. Two of the men were captured on the marsh, their escape being cut off by the Mystic river. As they had thrown their revolvers away, both offered resistance before they were overpowered. One of the revolvers, a .32 caliber, was shot, was later found by the police.

LOSS IS $125,000

Steamer Burned on the Hudson

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 26.—Late yesterday the steamer Poughkeepsie, of the Central Hudson steamboat company, and the company's storehouse at Highland, opposite this city, were destroyed by fire. The power boat Cardinal, the launch used by Coach Ned Ten Eyck of the Wisconsin university navy, was much damaged. The total loss was about $125,000.

The fire started under the engine room of the steamer and was discovered by the crew just after the steamer landed at Highlands. There were but 10 passengers on her and they were quickly gotten ashore.

The crew fought the flames with fire hose, but the fire made such rapid headway that the steamer was enveloped and flames. A tugboat responded to the whistles of distress and towed the steamer into midstream. At this time she was afire from stem to stern. She drifted up the river about a mile, after which she was beached by the tug, a total loss.

The big storehouse on the wharf caught fire from the burning steamer before she was towed away and the buildings were soon in flames. On the north side of the wharf was the Cardinal. Although this boat was badly damaged it will not be a total loss.

IN POLICE COURT

Larceny and Other Cases Tried Today

Charles J. Hebert, a young man, was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with breaking and entering the store of Mizel Jodoin in Aiken street in the night time and the larceny of $23.

Hebert seemed to consider the matter as a joke and shouted: "It was $23.38."

Judge Hadley informed the young man the complaint was a rather serious one and that it was no laughing matter. Hebert then entered a plea of guilty and probable cause being found he was held under $500 bonds for his appearance before the superior court.

Jodoin's store was broken into about three weeks ago, entrance into the store having been made by forcing a rear door. The sudden disappearance of Hebert immediately after the break was made caused suspicion to rest upon him. It is said that he has been in New York city, on his return from a few days' trip. He was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Dolphus Groux.

Post Nuptial Battle

John Ciesla was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on his wife, Dora. Through his counsel, Haven G. Hill, he entered pleas of not guilty. During his examination he admitted that he had been drinking and also slapped his wife's face.

Patrolman John J. Sullivan, who arrested Ciesla in the vicinity of Lakeview avenue last night, said that the complaint came running through the street with her hair disheveled and said that her husband had beaten her and was at that time drunk in the house. Witness said that he called at the house and finding that the husband was drunk placed him under arrest.

Mrs. Ciesla, the complainant, said that she and her husband had been to a wedding. The girl married was a friend of the witness and she had acted as bridesmaid. During the course of the evening, considerable beer was drunk by the members of the party but she said that she took none. When she arrived home her husband was very much under the influence of the liquor and he struck her five or six times. She said that he refused to allow her to leave the house and she had to jump through the window.

Ciesla said he had been drinking and that he had slapped his wife's face, but that he did not abuse her in the manner which she had testified.

The defendant was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $15 and furnish bonds in the sum of $100 to keep the peace for six months. The case of drunkenness was dismissed.

Very Serious Charge.—Louis Oriekos, aged 20 years, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolmen Walsh and McCloskey and Special Officer John Regis on a warrant charging him with felonious assault on a young woman employed at the Merrimack mills.

Oriekos, through his counsel, James E. O'Donnell, entered a plea of not guilty and the case was continued till Wednesday.

Placed on Probation.—James E. Butler, charged with drunkenness and non-support of his minor child, was placed in the custody of the probation officer on condition that he pay $3 per week towards the support of the child.

Drunken Offenders.—When Patrick Welch was arrested for drunkenness he gave a fictitious name to the keeper. In court this morning he said his name was Welch and denied that he had given the name of McLaughlin. The disposition of the case was postponed until the records could be perused. After some time it was found that Welch had been before the court in recent years under various names. He will spend the next three months in jail.

William Hannahan was also given a three months' sentence to the jail. The case of Viola Cronin was continued to July 6 for sentence.

BY MOLTEN METAL

Score of Men Scalded and Property Burned

CHICAGO, June 27.—Three men were probably fatally burned and a score of others were painfully injured as a result of being splashed with molten metal pouring from a blast furnace of the Gary, Ind. works of the Illinois Steel company last night. The property loss is estimated at $10,000.

The furnace had just been opened but a string of ladies was ready to receive the hot metal when the tramway gave way and there was no way to plug the furnace or to take care of the hot pig iron. It soon spread over an area of about 250 square yards, and a big section of the south end of the building was destroyed.

After the elevation Mr. Jas. E. Donnelly sang "Jesu Salvator Mundi." As the remains were borne from the church the quartet rendered another song. Mrs. John McKenna presided at the organ. The many beautiful floral tributes and the large congregation at the service in the church gave evidence of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The bearers were six sons of the deceased, John M. Dennis, J. Thomas H. Francis, J. Dr. Edward M. and Dr. Fred P. Murphy. The ushers at the house and church were Dr. Alfred Roche, J. Joseph O'Connor, Dr. Joseph Kearney and John Salmon. Burial was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery, the grave being lined with lilacs and ferns. As the casket was lowered to its final resting place the quartet sang "Nearer, My God to Thee." Rev. Fr. Keleher read the committal prayers at the grave. Mr. Michael T. Rafferty had charge of the funeral arrangements, under the direction of Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons.

FUNERALS.—The funeral of Ellen O'Connor took place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her parents, William and Mary O'Connor, 7 Conlons court, off Fayette street. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery, Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons had charge.

FUNERAL NOTICES.—The funeral of James Flaherty will take place Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock from his home, 156 Sixth street, and requiem mass will be sung at 9 o'clock at St. Michael's church.

ALLIEN.—Margaret Allen, infant daughter of Thomas and Bridget Allen, died this morning at the home of her parents, 2 rear of 151 Lakeview avenue, aged 1 year, 10 months and 2 days. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment in the Catholic cemetery, Funeral Director James W. McKenna in charge.

TALBOT.—Died at her home, in North Billerica, June 26, Mrs. Isabella Weir, widow of the late Governor Thomas Talbot, in her 73rd year. Funeral services at her home in North Billerica on Wednesday, June 29th at 3.30 p. m. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

FRANLEY.—The funeral of Mrs. Anne Franley will take place Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock from her home, 49 Madison street, Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock. Requiem mass will be sung at St. Peter's church at 9 o'clock. Please omit flowers. John J. O'Connor in charge.

PERSONALS.—Mr. and Mrs. John Bernier of Gorham street have gone to their cottage at Salisbury beach for the summer. Mr. Edward Bernier, their son, of Boston, formerly of Lowell, will spend the next two weeks with them.

Mr. Daniel J. O'Connor, Associated Press operator at the Sun office, started Saturday on a vacation of two weeks to be spent with relatives near Toronto. He will make a trip up the river from Montreal to the Thousand Islands, where he will visit the chief points of interest. Mr. O'Connor has made many friends during his stay in Lowell. His place at the Sun office will be temporarily filled by Mr. Maurice J. Murphy of Newport, R. I.

Miss Carolyn Putnam Webber will give her last gas cooking demonstration of the season at Town hall, North Chelmsford, on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. These lectures, given in the different sections of the city the past spring under the careful supervision of Mr. George Nash of Lowell Gas Light company, have given great satisfaction if the attendance has significance. Miss Webber has a nice and painstaking method. Lowell people who have missed attending in past will have one more opportunity and can also enjoy the pleasant ride to our hospitable nearby suburb in the cool of evening. The menu:

Baked Bluefish, Bressin Style
Panned Roll
Clover Chicks
Scalloped Corn
Egg Timbale
Peach Meringue

The bearers were Messrs. John Spillane, Matthew A. Hill, Alec Campbell and Andrew Brown. Burial took place in the family lot in Westlawn cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. C. M. Standish. Undertaker William H. Saunders had charge of the funeral arrangements.

MURPHY.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Margaret Murphy took place this morning at 8 o'clock from her late home, 33 Tyler street, and was largely attended. The cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church where at 9 o'clock a solemn mass of requiem was sung by Rev. D. J. Keleher, celebrant, Rev. W. George Mullin, deacon, and Rev. John O'Brien, sub-deacon. The choir sang the Gregorian mass. At the offertory "Domine Jesu Christe" was sung by

CITY HALL NEWS

July 4 Committee Will Meet Tonight

BALLOON ASCENSION FEATURE OF CELEBRATION

Board of Health Wants Paved Streets Watered in Hot Weather—School Teachers Will be Paid Wednesday—Other Live Items From City Hall

The special committee on Huntingdon hall will meet at 7.30 this evening and the special committee on July 4 at 8 o'clock. The time to arrange for the celebration of this greatest day on the map is somewhat limited and the committee will have to get down to business in a hurry.

So far as plans for the celebration are concerned there is nothing in the concrete and, as a matter of fact, little in the abstract. It is possible that the committee will vote to ask Mr. Charles Glidden to give a free balloon ascension for the celebration and if Mr. Glidden would condescend to supply the attraction free of charge it would undoubtedly be a very pleasing feature of the day's celebration. The appropriation for the celebration amounts to $1000 and the chances are that about $800 of that amount will be devoted to fireworks and about $125 for salutes. The band concerts will cost about $100 apiece. The money for the celebration will be spent under the direction of the mayor.

Paved Streets Watered.—The board of health will send a communication to Mayor Meehan asking him to have the paved streets watered frequently during the hot weather in the interest of public health and comfort.

The board of health has notified the landlords who have not complied with the requirements of notices sent out as a result of the reports of the tenement house inspectors to appear before the board at its next meeting. Three places where milk is being sold were reported to the board by its inspectors as not being in a satisfactory condition from a sanitary standpoint. They were given two weeks in which to make the necessary changes and if the changes are not made within that time the dealers will have to go out of business.

Pay of School Teachers.—The school teachers will receive their pay on Wednesday of this week. This is earlier than usual, of course, but owing to the fact that the schools have closed and the payrolls and money are all ready the auditor and city treasurer want to get it out of the way.

The Pump Question.—The city solicitor has opined that the water board could call for bids for the pump for the Centralville station before the money for the pump is available, providing there was no expense attached to the call. The pump matter is on the table in the board of aldermen. The water board has been informed of the city solicitor's opinion and the board seems to it inexpedient to call for the bids before the money is available. The opinion of the city solicitor has been asked by the committee on appropriations and the committee voted to recommend that the water board prepare plans and specifications and call for competitive bids. The following letter from the water board to the committee on appropriations is self explanatory:

June 22, 1910.
Mr. F. M. Dowling, Clerk of Committee, Lowell, Mass.
Dear Sir: Yours of the 8th stating that the joint committee on appropriations had voted "to recommend that the water board prepare plans and specifications for new pump and call for competitive bids, if same can be done without expense, the idea being to obtain in this way the exact cost of pump, so the city council can later, after it has been made, the necessary appropriation." is received by the water board and placed on file, and it was voted to notify the committee on appropriations that the water board deems it inexpedient to accept the recommendation of the committee.

Yours truly,
J. W. Crawford, Secretary.

Safe of Fireworks.—Young America will have to subside very materially this July 4th in order to live up to the law governing the use of fireworks, and the dealers will have to keep an eye windward. Section 1, chapter 565, of the laws of 1910 gives the state police control of the sale of articles for such celebrations. The state police appoints a local representative and Chief Hosmer has been appointed. The law became operative June 1. The law prohibits the sale of any kind of blank cartridges, toy pistols, toy guns, or toy cannon which will fire blank cartridges. The law also prohibits the sale of any kind of fireworks containing picric acid or peroxide, or any firecrackers more than two inches in length or three-eighths of an inch in thickness. This section, however, does not apply to illuminating fireworks set off between the hours of 7 p. m. and midnight except those containing picric acid or peroxide.

Is Not Superstitious.—"Beware of the bird that flies in your window!" This was a warning sent down from the spook hospital when trees were plants and men were sensible. That's a good many years ago, but in this very day there are many who believe that a bird flying in through the window is an evil omen. James Dow, inspector of buildings, doesn't believe in signs. There are a great many people who don't believe in signs. Fish warden and farmers will tell you that and in fact we have had personal experience. We have a sign in the editorial waiting room which requests the visitor to remain in that room until waited upon. About nine-tenths of our visitors don't believe in signs. But, to return to Mr. Dow, a pretty little canary flew into his office last Saturday and

Attack Made on Everett Police Officer

EVERETT, June 27.—An attack in which several revolver shots were fired, was made on Patrolman John Fleming early today by three men who had been drinking heavily and were attempting to disturb the peace. Two of the men, Italians, giving their names as Lodoalfo and Savociano Bilisio, were captured after a chase, while the third is being hunted on the marshes near Chelsea where the trio fled.

On attempting to arrest one of them after he had warned them to stop their noise-making, Officer Fleming was set upon by the three and beaten down. The men then ran, firing at the policeman as they did so. Other patrolmen heard the shots and soon a squad was in pursuit. Two of the men were captured on the marsh, their escape being cut off by the Mystic river. As they had thrown their revolvers away, both offered resistance before they were overpowered. One of the revolvers, a .32 caliber, was shot, was later found by the police.

Very Serious Charge.—Louis Oriekos, aged 20 years, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolmen Walsh and McCloskey and Special Officer John Regis on a warrant charging him with felonious assault on a young woman employed at the Merrimack mills.

Oriekos, through his counsel, James E. O'Donnell, entered a plea of not guilty and the case was continued till Wednesday.

Steamer Burned on the Hudson

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 26.—Late yesterday the steamer Poughkeepsie, of the Central Hudson steamboat company, and the company's storehouse at Highland, opposite this city, were destroyed by fire. The power boat Cardinal, the launch used by Coach Ned Ten Eyck of the Wisconsin university navy, was much damaged. The total loss was about $125,000.

The fire started under the engine room of the steamer and was discovered by the crew just after the steamer landed at Highlands. There were but

THE LYNN BANDIT

Tells How the Daring Robbery Was Planned

LYNN, June 27.—The principal scenes in the tragedy of Saturday, when Thomas A. Landregan, shoe manufacturer, and Patrolman James H. Carroll were murdered by three desperadoes, were yesterday visited by thousands of people.

Besides Lynn residents, visitors from neighboring places gathered in large numbers at the place on Oxford and Willow streets where Landregan and Carroll were shot down and the robbers started on their run with the bag containing the $500 the murdered men were carrying to the shoe factory to pay off the help.

The next place of great interest was the woods and brush field near Pine Grove cemetery and the corner of Washington and Boston streets. At the latter place the man, giving the name of Andy Epton, was shot by Patrolman Thompson.

In the woods groups of men, women and children walked around pointing out places where the robbers were brought to bay and where the cordons of police closed in on them. The spot of the latter suddenly dropped. The officer, the arrested man says, did not know he had killed Joe.

Dr. Needlebaum of Boston came to Lynn yesterday and had a talk with Iwanowski. He thought the young man came from the same place as he did in Austria, but decided this was not the case.

Resemblance to Lett

Of the scores who viewed the body of the dead bandit yesterday one man expressed an opinion that there was a great similarity between the dead man and one of the associates of Gutman, the bandit who was shot and killed in the Forest Hills cemetery in July two years ago.

This visitor, who was from Boston, had an opportunity at the time of the Jamaica Plain excitement to examine many of the alleged companions of Gutman, and on one occasion he visited the house on Oak Grove terrace, Roxbury, where Gutman lived up to the day of the shooting up of the McManus & Winteren barroom, which was the first act in the Jamaica Plain tragedy.

On the night when he visited the Oak Grove terrace boarding house, he saw three of the dwellers and talked to one of them, the others pleading that they did not understand English, although they were interested listeners of the conversation that ensued.

During the questioning a strongly built, light complexioned man came from one of the rooms and in a foreign language asked some questions, and according to the man who viewed the body yesterday, the resemblance of the dead bandit to that Lett is very pronounced, even to the brown curly hair. The only discrepancy in the descripwhere the dead bandit was found and the place where Iwanowski, the man locked up, made his last stand and surrendered, attracted many visitors.

Epton, the wounded bandit, was questioned and for more than an hour officers and interpreters stood at his bedside and endeavored to get his story. He was born in the province of Galicia, Austria, he said, and came to this country seven months ago in company with Wasili Iwanowski, the bandit arrested. He said he first knew "Joe," the dead man, in New York. What "Joe's" full name was he did not know, he said, and neither did he know the name of the man at police headquarters. He met the latter on the steamer coming across, he said.

Epton, gasping at times and evidently in great pain from his wounds, said tion of the bandit and the unknown Lett is that the bandit has a short, stubby mustache of a sandy color. That, however, might have grown since.

While the Boston visitor would not positively identify the bandit as one of the men he saw, he was satisfied that the resemblance was so pronounced that it was worth investigating, which the police agreed they would do.

He further supplied the police with names given to him as those of the three men he talked to as well as information regarding other inmates of the house on Oak Grove terrace. The name of the man whom he believed that the dead man resembled is said to be Vobser or Vullberg.

Today the police through an interpreter will investigate Wasili Iwanowski, the bandit under arrest, as re-that before he came to this country he was a smuggler, carrying articles across the Austrian-Russian frontier. Four years ago his father was killed by a Russian officer, Galicia, where he says he was born, is the northernmost province of Austria and on the Russian frontier.

He saved up enough money to pay a passage to this country and has always been in New York since his arrival until last week, when he came to Boston with the other two men. He has a mother, two sisters and two brothers in Austria, he says.

So far as details connected with the robbery and murder the police were unable to learn anything from the wounded man. He repeatedly said he knew nothing about the others and took but little interest when told one was dead and the other arrested, except to say that he supposed he would be killed also.

Watched for Two Weeks

Again was Iwanowski, the bandit under arrest, interviewed by Chief Burkes and Deputy Bartlett. He said he knew the others only by the names of Andy and Joe and displayed absolutely no interest when told that one was dead and the other dying.

He said that for at least two weeks the movements of Mr. Landregan in securing the money for the weekly payroll had been watched and that the whole affair was planned, and that the shooting, he says, and in this he is corroborated by eye-witnesses of the affair.

He is certain an officer killed his companion "Joe," for he says he saw the officer shoot at "Joe" and the band gards the information, and it is believed that he may be induced to talk. Iwanowski was unknown to the visitor.

AMES ATTACKS LODGE

HON. BUTLER AMES, M. C.

Makes Formal Announcement of Candidacy for the Senate

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Representative Butler Ames yesterday formally announced his candidacy for the United States senate, to succeed Senator Lodge. Mr. Ames' statement follows:

"Mr. Ames now makes the official announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate, having tried in vain to induce someone else to lead the fight against Boss Lodge and his political machine."

"This machine, backed by all the large corporations and by all the state and federal patronage at his command, has served for many years as a ready and efficient tool to crush all political ambitions, endeavors or opinions not sanctioned by Mr. Lodge."

"His orders have gone out to crush not only to suit his own political ends, but also to advance the selfish financial schemes of the large railroads, banking and manufacturing interests he serves in the halls of congress as well as in the Massachusetts legislature."

"His machine, controlling for so many years the political destinies in the state, has been connected with, has been a party to and has grown up with the lobby that plies to trade at the state house."

Lobby Leader Lodge's Friend
"The well recognized leader of the lobby has been a member of the state central committee for more than a decade. In that committee he has been a leader and his word was law, for was and is he not one of Mr. Lodge's closest political friends and advisers?"

"This man was driven from the republican state central committee last fall by outraged public sentiment, and though still the head of the lobby, has been kept away from the state house this year for appearance's sake, and has done his work through lieutenants. His attendance at the state house during past years was so regular that his absence this year has been the cause of almost daily comment."

"It is of interest to know that in the midst of the successful campaign waged in Haverhill last fall against the stamensing of the state political machine and the lobby, Mr. Lodge was entertained at this man's home in that city."

"That a member of the state central republican committee, recognized as one of the mouthpieces of Mr. Lodge and having at his back the party machine, made his livelihood by lobbying in the Massachusetts legislature for the large corporations, and at the same time carrying out the mandates of the machine, is a commentary on the machine and the ideals in politics of Mr. Lodge."

Cites Case of Two Colliers
"For some unfortunate born to poverty and with pride of race or tradition of family and who, without education in right or wrong, takes or tries to take for his own purposes that which does not belong to him, for such a person we can have only sympathy and sorrow."

"But one, born to wealth and family pride, surrounded by standards of education and high ideals, who takes or tries to take for a political ally or friend that which belongs to his country, deserves no honor or consideration from the people he has tried to dispossess."

Why Lodge Has Failed
"While he is conscious of his own shortcomings, no one recognizes more quickly than does Mr. Ames, the talents possessed by Mr. Lodge—a scholar, a historian, an author of wide and varied experience and whose very length of service ought, under ordinary circumstances, to be a bar to his removal."

"With all his gifts and opportunities he has made such use of them that his continuance in public life depends, not upon his service to the people of his state, but to a political machine. This machine is used as a club for the individual of independent thought and action, while it serves as a willing tool to those of wealth, of influence and of power, seeking undue favors."

"Had he made his successes depend upon principle and not on politics, his position today would be unassailable."

Lodge's Hope in Roosevelt
"The political boss and manipulator of the state, unwilling to follow the policy of 'live and let live,' he has used his great power to assassinate those who dared differ in opinion or principle. It is reported that in his present extremity, fearing to seek reelection on his long public record in congress and in the state, his one hope is that Mr. Roosevelt may create new friends for his behalf by speaking for him as an old friend."

"It is hard to believe that the ex-president will lend himself to the political support of one, even though a friend, who has consistently violated in this state all the teachings of which he is the great exponent."

"The public state of mind in the state today is the result, not of what has been said against Mr. Lodge, for no one has dared to attack him, but of each individual's own interpretation of his acts and utterances and of the conduct of the machine of which he is the moving force."

The Issue of the Campaign
"The people of the state will realize in such a case that the ex-president did not have the intimate knowledge acquired through successful experience and possessed by each citizen of Massachusetts; and so would appreciate that his support of Mr. Lodge was out of keeping with the facts."

"Massachusetts will be fully able to judge and decide for herself from an experience of some 20 years."

"The Lodge machine and the lobby worked in the senate again this year to successfully defeat the direct primary bill, which had passed the house."

"To the support or defeat of this bill I did not lift so much as a finger, though its passage would have been to my political ruin."

"With direct primaries it is universally admitted that Mr. Lodge would have no possible chance of re-election."

"The issue of the coming campaign will be Lodgeism and political misrule, with the open connivance of the machine lobby with large financial interests to control elections and legislative action."

Will Try to Pledge Candidates
"It is desirable to call the attention of the voters of Massachusetts to the fact that by compelling every candidate for the coming legislature to declare himself, unequivocally, for Mr. Ames or for Mr. Lodge, an opportunity will thereby be given for an expression by the people of their desire at the polls."

"The Lodge machine will make every effort to prevent the pledging of candidates in the behalf that unpledged candidates can be controlled by the machine or by money or by corporation influence. To prevent this Mr. Ames will use every endeavor to compel candidates in every district to pledge themselves on this issue, and to the end asks the co-operation of every voter who, believing in fair play, political freedom and independent thought, desires an end of the present political misrule with its machine-lobby control."

"The defeat of Mr. Lodge and the termination of this machine will tend more than anything else to party success, not only in the state but in the nation. It will restore confidence in republican management by divorcing the legislature lobby from the political machine, and by defeating a public official who has so long served the private interests rather than the public good."

HIP INJURED

The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment."

PLAYED BALL ON SUNDAY
John L. Grady, aged 16 years, was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Stephen Chastles for playing baseball on the Lord's Day. He will be brought before Judge Hubley on the juvenile section of the police court Friday morning."

Revere Boys Jumped Off a Car

REVERE, June 27.—Walter Stevens, aged 12, son of Anthony Stevens, janitor of the Revere town hall, and Anthony Stevens, a lad about the same age, son of John Curtis, 225 Park avenue, were probably fatally injured about 5:45 yesterday afternoon by jumping off an electric car which was traveling at fast speed on Beach street, near Webster street.

The boys had been to the beach together and were on their way to their homes in the central part of the town. They were seen near Grand Army hall by Dr. Joseph E. Lamb, agent of the board of health, jumping on the rear of an electric car to ride a short distance while the conductor was engaged at the other end of the car. Dr. Lamb recognized the Stevens boy and warned him to stop. The boys then walked toward Broadway till they were out of sight, when they apparently jumped on the rear of another car. A short distance west of the R. & M. R. R. bridge some one shouted at the boys and they jumped from the moving car. Both were thrown heavily on the stone pavement. The right side of the Stevens boy's head was crushed and his right shoulder was broken. Young Curtis struck on his forehead, fracturing his skull. Both were unconscious when picked up. Walter Kirkland took the boys in his automobile to the office of Dr. J. S. Morris, who ordered them removed to the Frost hospital, Chelsea.

An operation was performed on Anthony Curtis, but the hospital authorities give slight encouragement that either boy will live.

MATHEWS ELECT

NEW OFFICERS FOR NEXT SIX MONTHS

The semi-annual election of officers of the Mathew Temperance Institute was held yesterday morning at the institute building in Dutton street. Owing to the fact that every member was interested in the election there was a large attendance.

The following were the officers chosen to occupy the chairs during the ensuing six months: President, James J. Gallagher; vice-president, Michael J. Boyle; spiritual director, Rev. Dr. Keeler; recording secretary, George F. Brigan; financial secretary, James F. Bourke; treasurer, Peter F. Brady; marshal, Robert E. Spencer; board of trustees, Patrick McCann, John Ralls, John J. Guthrie; board of examiners, Frank Kelley, Henry Danglefield, William Conley; literary committee, James J. Riley, John McDermott, Edward Harris.

The society also appointed a committee to make arrangements for the celebration of Fr. Mathew's birthday anniversary on Monday, October 10.

They arranged for a special meeting of the society to be held on Sunday morning, July 17, to make arrangements to take part in the national convention of the C. T. A. U. of America in Boston, the week of August 7.

Y.M.C.I. OFFICERS

CHOSEN FOR THE ENSUING SIX MONTHS

The semi-annual election of officers took place yesterday at the regular meeting of the Young Men's Catholic Institute. The meeting was presided over by President King and the following were the officers elected: President, John J. Sullivan; vice president, Patrick Farrell; treasurer, Rev. John P. O'Brien, O. M. I.; financial secretary, Michael O'Keefe; recording secretary, George F. O'Meara; board of trustees, William J. King and John Martin; marshal, John Tansy.

The installation of the newly elected officers will take place next Sunday morning at the regular meeting and President King, appointed James J. Kelly as a committee on arrangements.

A committee of five was appointed to have charge of arrangements for an outing to be held in August. Several members made suggestions for the good and welfare and several recommendations from the board of trustees were accepted and changes in the constitution of the organization were made.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 118 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that women may expect nature to bring them the Change of Life. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued its use. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—Mrs. SARAH LOUISIANA, 414 S. Livingston St., Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made exclusively from roots and herbs.

DIAMOND NOTES
At Lynn today.
Four home games this week.

Last week was certainly a bad one for Lowell.

We'll be in the first division yet. The Lowell team has too many good players to go bad all the time.

President John I. Taylor and Manager John H. O'Brien of the Fall River baseball club have given Jimmy Canavan, scout for the Detroit Tigers, an option on pitcher Hugh Bennett, good until July 11 for $2500 cash. Canavan is said to have been very highly impressed with the young fellow's ability, though it is his first year as a professional.

He went to Fall River with a remarkable record for victories and losses as a semi-professional in New York state the past two years, and from the way he has been going in Fall River he bids fair to duplicate the performance. It is possible that the deal will not be closed until Manager Jennings of the Tigers gets a chance to see the other Hugh in action.

Pugaley, the Lowell pitcher slated to report here any time now, pitched for the Somersworth, N. H. team against the Brockton team, and won, 2 to 0. Pugaley allowed five hits.

Lowell has had hard luck in its catching department. With Huston in the game, the team would have several games ahead of its present record.

THE JEFFRIES SMILE AND THE ONE HE SAYS WON'T COME OFF

JAMES J. JEFFRIES

RENO, Nev., June 27.—If opinions would win a prize fight the coming contest between Jeffries and Johnson is now over, with Jeffries the winner. Many experts on the ground have expressed their opinion that big Jim is a physical marvel and fit to fight the battle of his career. Mike Murphy, trainer of University of Pennsylvania, one of the best judges of athletes in the world, who recently arrived here, says he is amazed at the excellence of Jeff's condition and declares that the big fellow is the finest specimen of a man that he ever witnessed. Billy Muldoon, the former world's champion wrestler and also a splendid judge of an athlete's condition, has expressed himself as amazed at the appearance of the big fellow. "I have never seen him look better in my life," said he. This, coming from Billy Muldoon, should carry some weight with the men who have not been able to bring themselves to believe that Jeffries is ready to fight. The change in altitude seemed a tonic to the "hope of the white race." Not only is he lightning fast in his training stunts but he goes at his work as if he enjoyed it, playing all sorts of tricks upon his attendants and romping like an overgrown boy.

lessed by Lowell, is not making good. Lack of control is his failing.

Pocahontas John Smith when he resigned the managerial berth at Lowell was paid a full season's salary. Jimmy Gray told John he would remain the entire season if he desired, but the spoken veteran sadly said, "It's no use. I cannot deliver the goods." Gray paid out $470 for players from California during the spring workout and when they failed to make good, it broke Smith's heart. Smith also worried when the team did not win, and Gray said that John took it so to heart that he was ashamed to go out upon the coaching lines. The owner of the Lowell club and old Pocahontas parted firm friends and one of the best managers and players that ever donned a uniform has likely passed from the New England league forever. Smith was too good a fellow to manage a lot of pampered and spoiled ball tossers, and he realized it after taking another try at the helm. All Lowell fans should think well of John Smith who was always on the level and who worked hard to deliver to them the best team in the circuit.—Lynn News.

Tom McCoy says that Pitcher Osborne looks like the Giant in that old time comic opera "Jack in the Beanstalk."

Fred Tenney pulled off a rare stunt when he felled a bunt to third and nipped Big Maiz. If Swormstedt, and dumped down the first base line when Fred was moving towards third, the big leaguer would have looked like a sucker.—Lynn News.

Billy Hamilton squatted in the shade of the bench yesterday as Uncle Jake Morse gave him a vacation because of his run-in Wednesday with Connolly in this city.

A correspondent for Sporting Life takes exception to the assertion that Harry Wornwood's performance at Worcester, June 8, when he pitched 11 innings against the Burket men and did not allow them a hit or run, is singular. The correspondent says that in a New York state league game played at Utica, Sept. 12, 1907, J. Leo Fairbanks of Utica, pitching for Albany, shut out Utica for 12 innings without a hit or run. The game went 16 innings, Albany winning by the score of 4 to 6. Fairbanks allowed a hit in the 16th. He struck out 15 men and issued only two passes. He made no wild pitch and hit no batsman. Albany played without an error, and earned all of its runs. The only Utica man left on base was Frank Carroll, when he knocked out his second hit in the 13th inning. After getting his hit in the 13th inning, Carroll was out in attempting to steal

Mohairs Defeated at Lawrence Saturday

The Mohairs went to Lawrence Saturday afternoon and were severely trounced by the team representing that city, the score being 134 to 66.

Lawrence went to bat first and when the first wicket fell 32 runs had been scored. First of the down river team was the star player of the game, scoring 44 runs before he was retired. The only man on the Lowell team who could seem to play was Barrett, who made 20 runs before he was bowled out. None of the other members of the Mohair eleven went into the double numbers.

THE PACIFIC MILLS

Reported to Have Bought the Hamilton Print Works

It is reported that the Hamilton Mfg. Co. of this city has sold its print works to the Pacific Mills of Lawrence and that about all of the overhauls and some of the help in the print works were laid off indefinitely at noon today. The report has it that the Pacific Mills will take possession in a few weeks or as soon as the odds and ends have been picked up and orders finished that are underway.

Asked if there was any foundation in fact for the report that the print works had been sold, Agent Childs of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. referred the reporter to The Sun in the Boston office and at the Boston office, the reporter was informed that Treasurer Shappa was "out of town for the day" and there was no one there who had heard anything about the purchase.

The print works, of course, is but a small part of the plant of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. In a recent report appearing in a trade paper the worth of the Hamilton print works was estimated at $500,000.

The Hamilton Mfg. Co. was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts in 1835 and has been under the same management for twenty-three years. In that time there has been paid out of earnings about $1,500,000 for renewals, and close to $2,000,000 for repairs. The average profit per year has been $120,000 or over 9 per cent. on the capitalization, and the total amount of dividends paid was $891,000—making an average dividend per year in that time of about 5 per cent. The estimate for a going mill is usually figured at about $20 per spindle. The Hamilton Mfg. Co. has 115,000 spindles and if we figure the capitalization per spindle at only $10, the total value of the plant will be represented by $1,150,000 or about what it is now selling for on the market. The company, however, has a print works which must be worth $500,000, it is worth more, and it has a surplus of $757,000. This gives a total estimate of $2,437,000, or over $500,000 above its par value and more than double the amount for which it is now selling.

The company's property covers an acreage of 57 acres and a half acres of ground consisting of six mills, print works and storehouses for finished goods and its cotton storehouse which was the pioneer of its kind. The company manufactures flannels, prints, ticks, stripes, drills, shirtings and other goods. It consumes about 200,000 pounds of cotton per week and dyes and prints about 1,000,000 yards per week. Its product is sold through Wellington, Sears & Co.

ANOTHER TONG WAR

Two Chinamen Fatally Wounded and One Painfully Injured

NEW YORK, June 28.—The tong war that sleeps but never dies, despite threats, promises and solemn treaties, broke out again yesterday afternoon within the little triangle of narrow streets just off the Bowery known as Chinatown.

In 50 seconds three Chinamen were shot, two of them fatally, a third was painfully wounded and more than 40 shots from heavy-calibered revolvers splattered against the bricks of pavements. In three minutes seven Chinamen were arrested.

It was all over nearly as quickly as it had begun and the remainder of the afternoon the streets were as quiet as they had been an instant before battle and murder broke the stillness.

It had happened that the 2000th anniversary of the founding of the society of the Four Brothers fell on this day of rest, and in its honor the members were to give a banquet in Pell street at 5 o'clock. A monster scarlet flag scoloped in green floated from the banquet hall, and guests began to arrive early from all parts of the city and even from neighboring towns.

Sunday is market day for Chinatown. Then the streets are thickest with signposts, then chop-suey restaurants thrive best and in remote back rooms the dice rattle faster and the dominoes click sharper.

It was in the midst of this restless, shuffling throng, sown thick with policemen, that the shooting began at just 4 o'clock. There is no certainty of the precise provocation, but it is generally understood in Chinatown that the Ong Leong tong did not relish the fact that Chu Hen, recently acquitted of the murder of Ong Leong long man, was to be the guest of honor.

The Hip Sing tong, the Ong Leong tong and the Four Brothers occupy each their own street, and no prudent member of one society trespasses on the territory of another. Pickpockets had been posted today at the ends of Pell street by the Four Brothers, and scouts of the Ong Leong tong patrolled the adjacent boundary of Mott street.

There were more policemen on the beat than usual, both because this was Sunday and because of the banquet.

Somebody stepped over the line. Somebody began to shoot.

It is doubtful if any white man will ever know who trespassed and who punished, because the rain of bullets came too fast from too many directions at once for the eye to catch the first flash.

And no Chinaman will ever tell.

Sen Chin, the inevitable innocent bystander, was the first to fall, shot through the abdomen. He will die.

Chu Foo was shot behind the ear and in the back. He died last night. Chu Fan was shot through the left thigh. His injuries are not serious.

Thus far it has been impossible to learn to which tong the individual wounded belong. All were taken to a hospital.

The police made a scramble for everybody that ran, but there were more honest fugitives than combatants, and doorways are thicker in Chinatown than burrows in a rabbit warren. Seven were caught, some of whom the police say they saw shooting and on others revolvers were found.

The reserves were called out, a cordon was drawn tight about the entire quarter, all visitors were barred, and no curiosity wagons were allowed last night. Then the interrupted banquet of the Four Brothers, with Chu Hen as the guest of honor, went on.

RESISTED ARREST

Man Killed Two Officers and Wounded Three Others

OCEOLA, Ga., June 27.—Barricaded in his home near here, W. H. Bostwick who last night killed two officers and seriously wounded three others was still successfully resisting the police and sheriff's posse at an early hour today. The deputies were inclined to await the arrival of the militia called out shortly before midnight by Governor Brown.

With Bostwick in the house were six of his children, all small and some of them girls.

Four officers were sent last night to arrest Bostwick and he opened fire on them as soon as they neared the house. Steve Davis, the Ocala chief of police, and Deputy Sheriff Sheffield were instantly killed; Sheriff J. P. McIntosh was fatally wounded and Deputy T. C. Bass was shot in the abdomen and seriously hurt. Threats were made by the posse to burn Bostwick out of his house but when it was seen that nothing could be accomplished in that way, the deputies began firing. It is not known whether any of the bullets found a human mark. It is known that one of the little girls in the house is ill. It is stated that several months ago Bostwick shot his brother-in-law, C. G. Fields and was arrested, charged with assault with intent to murder. He was put under a peace bond but his bondsman recently told the sheriff that he wanted to be relieved from responsibility. On Friday a deputy went to Bostwick's house to arrest him but Bostwick told him he would never submit to arrest; that he would die first.

A large number of citizens left Ocala for the scene of the shooting last night well armed.

ANNUAL OUTING

Of the Five Scandinavian Societies

Midsummer's Day, the summer festival of the Scandinavians, was observed Saturday at Nabnasset grove in West Chelmsford by the five Scandinavian societies in this city. The day was ideal for the festivities, and about 1000 Swedes, Norwegians and Danes made their way to the pleasure grounds, where a delightful program of games and sports of the mother country was carried out.

During the forenoon several hundred made their way to the picnic grounds, but the majority of the people did not arrive until during the early part of the afternoon. Many of those in attendance wore the costumes of the Scandinavian countries, while others wore quaint and pretty head dresses.

In front of the pavilion was erected a mannikin making or midsummer pole. This was twined with laurel and other greenery and at the top were the flags of America, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

About 2.30 o'clock Mr. Torsten Reenstierna welcomed the guests. His address was in English and during the course of his remarks he said he hoped that the bond of friendship of the three races would continue for years to come. At the conclusion of his speech he was greeted with cheers, after which "America" was sung.

A band perched on the top of the roof of the pavilion then hit up an old country polka and the men and women were in costume about the pole. Anna Bernston appeared in the costume of Boshulan, a town in southern Sweden. Anna Svensson, in the costume of a Jemtland maiden. Jennie L. Ingstead and Mabel Erlison were in Norwegian national costume, with bodices of bright red and with skirts of darker hue. Julia Johnson represented Wingokor.

Hilda Persson represented Skane, a portion of South Sweden, and Anna Peterson was in the national costume of Norway, as were Jennie and Laura Christensen. Eleda Ehnabom wore the costume of Dalarne. Frederika Ehnabom was in the dress of Wingokor, and Ida Alexander wore the costume of Bohuslan. Bena Svensson wore the prettiest costume of Smaland, and Dorothy Kristofferson was in the dress of a Norwegian peasant maid from Tyrsel. Helga Westgaard wore the dress of a Hiedmarken, a province in Norway. Caroline Olsen and Berghild Olsen wore the Norwegian national costume.

Then came the sports. The first contest was a tug-of-war between the single and married men which was won by the former. The single men's team was made up as follows:

Elison, John Nelson, Peterson, M. Anderson and Swanson. The losing team was: Nyström, Wikander, Hanson, Swanson and Crabtree. The prize was $6, the captain of the winning team got the odd dollar.

The 100 yard dash for girls was captured by Fanny Anderson while Anna Svensson came in second.

There were but two teams which finished in the three-legged race. Bergman and M. Anderson won the first prize while Oscar Lindquist and Gustaf Bratt came in second.

In the egg race for young women there were 10 starters. Anna Johnson won first place and the second place was captured by Anna Svensson.

The sack race, 100 yards, was won by Wesley Laurin, with a man named Hush-second.

In the nail driving contest, Anna Svensson, who had previously captured two prizes, took the first prize, a ring, driving 21 nails in two minutes. Mrs. Lillian Petersson was second, driving 17 nails.

The shoe race was won by George Williams. Arthur Nilsson was second, and he captured a ball, glove and bat. The 10 yards dash for boys was won by William Berg, with George Palmgren, second. The 50 yards dash for girls under 10 years of age, was won by Ellen Petersson, Norma Reenstierna was second.

The final sport of the afternoon was a "doughnut" race. The participants in the race had to start for the hanging rolls 50 yards away, rush up to them, eat them and then run to the final tape. Edith Nyström got the first place, and Cecilia Anderson was second.

A basket supper was enjoyed at six o'clock and after the contents of the baskets had been disposed of there was music, dancing and heating.

The officers who had charge of the affair were as follows:

Swedish Mutual Benefit society, Torsten Reenstierna, general chairman of the day, and Harold Hjordale, and A. P. Hallenberg; Norwegian Sick Benefit society, John Svensen, F. Hansen and H. Hansen; Nyomen, No. 76, Order of Wawa, Albert Carlson, Carl Bernston and Niles Nelson; John Erickson council, No. 1853, Royal Arcanum, John Lund, Victor Platin and Gustaf Johnson; and Court Scandinavia, Foresters of America, Nils Anderson, Emil Persson and Frank Palmgren. Assisting these members of the general committee were: Erik A. Johnson, Per Ekengren, C. Myhr, Severin Nelson, Erik Hiedman, August Eliason, Gustaf Johnson, Carl Christensen, Anders Johnson and C. F. Westson.

AT SALEM DEPOT

Balloon Massachusetts Made Landing

The balloon "Massachusetts," belonging to the New England Aero club, carrying Charles J. Glidden, Elmer Van Valkenberg, of South Framingham, and Mrs. Merton N. Glidden, of this city, which rose from the works of the Lowell Gas Light Co. in School street, at 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, landed at an hour and a half later on George Noyes' farm, in Salem Depot, N. H., about 15 miles from the starting point. The occupants of the basket had a most delightful trip even though they did not travel as long a distance as they would have had there been a brisk breeze.

Four automobiles filled with friends of the people in the basket followed the balloon and arrived at the field where the landing was made at the same time as the balloon. Mr. Glidden, after packing up his balloon returned to his home in Boston.

TO SIGN TREATY

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Ambassador Bryce will journey to Washington from the summer home of his British embassy in New Hampshire this week for the purely ministerial function of signing a treaty providing for the adjustment of certain pecuniary claims of citizens of the United States or Great Britain against each other. These are what may be regarded as "settled" claims, that is, those which were not included in various conventions and arbitrations during the past century. No one knows the sum total involved, though it cannot be considerable.

TWO MEN SHOT

Woman Hit With a Cannon Ball

WORCESTER, June 27.—An Italian row, in which baseball clubs, cannon balls and revolvers were used with good effect, was stopped after two men had been shot and a woman hit over the head with one of the cannon balls yesterday. None of the victims were seriously hurt.

Joe Pajisettio was shot in the left arm, and Gusto Tivino was shot in the hand with a 38 calibre revolver which the police claim was wielded by Pasquale Pajisettio, brother of one of the injured men. Both were taken to the City hospital for treatment.

Pasquale was arrested charged with carrying a dangerous weapon and his wife was treated for a large scalp wound at the police station. The police were unable to determine what caused the trouble. A hundred people were attracted to the scene of the fight in Blumfield street court and the police had trouble to disperse them.

FIVE YEARS' WEDDED BLISS

Many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gorman of 48 Bowden street, gathered at their home, Saturday evening, the occasion being the fifth anniversary of the marriage of the happy couple. An excellent supper was served between six and eight o'clock, after which a musical and literary program was carried out. Mr. and Mrs. Gorman were the recipients of many beautiful and appropriate presents. The success of the affair was due to the zealous work of Mrs. R. Reid, Mrs. E. R. Bibod, Mrs. J. Gorman, Mrs. T. Haydigan, Mrs. D. Roach, Miss Mary Finnerty and Mrs. M. J. Finnigan.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

THE EXPRESS BUSINESS

The Board of Trade should use its influence to hurry the coming of the trolley express. While the local merchants are complaining of the inadequacy of the express service in Lowell, the new line seems to be letting its best opportunity slip by. The express service is very important to a business city, and if it be deficient the citizens alone can bring about the required remedy.

THE LYNN TRAGEDY

The police of Lynn are to be congratulated upon the promptness with which they bagged the three desperate highwaymen who made so bold as to plan and execute a deliberate murder in broad daylight for the purpose of robbery.

A shoe manufacturer, who had secured the services of an officer to protect him, was on his way to his shop from the bank when both men were instantly shot down by yeggs who carried off the bag of money. But, thanks to the vigilance of the police, their good marksmanship and courage, they very soon laid two of the highwaymen low and captured the third. All three, it is said, are strangers who may have come from New York. The crime was such a bold one that had the culprits escaped the police would have been severely criticized, as it required but a short time to throw the city into a ferment of excitement.

It has been reported that officials of the General Electric company have been in dread of some such outrage as this for months past, but they were very cautious and never carried their money so openly. The fact that one of the men belonged in New York would indicate that they came to Lynn for the purpose.

It is a source of gratification that the highwaymen were so promptly shot down and captured. That will teach others a wholesome lesson.

It seems that we have arrived at a period when no man is safe even on the public streets in daylight if he is known to carry any large amount of money. Lynn has suffered serious loss from the yeggs, but they will give the city a wide berth in the future.

It seems that some steps should be taken to prevent the indiscriminate sale of the most deadly weapons to all kinds of foreigners, anarchists, highwaymen, thugs and thieves of all descriptions.

It behooves the officers of every city to be trained as marksmen with the revolver and to be supplied with the best and most recent weapons of the kind to be had.

ENFORCING LAW IN TOLEDO

Brand Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, O., has issued a very interesting pamphlet on the subject of law enforcement in reply to certain appeals made to him for improvement in the moral conditions prevailing throughout the city.

So far as can be learned from the mayor's letter, reference was made to gambling and immoral dens which, as is well known, are quite prevalent in western cities.

In his letter Mayor Whitlock shows that he is considerable of a philosopher and that he doubts the efficacy of compulsory methods of making people good. This will be seen from the following paragraph:

"What you regret and deplore and what I regret and deplore, is the existence of vice and crime in the world today. You propose to abolish them by the use of force; in my philosophy they can never be abolished until we ascertain the causes of them, and then remove those causes. To do this, we shall have to undertake reforms with which the policeman and the gaoler will have little to do; indeed, the accomplishment of those reforms will do away with the policeman and the gaoler, or release them from their present duties of destruction, to real service for mankind. These reforms should eventually do away with those influences in our system which give monopolies and privileges to a few, and by denying common rights to the many, reduce them to a condition of involuntary poverty. For it is involuntary poverty, and its direct and indirect effects, that produce crime, and our duty is to make involuntary poverty impossible."

In seeking to remove the cause of crime while at the same time battling with the effects, Mayor Whitlock is apparently taking the right course. Being acquainted with the local conditions he knows how far compulsion can be carried without defeating its purpose. Cities vary very greatly in this respect. The western cities, we surmise, would not stand the restraint that is willingly accepted by the people of eastern cities.

It is but a few years ago since the mayor of Toledo began a rigorous enforcement of the Sunday laws. This had continued only for two Sundays when the city council repealed every ordinance providing for Sabbath observance. With that as the last popular expression on the subject, Mayor Whitlock says he does not feel authorized to go too far in the line of policy adopted by Mayor Jones. But he seeks to attain the same ends by a different policy, and if we are to judge from his letter he is attaining fairly satisfactory results.

In the very worst cities there is a moral sentiment which if properly aroused and appealed to will banish gambling and its concomitant evils, social vice and intemperance.

Mayor Whitlock makes the point that as each city has its individuality and should be allowed to make its own police regulations instead of being governed by general statutes. In order to make the people better and to lessen crime he further recommends the extension of opportunities for rest and recreation with wholesome and ennobling entertainment. Much has been done in this respect, he says, by providing branch libraries, public parks, comfort stations, band concerts, public baths, swimming pools, playgrounds, both for children and adults with opportunity for indoor and outdoor sport. The school buildings, he says, should be freely used by all the people, and public buildings should be erected in which all the people would take pride and delight.

In this method of drawing the people out from the secret dens of vice and teaching them to enjoy innocent recreation, Mayor Whitlock is not alone in opinion of its general efficacy. Judge Pickman of this city preaches the same doctrine and it is being generally accepted by all the municipalities in this country.

SEEN AND HEARD

City Auditor Arthur F. Brodie of Kansas City, Mo., has just put in his office an automatic timekeeping clock, at which his clerks must register when they begin and leave off work. It is said that similar clocks will be put in the other departments.

It is all right to tell people how handsome you were when you were a baby boy, but don't make the mistake of bringing out the old family album and showing pictures of yourself to prove it.

If the man with the artistic temperament doesn't marry a wife with practical common sense, the family is pretty sure to come to grief.

The people who put on eye glasses to make them look intellectual never would be credited with being intellectual under any other circumstances.

After all, nobody can blame the bald headed man if he runs enthusiastically to whistlers.

Don't spend any time considering whether or not you have reason to feel ashamed of your great-grandfather. Think whether your great-grandfather would have any reason to feel ashamed of you.

When a woman marries a man just to get a living without working, it serves her right if things go wrong and she finds out that she has to support her husband.—Sumerville Journal.

PASSING OF THE CRADLE

Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden cradle,
The cradle of progress has thrust it aside;
No more to its motion, o'er sleep's
Our play-weary wayfarers peacefully glide.

No more by the rhythm of slow-moving
Their sweet, dreamy fancies are No more to lull, singing the cradle Goes swinging:
The child of this era is put into bed.

Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden Cradle;
It long to the twilight a strange,
Subtle charm;
When bees left the clover, when playtime was over,
How safe seemed its shelter from Dangerous harm!

How soft seemed the pillow, how distant
The ceiling,
How weird were the voices that Whispered around
What dreams would come flocking,
As rocking and rocking,
We laid away into slumber profound.

Good-by to the cradle, the old wooden Cradle;
The babe of today does not know
It by sight.
When we were the border, with System and order,
The child goes to bed and we put Out the light.

I bow to Progression, and ask no concession,
The pathway be her pathway with Wrinkles of the past;
So off with the lumber, that sweet
Ark of slumber,
The old wooden cradle, is ruthlessly
Cast.

—Edith Wheeler Wilcox.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Rev. Joseph B. Kettle of St. Joseph, Mo., has accepted the call extended by the Orthodox Congregational church and parish of Leominster, and hopes to begin his pastorate July 1.

A woman has just been appointed church warden at Walsingham-on-Sove in Warwickshire, England. She is a single woman to hold such an office in England. There is also one woman sexton in a small church in Lincolnshire. The office is hereditary and has been in her family for more than two hundred years.

The athletic spirit which animates the pages of Mr. Arthur W. North's "Camp and Camino" is the same that led him as an undergraduate to take the first track team east from California to compete in the intercollegiate games and has since sent him in search of adventure into most of the out of the way corners of the west. One of these out of the way places is Magdalena Bay, which is regarded by certain naval authorities as the most important strategic harbor on the Pacific coast.

The late King Edward was a great cigar smoker, but in the privacy of his workroom at Buckingham palace and Sandringham he liked a pipe. King George is also a cigar smoker, but he does not disdain a pipe, for which he formed a liking when he was an active naval officer.

The czar of Russia contents himself with cigarettes. Formerly the Kaiser was an inveterate cigar and pipe smoker, but on the advice of his doctor he has almost given up the habit. In spite of his 50 years the Austrian emperor is fond of a pipe and smoking does not affect his health.

King George of Greece smokes quantities of cigarettes, which he usually throws away half consumed. King Victor Emmanuel is a moderate smoker of cigars and cigarettes. King Peter of Serbia prefers a pipe, a habit he contracted when he was at the military school of Saint Cyr.

King Alfonso manages to get through a fair quantity of cigars and cigarettes. His neighbor, King Manuel of Portugal, has not yet learned to appreciate a cigar, contenting himself with the cigarette.

"The Eleventh Hour," a spirited novel of the Mexican war, was suggested to the author, Lieut. David Porter, by a sword with a history. This sword hung over a fireplace in Lieut. Porter's boyhood home, where it had been placed by his uncle, an officer in the regiment of New Jersey volunteers.

It had been surrendered to him by a Confederate officer in one of the skirmishes that preceded the battle of Fredericksburg, who stated that it had been captured from a Mexican officer on the field of Resaca de la Palma during the war with Mexico. Lieutenant Porter is a graduate of Princeton, has been in the navy for the past twelve years, serving in the war with Spain and in the Philippine campaign, and is now a paymaster with the rank of lieutenant commander. Out of the past twelve years five or six have been spent cruising about the world on men-of-war—the Philippines and San Borneo and elsewhere in the Far East, South America, etc. He has hunted wild buffalo in Borneo, once, and with the remnants of Emilio Aguinaldo, one of the few men of his generation who have seen slaves offered for sale at public auction—in the Moro market in Mindanao in 1898.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of The Lowell Sun:—
Your editorial of Thursday on "The Colburn school" has caused me to encroach upon the valuable space in your paper that I might answer a few of your assertions. Now that the Training school has been abolished, it seems fitting and proper for those who have hitherto remained silent (as The Lowell Sun) to come forward and attempt to throw light on the conditions and evils supposed to have existed there. In so doing little regard is paid to the character of the city may draw as to the character of the graduates of the Colburn school. It is particularly in defense of those who have passed from her walls, that I send this letter.

My attention was called to your editorial by one who never went to the school, but who was aware that my name was enlisted on the roll of her graduates. This person asked me if conditions as you pictured them happened while I was at the Colburn school. I told him emphatically "No!" In this I was within my rights as I attended this school when the training school system was in full bloom, and never to my recollection, has it happened that it was necessary to draft the janitor to suppress disorder. I am sure that you would not make any such statement unless you had ample proof for it, and I should be much enlightened and surprised to find your information reliable.

The same discipline was maintained while I attended the school when the real principal was present or absent. I do not know what you mean by "degraded authority," but if by it you mean "the three teachers to be provided for," I can only say that they have their appointments practically as assistant principals as their salaries will show. I believe the assistant master at the high school is just as competent as the real master of the same school to exact discipline and I cannot see why my belief should change in regard to the three assistants of the training school. You speak on hearsay in regard to this as shown by your words "it is alleged." "Somehow the results of the school in the past have been disappointing." This part of your editorial especially aroused my wrath and justly so, for by it you reflect on every graduate of the Colburn school. On what grounds, pray, do you base this assertion? If you had considered the reasons which they do not state before the public, I am sure that it would never have been printed. The graduates of the Colburn school have no cause to hang their heads when they look about them and see the results of their education. Among her graduates she numbers men in every walk of life equal, if not superior, to the graduates of any school in the city.

At the graduation exercises held last Wednesday morning at the Colburn school, our excellent superintendent of schools in speaking to those about to graduate, congratulated them on graduating from a grammar school and especially from the Colburn school. He said that the records show that the school younger than the average school of graduates from the other schools of the city, and that their average after entering has been creditable.

Judging by the above, I should say that the service and discipline at the Colburn school was as good as any in Lowell.

Yours respectfully,
Cornelius J. O'Neill,
Lowell, June 24, 1910.
What The Sun said of past conditions referred to the Training school as a whole and not particularly to the Colburn school and the writer of the above communication seems to regard as understanding that the grammar and primary departments are to be separated, we advocated the election of an experienced male principal to the Colburn school, and we do not see how past graduates can take offense at that. We did not reflect on the graduates nor upon the faculty of the Training school, three able members of which remain to be appointed to suitable positions in the schools. There is no comparison of the graduates of one school with those of another after entering the High School.—Ed.

COL. ROOSEVELT

REPLIES TO LETTERS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

PATERSON, N. J., June 27.—The proudest set of boys and girls in this city today are the members of the "SB" class of school No. 21. A letter from ex-President Roosevelt written to their teacher, is the cause of the class feeling so proud. Several days ago Miss Anna Firth had each of the boys and girls in the class write an individual letter to the general, telling him how glad they were that he was home again. The children did not suppose they would receive an answer, and are naturally very proud of the following:

"To the Principal of School No. 21:—
"Dear Sir: It is physically impossible for me to even read, much less answer, the enormous number of letters I am now receiving, but I cannot let the greatest very good letters, which I have received from your scholars pass without a word of hearty appreciation. Of course, it is impossible to thank each individual writer, but I hope you will tell the boys and girls how I appreciate the fine messages they have given me. I also congratulate you. The letters are so neatly and admirably written that they reflect great credit on the school and its teachers. With very best wishes to you all.
"I am, faithfully yours,
(Signed) Theodore Roosevelt."

HANGED HERSELF

Lancaster School Girl a Suicide

LANCASTER, June 27.—Following her being disciplined yesterday for slight misconduct, the body of Eva Smith, a 16-year-old girl, was found hanging from a clothes line in her room at the State industrial school for girls here today. Medical Examiner George L. Toben who was called to view the body stated that to all appearance the girl had been dead three or four hours. Ever since she was brought to the institution her conduct had been better than the average girl, according to the school authorities. Yesterday she disobeyed a school rule and according to the punishment given out to one of the girls, was sent to her room. It is said that the girl had recently received letters from several girls, dwelling largely upon suicide and persons at the school believe that the reading of the letters caused her to take her own life.

TO RAISE THE MAINE

Army Engineers Planning to Begin the Work

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Of course the army engineers will do their best to carry out the wishes of congress, twice expressed, that an effort shall be made to raise the wreck of the battleship Maine from the bottom of Havana harbor, where it lies embedded in 27 feet of slime. But the engineers are frank to confess that they do not know the extent of the task before them and they believe that the $300,000 appropriation will not be sufficient. So their present idea is to use as much of the money as may be necessary to make a thorough examination of the wreck and the surrounding bottom of the harbor.

The only known method of raising a ship in the condition of the Maine, is to surround her with a coffer dam from which the water can be pumped, allowing the hull to be drained and the holes in the bottom closed. Engineering history fails to disclose a coffer dam of the mammoth proportions that would be required to enclose the Maine, for it must be as long as a city block, and as high as a five or six story building that is, from the bottom of the timbers to the top. Its cost would probably exceed the total appropriation. A thorough preliminary investigation will cost a good deal of money and much time. In fact it is reasonably certain that congress will again be in session before the results are known, and the engineers can tell just how much money it will cost to raise the ship. Then, if fatal.

MAY BE FATAL

WORCESTER GIRL'S CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE FROM RANGE

WORCESTER, June 27.—Annie Sitt, 10 years old, was probably fatally burned yesterday at her home, 26 Waverly street, when her clothing caught fire from the gas range as she was lifting a kettle from it to help her mother. Mrs. Bernard Sitt, the mother, was also severely burned about the hands and arms trying to save the child.

The little girl was burned about the face, neck and chest, and her entire abdomen was one mass of burns. While the hospital physicians see a chance for her recovery it is not expected.

The girl went to remove the kettle from the stove, when the gas flames ignited her sleeve and in a few seconds she was a mass of flames. Her mother tore the clothing from the girl's body, saving her from immediate death, and her own injuries are serious, but not fatal.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Man Killed Two Persons and Then Committed Suicide

SPRINGFIELD, Me., June 27.—"We'll settle this thing right now," said David Downes, as he reached for his rifle and jacking in a 30-30 cartridge, fired point blank at his mother-in-law, Mrs. Iva Woodard, who stood so near to him that the muzzle almost touched her.

She fell dead as the slug crashed through her brain. Then as quickly as Downes could throw in another cartridge he fired at his wife, who also fell dead in her tracks.

The crazed man then placed the muzzle in his mouth and sent a shot into his own brain.

The three lives were snuffed out in 15 seconds.

Downes is a farm hand, aged 33, and with his wife and their 5-year-old daughter lived in rather humble circumstances in a small house two miles from this village on the road to Frenchie.

Mrs. Downes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Iva Woodard, live directly across the road. Saturday night Mrs. Downes and her daughter stayed at the Woodard house and yesterday morning they went home where they found David Downes. With them went Mr. and Mrs. Woodard and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson re-atives, and there was a sort of family reunion.

While the circumstances which led up to the shooting vary because of the rapid progress of the triple tragedy, it appears that the wife and mother-in-law of Downes upbraided him because he had been so cross to Mrs. Downes, who declared she was going to leave him and take up her residence with her parents.

Downes said that he would try to do better and pleaded with his wife to remain. She appeared determined to leave, however.

Then suddenly reaching for his rifle, which stood behind him, he fired the three fatal shots.

At the first shot Woodard and the Gibsons fled in terror. Neighbors summoned physicians, but they could do nothing.

C. M. Lombard, first selectman, took charge and the house was placed under guard pending the arrival of the coroner, Charles E. Rackliffe of Oldtown.

Downes has always had a good reputation for honesty and industry. He married his wife, who was 23, about five years ago. Recently rumors that they had quarreled have been known, but were not considered more than family jars.

GREAT WILD WEST

TO BE HERE JULY 6

The famous 101 ranch, of Ellis, Oklahoma, whose Wild West Show is coming to this city for two performances on Wednesday, July 6, is essentially a young man's enterprise. None of the trio of brothers who own and operate it has attained the forty-year mark. Joseph C. Miller is president of the family corporation; George L. is secretary and general director, and Zack T. assumes active charge of the tremendous live stock transaction.

The genesis of the largest ranch in the country was in 1871, when George W. Miller, father of the family, then a young Kentuckian, rode through the Indian territory behind a bunch of Texas steers. He had gone west with a few dollars and a lot of Kentucky wisdom about horses and cattle. He saw a chance to make money by buying Texas steers where they were born, driving them on a long feed through the grassy Indian territory, and shipping them by railroad to St. Louis and Chicago from Baxter Springs, Kansas, which at that period was one of the snappiest towns on earth.

He trailed down into Texas, bought a bunch of steers for $8 per head and drove them up into Kansas, consuming six months by the way, and sold them for $12 a head.

The next year he started back to Texas with half of the proceeds in a coin belt about his waist and the rest in a cigar box, all in gold. A Mexican herder stole the cigar box, and Mr. Miller had to return with half a drove. But the year following he loaded a wagon train with bacon, canned goods and other goods, and started south. The Mexican herders could not steal these, and he laid the foundation for the family fortune.

During his long and lonely expeditions through the Indian territory, George Miller picked up his own trails, and the one he oftentimes followed lay along the Arkansas river, where the grass was long and juicy. This afterward became the reservation of the Ponca, Otoe and Missouri Indians. Mr. Miller had determined to own it some day.

Shall We Have a Denatured Fourth?

Uncle Sam, in account with the celebration of Independence day (1903-1908)—

DEBIT:

1,316 deaths and 27,980 serious injuries, property loss amounting to millions of dollars.

CREDIT:

Jubilant and noisy outlet for the patriotic instincts of Americans, mainly youngsters anxious to celebrate the Fourth of July "fittingly."

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

SO reads the account in the nation's books. In your opinion, reader, does it balance exactly? Or do you believe that the advocates of the "safe and sane Fourth," which have been making such great gains, have the better of the argument?

Perhaps your enthusiasm for the noisy Fourth varies in inverse proportion to your age, as the mathematicians might say—that is, the greater the number of your years the smaller your amount of ability to find joy and patriotic inspiration in the six-boom-bang of what has come to be known as the conventional Fourth. If you can look backward over a long series of Fourth's, all of them marked to your personal knowledge by death and suffering and loss, perhaps you are less enthusiastic about the noisy celebration of Independence day than you were when you were younger.

On the other hand, if you are old enough to read this and yet young enough to feel a thrill instead of a groan when a big firecracker lets out its "bang!" perhaps you think the danger of the Fourth of July has been grossly exaggerated. Probably deep down in your subconscious self you have a feeling that the Fourth is worth all that it costs.

If you belong to the former class and believe that the style of celebrating the Fourth that prevails generally is thoughtless, reckless, barbaric and destructive to the people who are leading the crusade against it want your cooperation. If you are one of the latter unconvinced class your attention is invited again to the figures printed at the top of this article. They are not manufactured, exaggerated or colored. They are authentic and bona fide figures gathered by an able statistician employed by one of the leading newspapers of the country.

The "Safe and Sane" Argument.

These figures are impressive enough to give pause to the most enthusiastic of the believers in "letting the children enjoy themselves on the Fourth." "Certainly, let them enjoy themselves," say the advocates of the "safe and sane Fourth," "but let them do it without the frightful sacrifices entailed by the indiscriminate use of toy cannons, bombs, giant firecrackers, firearms and other death dealing agencies. We have no quarrel with the Fourth; we are as patriotic Americans as can be found, and we can discourse to you about the history of Independence day at least as intelligently as the advocates of the 'noisy Fourth.' But we believe, and a large part of the nation is coming around to our way of thinking, that the sacrifice of life and limb and property laid each year on the altar of the Fourth as a literal burnt offering is too great. Let us celebrate the Fourth as ardently as you and I wish, but for the sake of the mothers bereft each year of their children let us make the sacrifice as light as possible."

It is with this sort of argument, backed by figures such as those set forth above, that the men and women who are preaching against the perils of Independence day are re-enforcing their cause and making recruits for it. The movement has made great advances this year. From almost every section of the country—one could almost say from every state—have come reports of the placing of greater restrictions on the sale of fireworks. Some cities have gone the length of abolishing altogether their sale, following in this respect the lead of Springfield, Mass., which decided several years ago that the lives and the safety of her youngsters were of more value to her than the boom and crackle of the individual setting off of fireworks. Her example was quickly followed by other cities and towns. This year no less than eighty cities and towns have either prohibited the sale of fireworks or have taken steps to provide their inhabitants with public shows and entertainments, such as the reading of the Declaration of Independence, patriotic orations by prominent men, the setting off of fixed fireworks under competent direction, etc. Some have adopted both measures.

The recent action of Mayor Gaynor of New York forbidding the sale of fireworks in the metropolis between June 10 and July 10 focused the country's attention on the subject. Other cities hastened to fall into line behind the metropolis. In Hamilton, O., an ordinance of similar effect was passed and the city proceeded to buy up all of the fireworks within its limits. The money was subscribed by citizens. The fireworks will be set off in a public park on the night of July 4, and there will be the usual patriotic exercises.

Some Unhappy Names for the Fourth. A prime mover in the action against what has been called "the Insane Fourth," "the slaughter of the innocents," "a holiday of disasters" and other opprobrious names is Mrs. Isaac L. Rice of New York, who came prominently before the public a few years ago as the founder and chief supporter of the Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noises. Mrs. Rice bases her objection against the style of celebrating the Fourth now generally prevalent not on the amount of noise it produces, but solely on the needlessness of the sacrifices made.

Early in the present year Mrs. Rice wrote to the governor of each state in the Union soliciting his official help in her furtherance of the celebration of the Fourth in "safe and sane" fashion. Ten of the governors replied, offering all the aid in their power. This encouraged Mrs. Rice to prepare a petition which asked the state legislatures to pass laws doing away with the sale of dangerous fireworks. Among the most ardent advocates of the newer celebration is Governor Weeks of Connecticut, who has been urging "a day of pleasure and profit instead of a day of unrest and horror."

The Other Side of the Argument.

Turning to the other side of the question, it must be admitted that the movement for a less dangerous Fourth has not met with unanimous approval. One of the newspapers of Washington commented thus caustically on the fact that the movement to raise $5,000 for a formal celebration of the Fourth in the national capital showed signs of dying ingloriously:

"Are the old folks going to break their pact with the young folks as to celebrating the Fourth of July? We put this question squarely up to the elders, because the fireworks committee is making the S O S signal. 'The zest and enthusiasm which marked the inauguration of the new style of patriotism has about petered out.'"

"Would the boys and tomboys promise to let off burning their fingers and blowing their eyes out and setting fire to awnings and show windows and exploding cannon crackers under people's feet in return for the privilege of enjoying from a safe distance at the close of a sleepy and prudish day a display of fireworks on an elaborate scale, typifying great events in the history of the republic? Without waiting for an answer from the young-ers the grownups stopped the sale of fireworks and got up a celebration by contrast."

"It proved all it was advertised to be spectacularly, but popularly it did not enjoy a responsive chord. With the vital element of spontaneity lacking, with the real spirit of the day chilled to a perfunctory shout, the Fourth of the forefathers became a barren ideal, an enunciated joy. The elders no less than the kids realized that the new departure took them too far from the spirit of '76, and unless the movement can be galvanized and given a fresh start on a more liberal basis it is booked to die of inanition."

THE KID'S VIEW OF THE FOURTH.

By EARL MARBLE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

My pa wants a Fourth that's safe and sane!
Well, wouldn't that jar you worse than the noise?
That kind of a Fourth might suit Mary Jane
And me, but not on your life for the boys!
We're just wound up, and we've got to let go
No matter what breaks on the Fourth of July,
And pa can go driving and yell out "Whoa!"
In his funny way as the fireworks fly.

My pa isn't getting so very old.
But he's losing his memory awful fast.
He was full of pranks as his hide could hold.
As he could tell if he only dast.
For grandma said so herself, she did.
When he kicked last Fourth about the noise
And said he was just the awfulest kid—
He forgets about being one of the boys.
Or if pa wants a quiet Fourth of July
He might go out in a boat on the lake
In the country, like he did when a guy
And took ma out and made her quake—
She wasn't my ma then, only a girl—
But he rocked the boat, and her scream was immense.
So loud it just made his straight hair curl
And my cannon seem like thirty cents.

When I sat pa last Fourth of July
How he came to have a crippled hand—
For, you see, one hand is a finger shy—
He harked enough to beat the band.
"Twas an accident," was his reply,
And nothing more, but grandma said,
"He was firing an anvil Fourth of July
And come nigh losing his crazy head."

So I'm no worse, I reckon, than him.
Leastways I've got ten fingers, you bet!
And I'm just sound in life and limb
And up and having my head made yet.
And when pa says a Fourth of July
Is safe and sane for his I grin
And give a wink with the other eye
And duck to see the fun begin.

"Again we put the question in behalf of the fireworks committee, are the old folks going to break their pact with Young America as to celebrating Independence day?"

Young America Not Unanimous. The Washington editor is at fault in at least two particulars. In the first place, Young America is not quite as unanimous about the noisy celebration of the Fourth of July as he would have us believe. There is no evidence that the boys and girls of cities in which the sale of fireworks has been prohibited are less patriotic than those in the cities in which the other style of celebration will prevail.

In the second place, the scribe is probably mistaken in his reference to "the Fourth of the forefathers." To them Independence day was an occasion for solemn rejoicing, not of loud celebration. Witness the views of John Adams, signer of the Declaration of

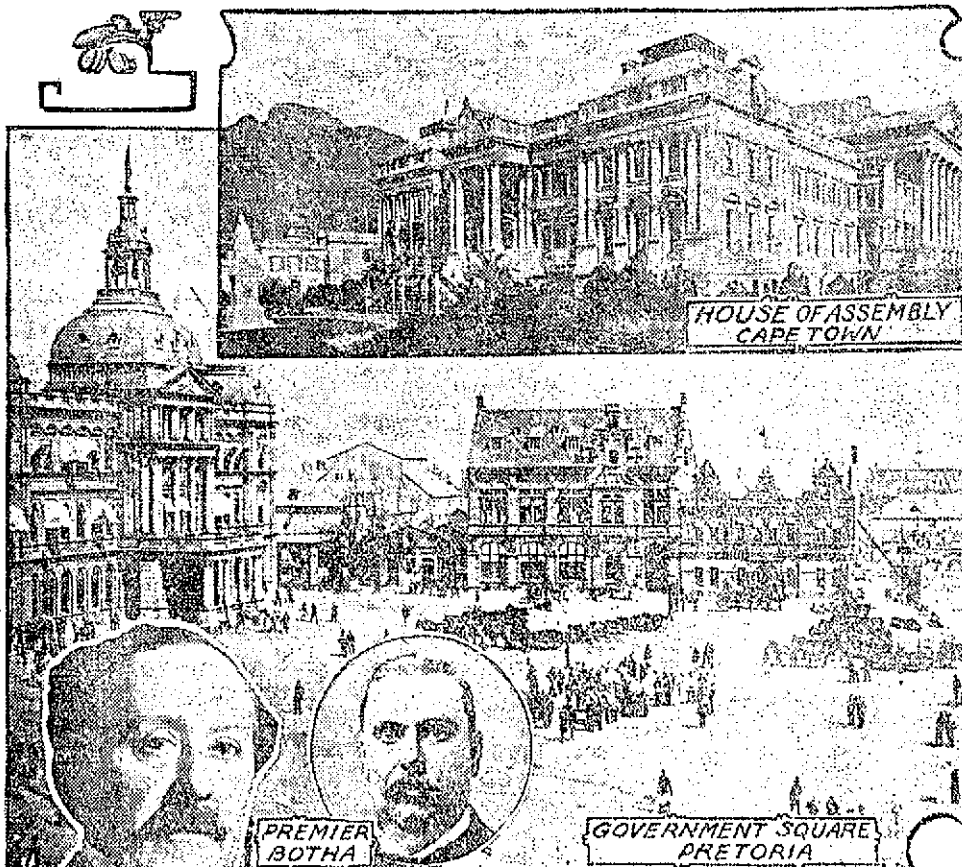

"READY, SISTER?"

"HERE SHE GOES, FELLERS!"

Independence and later second president of the United States, as expressed in a letter to Mrs. Adams in July, 1776: "I am apt to believe that it [Independence day] will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward, forevermore." You will observe that he spoke of the use of guns. Did he mean that the guns were to be entrusted to irresponsible youngsters, as they are today?

World's Newest Baby Nation

PREMIER BOTHA

GOVERNMENT SQUARE, PRETORIA

WHILE we Americans are busily engaged with preparations for the celebration of the one hundred and thirty-fourth birthday of our own country let us pause a bit to glance at the new nation that has just had its first natal day. It is not a full fledged nation yet, but it is far more advanced on that road than were the American colonies of Great Britain in July, 1776. If the people of America had at that time had the rights and privileges possessed at the present time by the inhabitants of the new Union of South Africa it is safe to say that our Revolution would have been deferred many years, if, indeed, it would ever have come.

There seems to be no fear that the cry, "Taxation without representation is tyranny," the slogan of the American patriots in '76, will ever be heard in South Africa. The four colonies which form the Union of South Africa have not only the union parliament to consider measures relating to their joint interests, but each of the four—Cape Colony, the Orange River Colony, Natal and the Transvaal—has its own council, consisting of as many members as the colony is entitled to send to the union parliament. All matters of provincial interest are thus certain of a full discussion and airing.

The inauguration of the first parliament of the union, in the fall, will be made the occasion of great pomp and ceremony. In recognition of the importance of the event the late King

Edward planned to send the heir to the throne, now King George, to open the parliament in the name of the sovereign. Death intervened, and the new king has named to go in his stead the Duke of Connaught, his uncle.

A few years ago King Edward declared in a speech that the union of the South African colonies was "very near to his heart." It is believed that the steps leading to the new union were submitted for his majesty's very careful consideration and that he thought great good would come of the union. The development of the resources of the country required the tranquillization of its government, a strong central form of administration and the elimination of the causes of friction between the important British and Boer elements of the population. It was believed that the white man, of Anglo-Saxon and of Dutch descent, must stand shoulder to shoulder in facing the very serious negro problem of South Africa, among other matters that required concerted action and disinterested work for the good of the country.

It is by no means a small country that has been brought into legislative unity in the new government. The combined area of the four colonies comprised in the union is 467,391 square miles. There are 1,178,185 persons of white descent and 4,051,117 negroes. The largest and most populous of the four colonies is Cape Colony, with 276,935 square miles, 550,380 white inhabitants and 1,855,172 colored. The imports of Cape Colony from Great Britain in 1908 amounted to more than $8,000,000 and the exports to more than $6,000,000. The second of the four colonies in size and importance is the Transvaal, the third is the Orange River Colony and the fourth is Natal. By an ingenious compromise the branches of government of the united colonies are divided among three of them. After a long discussion of the best possible site for the capital of the union it was decided to make Cape Town, in Cape Colony, the seat of the legislature; Pretoria, in the Transvaal, the seat of the executive government; and Bloemfontein, in the Orange River Colony, the seat of the judiciary. It is believed that this is the first time in the history of the world that a compromise of this sort has been effected.

The assembling of the new parliament in the fall, probably in September, will bring together some of the most interesting men in the world. First and foremost of them will be General Louis Botha, head of the first union cabinet ministry of united South Africa. He is the same General Louis Botha whose name was in the mouth of all the world ten years ago as commander of the Boer forces fighting against Great Britain and defeating them in such terrible battles as those at Colenso and Spion Kop. The years that have passed have transformed him from one of the most determined and able of the foes of Great Britain in South Africa into a firm believer in the unity of the British empire and in the justice of its rule in South Africa. Prior to his assumption of the office of premier of the new colony he was prime minister and minister of agriculture of the Transvaal. Through the change in his political convictions General Botha has managed to retain the good will of his fellow Boers, and he is today their acknowledged leader.

Among the other men who will inaugurate the new parliament with immense interest are the governor general of the union, Viscount Gladstone of Hawarden, son of the famous statesman who declared thirty years ago his belief in the advisability of uniting the colonies of British South Africa into one strong central government.

On the "Stern and Rock Bound Coast"

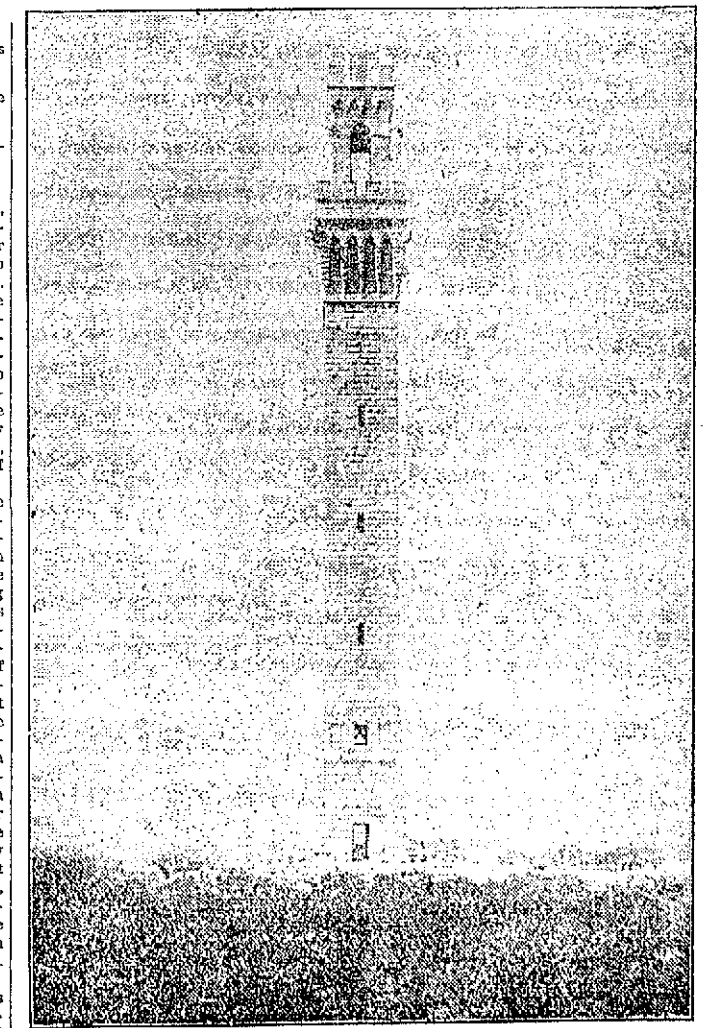

The pilgrim spirit has not fled.
It walks in noon's broad light,
And it watches the bed of the glorious dead
With the holy stars by night.
It watches the bed of the brave who have died
And shall guard this fabled shore
Till the waves of the bay where the Mayflower lay
Shall foam and freeze no more.

SO sang the Rev. John Pierpont, poet, descendant of the pilgrim fathers and grandfather of the famous financier who took his Christian names from him. The pilgrim spirit of which he wrote will have occasion to rejoice this summer in its own quiet, subdued manner, for it will receive convincing evidence that it has been transmitted to the descendants of the men and women who founded New England. The evidence has taken shape in the lofty pilgrim memorial at Provincetown, Mass., which awaits the conveniences of President Taft for its dedication.

The pilgrim memorial is the outcome of the efforts of several years by patriotic men and women who saw an becoming neglect of the memory of an important historic occurrence in the fact that the place of the first landing of the pilgrim fathers in America was unmarked by a fitting monument. Almost every one who thinks himself acquainted by the primary facts of American history believes that the pilgrim fathers and mothers set foot first on the famous rock at Plymouth. The town on the inner side of Massachusetts bay is made the destination yearly of thousands of patriotic travelers. But they err in thinking that in paying veneration to the rock under the stone canopy at Plymouth they are setting foot on the first place in New England trod by white men. That honor belongs to Provincetown, Mass., the village on the inner side of the fishhook barb of which Cape Cod is the shaft. It lies across the bay from Plymouth, in an easterly direction. The date was Nov. 1, 1620, old style.

It was just before the landing was made at the spot which is now Provincetown that the pilgrims signed their immortal agreement for the "better ordering and preservation and furtherance" of their colony that has been called the first written constitution in the world. Abraham Lincoln declared that this document did more for human liberty than the great charter won by the barons from King John at Runnymede.

There will be imposing ceremonies at Provincetown when the new memorial is dedicated, probably in August. In addition to the president of the United States, dignitaries of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and others will be present. The historical address will be delivered by President Emeritus Elliot of Harvard. The cornerstone of the monument was laid Aug. 30, 1907, by former President Roosevelt, but he will probably be in the west when the monument is dedicated. The monument is 252 feet and 7 inches high and is constructed of Maine granite. It is modeled after the famous tower of the Palazzo Pubblico in Siena, Italy, which is considered one of the most beautiful campaniles, or bell towers, of Italy. The construction of the Provincetown tower was supervised by engineers of the army. It rests upon a concrete foundation six feet thick. The monument cost about $100,000, of which $40,000 was contributed by the national government and $25,000 by the state of Massachusetts. The remainder was raised by private subscription through the efforts of the Cape Cod Pilgrim Memorial association.

YOUNG MAN DROWNED

John O'Brien Lost His Life in Long Pond Yesterday

John O'Brien, aged 14 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Brien of 19 Riverside ave., was drowned in Long Pond yesterday afternoon while boating with a number of companions. Young O'Brien was unable to swim but rode a boat from which his companions dove into the pond. Several of the boys came up behind the boat climbing it. From what little information that could be obtained it is believed that the O'Brien boy either jumped or was thrown into the pond. His body never came to the surface although his companions waited

BODY IN RIVER COL. BERGERON

Man's Empty Purse Head of Franco-American Brigade

NEWPORT, Me., June 27.—County Attorney George E. Thompson of Orono will make an exhaustive investigation into the supposed drowning accident whereby Lewis Baroen of Waterville met death last Wednesday.

State Detective Max Cohen has been assigned to the case by the county officials.

Baroen, who was in the junk business in Waterville, left Newport village Wednesday morning in company with Samuel Robinson, his partner. The destination of the pair was the Atkins farm, three miles from the village, where Baroen had left a buggy and some pieces of harness. He wished to secure the harness, which was the property of a local library.

The story of Robinson is that they drove to a point opposite the Atkins farm, the Sebastacook stream lying between the road and the farm. At this point Baroen left the team to cross the stream and get the harness, while Robinson was to continue on and meet Baroen at a certain point below Robinson was unable to find his partner and so drove back into the village. He there took the train to Waterville, expecting, so he said, that his friend would follow on a later train. Baroen failed to put in an appearance and Thursday morning several friends came to Newport.

His body was found in the Sebastacook stream, 70 feet from shore. Part of his clothes were spread on a rock at a point near where Robinson says he parted from him. His pants were twisted about his neck and was also his shirt. In the pants pocket was found his long leather wallet, which Robinson claims contained more than $200 when they parted. The wallet was empty.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

There is an old saying about "variety being the spice of life" and Mr. Flynn, manager of the Lakeview Theatre is probably following up that motto, for last week the Jos. J. Flynn stock company presented a play of the rural type and tonight will begin a series of presentations of the rollicking farce entitled "The Millionaire." This comedy has been produced by many of the leading stock companies throughout the country and has always been very well liked. It is an ideal summer show, there being no complicated plot to follow and one does not have to continually consult one's program to follow the thread of the story. Mr. James, the leading man, has played in the hill before, as have some of the other players in the company, and special scenery and costumes have been acquired so that the patrons are assured of a straight comedy that is funny in the extreme, played by an excellent cast and put on in an elaborate style.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the Theatre Voyons offers on its exclusive program the biograph feature "The Marked Timetable," an unusually dramatic story picture unusually well acted and telling a story that will hold the interest from the very first to the last. "The Hidden School in Belgium" shows a training school for Belgian cavaliers and the riding feats performed by them are unequalled even by the western cowboys. Lubin presents a novel comedy entitled "The Millionaire." Mr. James, the leading man, has played in the hill before, as have some of the other players in the company, and special scenery and costumes have been acquired so that the patrons are assured of a straight comedy that is funny in the extreme, played by an excellent cast and put on in an elaborate style.

PERIN'S HIPPODROME

This will be the third successful week of the Hippodromes at Washington Park. The bills presented there have been varied to the best ability of the able management and the public has shown its appreciation by large attendance. Starting this afternoon the program will contain Burke's Musical Dogs, introducing their many musical numbers and played entirely by ten dogs who seem to possess all the knowledge of trained musicians; Daley Brothers, in head to head balancing and tumbling of sensational nature; Hilton, the comedy juggler, in funny tricks; Gennets, in new clown work and funny antics; The Note and his Gypsy Band in new musical selections. The motion pictures will be all new and besides this there will be singers of note rendering illustrated songs. Thursday night will be amateur night and a lengthy list from all the surrounding towns has been secured. In addition to the bill above there will also be heard "Sandy Chapman" the man who sings to beat the band, and who was a feature at Dreamland, Coney Island, last summer and for a number of years a big card with Ward and Volke's show.

NIGHT EDITION PERJURY CHARGED

Another Arrest in Connection with the Keliher Case

BOSTON, June 27.—The second arrest on a charge of perjury in connection with the recent trial of William J. Keliher, for aiding Bookkeeper George W. Coleman to loot the National City Bank of Cambridge, was made at the federal building today, when John A. Cunniffe of Dorchester walked into the marshal's office. Cunniffe was secretly indicted last week by the grand jury. When

CAMBRIDGE, June 27.—The prison doors closed today on former Treasurer John B. WESTFORD MAN IMPERIAL DECREE

Eluded the Authorities Refuses Demand for in Lawrence National Parliament

LAWRENCE, June 27.—The so-called "circus man," believed to be Edward Husher of Westford, who has been confined to the General Hospital since June 15 with a fractured skull and has lately shown signs of insanity, successfully eluded the vigilance of the hospital authorities Sunday morning and is now at large. According to the hospital physicians he is very violent. Husher, who gained his title as the "circus man" from the fact that no came to the city in company with the 101 Ranch Real Wild West show June 15, was injured by being struck on the head by the Salem street bridge while stealing a ride on the circus train with which he was in no way connected. He was taken to the hospital, where his condition, although serious, was believed to be quite favorable. It is said that during the latter part of last week he showed decided signs of insanity which later assumed alarming proportions and he became at times quite unmanageable. On Saturday he succeeded in getting away from the hospital and was at large throughout Saturday night. Sunday morning he was captured by one of the hospital orderlies and returned to his room, where he was kept under the strictest surveillance, and it was decided by Dr. Maughan and Sergeant, who were on duty at the time, to make an immediate examination of the patient and insure his being sent to some asylum pending his recovery, when, with the well known cunning of the mentally unbalanced Husher again succeeded in liberating himself. This time, it is said, making his departure through a lavatory window. The police department was communicated with and a thorough search was begun but without success. Later it was heard that the missing patient had been seen in Andover in the vicinity of the ink factory and inspectors Woodcock and Keliher were immediately dispatched to the scene. Their efforts were fruitless and up to an early hour yesterday morning he was still at liberty. Husher is 25 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs 180 pounds. He has a smooth face and was dressed in a gray suit and slouch hat at the time of his escape. His head was swathed in bandages.

HELD IN $5000 Men Pleaded Not Guilty of Assault

MALDEN, June 27.—The two Italians alleged to have attacked and fired several revolver shots at Patrolman John Fleming of Everett early today and later arrested after a long chase, appeared before Judge Bruce in the district court here shortly before noon and entered pleas of not guilty to charges of assault with attempt to murder. The men were held in $5,000 bail which they were unable to furnish, for hearing Thursday. In court the men gave their names as Sebastiano Blosi, 27 years old, of Everett, and Franco Merri, 31, of Chelsea. Both men emphatically denied any connection with the shooting and said that they were returning home from a christening when taken into custody. While the hearing was in progress, an Italian got up and said that he knew the men and that they had not given their correct names. When questioned by Judge Bruce he refused to say what their right names were, but said that he was a brother of Blosi. The third Italian who is being hunted on the marshes near Chelsea had not been found at noon today.

REVOLVERS USED Attack Made on Everett Police Officer

EVERETT, June 27.—An attack, in which several revolver shots were fired, was made on Patrolman John Fleming early today by three men who had been reprimanded by the officer for disturbing the peace. Two of the men, Italians, giving their names as Lokosfomerla and Savoagiano Blosie, were captured after a chase, while the third is being hunted on the marshes near Chelsea where the trio fled. On attempting to arrest one of them after he had warned them to stop their noise-making, Officer Fleming was set upon by the three and beaten down. The men then ran, firing at the policeman as they did so. Other patrolmen heard the shots and soon a squad was in pursuit. Two of the men were captured on the marsh, their escape being cut off by the Mystic river. As they had thrown their revolvers away, both offered resistance before they were overpowered. One of the revolvers, a .380 calibre, five shot, was later found by the police.

THREE PERISHED In Fire That Destroyed Hotel

SENECA FALLS, N. Y., June 27.—Three persons lost their lives and another had a narrow escape from serious injury in a fire that destroyed the New Seneca house here yesterday. A building adjoining the hotel was also burned and the loss is estimated at $40,000. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White of Rochester and an unidentified man who did not register last night. About 20 persons were in the house. White had been working here for about two weeks and expected to return to Rochester today. His wife arrived Saturday night and spread Sunday with him. They occupied a front room on the top floor of the hotel, but evidently became confused and were separated when an alarm was sounded by P. P. Croft, proprietor, who discovered the flames. Mrs. White's body was found on the second floor, partly burned, but death was due to suffocation. White's body was found hanging over the transom of a room on the third floor. Harry Stoneburg, a guest, was cut off from escape on the top floor. He leaped from a window, but was able to grasp a rope suspended near the ground and sustained only minor injuries.

DR. VRAHNOS
MAKES STATEMENT RELATIVE TO ASSAULT CASE
Dr. Antonio Vrahnos, formerly one of Lowell's leading Greek physicians, but now connected with a hospital in Boston, has given friends in this city a statement relative to the brutal assault upon himself and Miss Margaret Gavin of South Boston in the Fenway Thursday evening. Dr. Vrahnos states that he and Miss Gavin were standing at the entrance to the Fenway Thursday evening about 11 o'clock, waiting for a car, when two men sprang out upon them and started to assault and rob them. Dr. Vrahnos immediately went to the assistance of the young woman and in the mixup was badly beaten, and lost his Panama hat and all the money he had with him. He was quite severely bruised. Both Dr. Vrahnos and Miss Gavin will appear in court against the man charged with assaulting them.

MILITIA INVITED

Chief Marshal H. O'Sullivan Invites Militia Boys to Participate—Local Companies Preparing for Their Annual Camp Duty

That Chief Marshal Humphrey O'Sullivan means to make the monster Hibernian parade of August 24 a memorable event is evidenced by the fact that he has extended an invitation to all of the local militia companies to act as escorts for the Hibernians in the big parade. As the militiamen know what an invitation from Mr. O'Sullivan means there is little doubt as to the acceptance of the invitation. Company M it would appear will be unable to stand as the Ninth Regiment, of which it is a part, has been ordered to Pine Plains from August 23

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT

Seeks the Extradition of Porter Charlton

ROME, June 27.—The foreign office today decided to follow the provisions of the Italian-American extradition conventions and to ask for the extradition of Porter Charlton, leaving it with the American authorities to accept or refuse the request. As soon as it was known here that the confessed slayer was under arrest in the United States, the ministry of justice recognized the unusual situation in which the Italian authorities were placed and forthwith referred the whole matter to the foreign office. Extradition between Italy and the United States is provided for in the conventions of 1868 and 1884, but Italy has always held that these treaties did not cover the cases of Italian citizens who, having committed crimes in the United States, escaped to their native country. In such instances the government has insisted that the accused be tried in the courts of their country. Several times requests for extraditions of Italian criminals, from the American state department, have been refused. Nevertheless, in the present case the government determined to put the matter up to Washington. Should the American state department follow the precedent established by this country and refuse the extradition of Charlton, action will be construed as a recognition of the Italian interpretation of extradition conventions, providing, of course, that the refusal is not based upon the grounds that the prisoner is insane or for any reason other than that he is an American citizen.

PRISONER BROKE DOWN
NEW YORK, June 27.—Today's announced decision of the Italian authorities to apply for Porter Charlton's extradition is believed here to be likely to hasten a decision on the pending question of his mental condition. Coincident with the news from Rome, too, came word from Jersey City, where the confessed wife murderer is confined pending his arraignment tomorrow on the charge of being a fugitive from Italian justice, to the effect that the young prisoner's breakdown of yesterday had been followed by a night of sleeplessness on his part, with frequent spells when the youth seemed to lose control of himself and to break into sobs and moans. His condition today was considered worse than last night, when Warden Sullivan sent in a hurry call for physicians.

A CHIMNEY FIRE
An alarm from box 114 at 1:25 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a chimney fire in the house owned by Elizabeth Hill at 162 Chapel street. A stream from the extinguishers put an end to the blaze.

PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Was Entered in Behalf of the Captured Bandit

LYNN, June 23.—Wasil Iwanowski, the captured bandit, appeared in the district court here to answer to a double charge of murder in connection with the killing on Saturday of Thomas A. Landregan and Policeman James H. Carroll. By direction of Judge Lummus, a plea of not guilty was entered and the prisoner was held without bail for the grand jury. Iwanowski, as he now calls himself, after previously giving the names of Boll Kovansky and Baccini Wladowski, did not make any plea when called upon to answer to the charge in court today. There were several witnesses waiting to be heard, and the prisoner looked them over and then said, through an interpreter who had notified him that he should plead to the charge against him: "They can tell what they know; they probably know more about it than any one else." When Iwanowski was removed from the court room and taken to the street, the wagon in which he was driven to a photographer's studio was followed by a crowd of more than 200 persons. Several photographs of the alleged murderer were taken, after which he was taken to Salem, where he was placed in the Essex county jail in that city. The condition of Andy Abson, the wounded member of the bandit (Lynn) today, who is at the Lynn hospital,

MILL CHANGES

Will Bring Some Benefit to City

The proposed absorption of the Hamilton print works by the Pacific mills of Lawrence will bring several compensations for Lowell. The Hamilton company will not reduce the number of its employees but will enlarge in other directions in the manufacture of other fabrics. The changes in the buildings will benefit the property along Central street quite materially. Instead of having a lot of unsightly buildings and the big chimney tower wall, good only for the display of show bills, there will be attractive stores from the canal bridge to Jackson street. All the offensive odors from the print works will be eliminated as will to a large extent the smoke nuisance from the big chimney rising over Central street. The new stores will doubtless be occupied by enterprising merchants so that this part of the street will undergo a vast improvement not only in appearance but for business purposes. This will be a great improvement to the city. The great improvement to the beauty and the commercial value of the street. Rumor has it that the Merrimack Print works may soon be absorbed in a similar manner, although fairly successful. The great tendency is to consolidate the business in large plants so that the work can be done more cheaply by running steadily on large orders instead of as is the case in small plants, continually changing on small orders. It is rumored that a yarn mill will be built on the great lot vacated to the rear of Central street. The news of their discharge came as a great surprise to the overseers and others in the print works Saturday. One man fainted and was taken home in a hack.

SUMMER WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON, June 27.—Arrangements for transferring the executive offices from Washington to Beverly were practically completed today. Several shipments of papers and furniture were made. DEMPSEY'S PLANT

Narrowly Escaped Destruction by Fire

But for the prompt discovery of the flames and the quick work of the Boston firemen the large wholesale liquor plant, in Boston, of P. Dempsey & Co. of this city, would have been destroyed by fire Saturday evening and a stock of domestic and imported liquors of an estimated value of nearly $100,000 consumed. The P. Dempsey company occupies a six story building in Merrimack street, using every floor in the building. The entire plant shuts down at five o'clock Saturday evening. Among its employees are several Lowell men. About seven o'clock an employee of a stable nearby noticed smoke issuing from a window on the fourth floor of the building and he immediately pulled in an alarm from a neighboring box. The firemen discovered a lively blaze on the fourth floor which is used as a cooper shop which had burned through the ceiling to the fifth floor on which is stored a costly stock of spirits, etc. It is supposed that one of the employees of the cooper shop left a hot branding iron on the woodwork, which caused the fire. The woodwork and the partitions were quite severely burned, but the stock for the most part escaped. The fire burned within a few feet of ten barrels of alcohol, while several loads of excelsior escaped by a few feet. The damage to the stock will be comparatively light. NOT AT WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON, June 27.—It was stated at the White House today that nothing was known there of a prospective meeting of Governor Hughes, Colonel Roosevelt and President Taft at Beverly this week or any other time in the near future. It is said positively that no such arrangement has been suggested at Washington.

AMES ATTACKS LODGE

HON. BUTLER AMES, M. C.

Makes Formal Announcement of Candidacy for the Senate

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Representative Butler Ames yesterday formally announced his candidacy for the United States senate, to succeed Senator Lodge. Mr. Ames' statement follows:

"Mr. Ames now makes the official announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate, having tried in vain to induce someone else to lead the fight against Boss Lodge and his political machine."

"This machine, backed by all the large corporations and by all the state and federal patronage at his command, has served for many years as a ready and efficient tool to crush all political ambitions, endeavors or opinions not sanctioned by Mr. Lodge."

"His orders have gone out to crush not only to suit his own political ends, but also to advance the selfish financial schemes of the large railroads, banking and manufacturing interests he serves in the halls of congress as well as in the Massachusetts legislature."

"This machine, controlling for so many years the political destinies in the state, has been connected with, has been a party to and has grown up with the lobby that plies to trade at the state house."

Lobby Leader Lodge's Friend

"The well-recognized leader of the lobby has been a member of the state central committee for more than a decade. In that committee he has been a leader and his word was law, for was and is he not one of Mr. Lodge's closest political friends and advisers?"

"This man was driven from the republican state central committee last fall by outraged public sentiment, and though still the head of the lobby, has been kept away from the state house this year for appearance's sake, and has done his work through lieutenants. His attendance at the state house during past years was so regular that his absence this year has been the cause of almost daily comment."

"It is of interest to know that in the midst of the successful campaign waged in Haverhill last fall against the slandering of the state political machine and the lobby, Mr. Lodge was entertained at this man's home in that city."

"That a member of the state central republican committee, recognized as one of the mouthpieces of Mr. Lodge and having at his back the party machine, made his livelihood by lobbying in the Massachusetts legislature for the large corporations, and at the same time carrying out the mandates of the machine, is a commentary on the machine and the ideals in politics of Mr. Lodge."

Cites Case of Two Colliers

"For some unfortunate born to poverty and with pride of race or tradition of family and who, without education in right or wrong, takes or tries to take for his own purposes that which does not belong to him, for such a person we can have only sympathy and sorrow."

"But one, born to wealth and family pride, surrounded by standards of education and high ideals, who takes or tries to take for a political ally or friend that which belongs to his country, deserves no honor or consideration from the people he has tried to dispossess."

Why Lodge Has Failed

"While he is conscious of his own shortcomings, no one recognizes more quickly than does Mr. Ames the talents possessed by Mr. Lodge—a scholar, a historian, an author of wide and varied experience and whose very length of service ought, under ordinary circumstances, to be a bar to his removal.

"With all his gifts and opportunities he has made such use of them that his continuance in public life depends, not upon his service to the people of his state, but to a political machine. This machine is used as a club for the individual of independent thought and action, while it serves as a willing tool to those of wealth, of influence and of power, seeking undue favors."

"Had he made his successes depend upon principle and not on politics, his position today would be unassailable."

Lodge's Hope in Roosevelt

"The political boss and manipulator of the state, unwilling to follow the policy of 'live and let live,' he has used his great power to assassinate those who dared differ in opinion or principle. It is reported that in his present extremity, fearing to seek reelection on his long public record in congress and in the state, his one hope is that Mr. Roosevelt may create new confidence in his behalf by speaking for him as an old friend."

"It is hard to believe that the ex-president will lend himself to the political support of one, even though a friend, who has consistently violated in this state all the teachings of which he is the great exponent."

"The public state of mind in the state today is the result, not of what has been said against Mr. Lodge, for no one has dared to attack him, but of each individual's own interpretation of his acts and utterances and of the conduct of the machine of which he is the moving force."

The Issue of the Campaign

"The people of the state will realize in such a case that the ex-president could not have the intimate knowledge acquired through sorrowful experience and possessed by each citizen of Massachusetts, and so would appreciate that his support of Mr. Lodge was out of keeping with the facts."

"Massachusetts is the fully able to judge and decide for herself from an experience of some 20 years."

"The Lodge machine and the lobby worked in the senate again this year to successfully defeat the direct primary bill, which had passed the house."

"To the support or defeat of this bill I did not lift a finger," Mr. Lodge, though his passage would have been to my political advantage."

"With direct primaries it is universally admitted that Mr. Lodge would have no possible chance of re-election."

"The issue of the coming campaign will be Lodgeism and political misrule, with the open connivance of the machine lobby with large financial interests to control elections and legislative action."

Will Try to Pledge Candidates

"It is desirable to call the attention of the voters of Massachusetts to the fact that by compelling every candidate for the coming legislature to declare himself, unequivocally, for Mr. Ames or for Mr. Lodge, an opportunity will thereby be given for an expression by the people of their desire at the polls."

"The Lodge machine will make every effort to prevent the pledging of candidates in the belief that unpledged candidates can be controlled by the machine or by money or by corporation influence. To prevent this Mr. Ames will use every endeavor to compel candidates in every district to pledge themselves on this issue, and to this end asks the co-operation of every voter who, believing in fair play, political freedom and independent thought, desires an end of the present political misrule with its machine-lobby control."

"The defeat of Mr. Lodge and the termination of this machine will tend more than anything else to party success, not only in the state but in the nation. It will restore confidence in republican management by divorcing the legislature lobby from the political machine, and by defeating a public official who has so long served the private interests rather than the public good."

HIP INJURED

James Fitzgerald of 13 Wills street, while stepping off a car at the corner of Merrimack and Suffolk streets shortly after five o'clock yesterday afternoon fell and cut his head and sustained bruises about the hip. The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment.

PLAYED BALL ON SUNDAY

John L. Grady, aged 16 years, was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Stephen Castles for playing baseball on the Lord's Day. He will be brought before Judge Holmes in the juvenile session of the police court Friday morning.

Revere Boys Jumped Off a Car

REVERE, June 27.—Walter Stevens, aged 12, son of Anthony Stevens, janitor of the Revere town hall, and Anthony Curran, a lad about the same age, son of John Curran, 228 Park avenue, were probably fatally injured about a year-day afternoon by jumping off an electric car which was traveling at fast speed on Beach street, near Webster street.

The boys had been to the beach together and were on their way to their homes in the central part of the town. They were seen near Grand Army hall by Dr. Joseph E. Lamb, agent of the board of health, jumping on the rear of an electric car which was engaged at the other end of the car. Dr. Lamb recognized the Stevens boy and warned him to stop. The boys then walked toward Broadway till they were out of sight, when they apparently jumped on the rear of another car. A short distance west of the B. & M. R. R. bridge some one shouted at the boys and they jumped from the moving car.

Both were thrown heavily on the stone pavement. The right side of the Stevens boy's head was crushed and his right shoulder was broken. Young Curran struck on his forehead, fracturing his skull. Both were unconscious when picked up. Walter Kirkjian took the boys in his automobile to the office of Dr. J. S. Morley, who ordered them removed to the Frost hospital, Chelsea.

An operation was performed on Anthony Curran, but the hospital authorities give slight encouragement that either boy will live.

U. of America in Boston, the week of August 7.

L.; financial secretary, Michael O'Keefe; recording secretary, George F. O'Leary; board of trustees, William J. King and John Martin; marshal, John Tansy.

WOMEN
OF MIDDLE
AGENeed Lydia E. Pinkham's
Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 118 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that women may expect nature to bring them the Change of Life. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued its use. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—Mrs. SARAH LOUISIANA, 414 S. Livingston St., Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache and nervous prostration.

No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made exclusively from roots and herbs.

DIAMOND NOTES

At Lynn today.

Four home games this week.

Last week was certainly a bad one for Lowell.

We'll be in the first division yet. The Lowell team has too many good players to go bad all the time.

President John J. Taylor and Manager Donnan got busy yesterday, and made arrangements to send several young players to clubs where they can get real work. Barberich was sent to Providence. Manager Jimmie Collins coming to Boston to close the deal. Martin McElaine, a pitcher secured from the University of Maine, will go to Brockton of the New England league. Heine, an infielder, has been secured by Lawrence. Chris Mahoney, the Fordham pitcher, is likely to go to some minor league club.

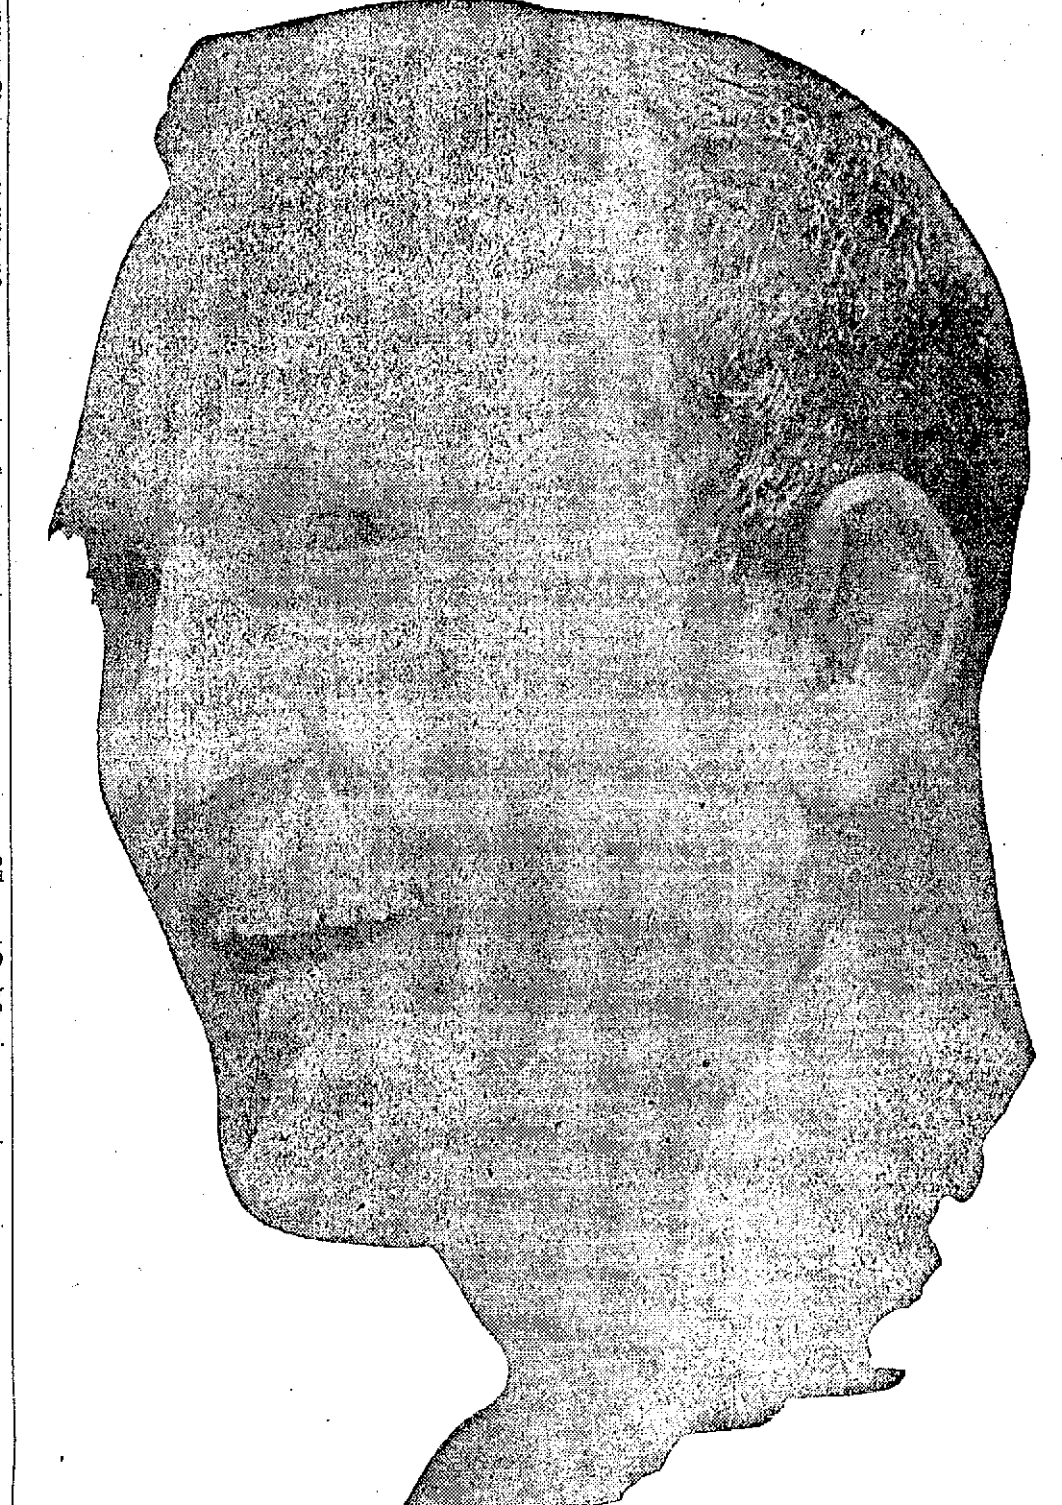

Manager John H. O'Brien of the Fall River baseball club has given Jimmy Canavan, scout for the Detroit American, an option on Pitcher Hugh Redford until July 11 for $2000 cash. Canavan is said to have been very highly impressed with the young fellow's ability, though it is his first year as a professional.

He went to Fall River with a remarkable record for victories and strikeouts in a semi-professional in New York state the past two years, and from the way he has been going in Fall River he bids fair to duplicate the performance. It is possible that the deal will not be closed until Manager Jennings of the Tigers gets a chance to see the other Hugh in action.

Pugsley, the Lowell pitcher pitched to report here any time now, pitched for the Somerset, N. H. team against Dover, Saturday, and Dover won, 2 to 0. Pugsley allowed five hits.

Lowell has had hard luck in its catching department. With Hutton in the game, the team would be several games ahead of its present record.

THE JEFFRIES SMILE AND THE
ONE HE SAYS WON'T COME OFF

JAMES J. JEFFRIES

RENO, Nev., June 27.—If opinions would win a prize fight the coming contest between Jeffries and Johnson is now over, with Jeffries the winner. Many experts on the ground have expressed their opinion that big Jim is a physical marvel and fit to fight the battle of his career. Mike Murphy, trainer of University of Pennsylvania, one of the best judges of athletes in the world, who recently arrived here, says he is amazed at the excellence of Jeff's condition and declares that the big fellow is the finest specimen of a man that he ever witnessed. Billy Muldoon, the former world's champion wrestler and also a splendid judge of an athlete's condition, has expressed himself as amazed at the appearance of the big fellow. "I have never seen him look better in my life," said he. "This, coming from Billy Muldoon, should carry some weight with the men who have not been able to bring themselves to believe that Jeffries is ready to fight. The change in attitude seemed a tonic to the 'hope of the white race.' Not only is he lightning fast in his training stunts but he goes at his work as if he enjoyed it, playing all sorts of tricks upon his attendants and romping like an overgrown boy."

leased by Lowell, is not making good. Lack of control is his failing.

Pocahontas John Smith when he resigned the managerial berth at Lowell was paid a full season's salary. Jimmy Gray told John he could remain the entire season if he desired, but the low spoken veteran sadly said, "it's no use, I can't deliver the goods." Gray paid out $470 for players from California during the spring workout and when they failed to make good, it broke Smith's heart. Smith also worried when the team did not win, and Gray said that John took it so to heart that he was ashamed to go out upon the coaching lines. The owner of the Lowell club and old Pocahontas parted firm friends and one of the best managers and players that ever donned a uniform has likely passed from the New England league forever. Smith was too good a fellow to manage a lot of pampered and spoiled ball tossers, and he realized it after taking another try at the helm. All Lowell fans should think well of John Smith who was always on the level and who worked hard to deliver to them the best team in the circuit.—Lynn News.

Tom McCoy says that Pitcher Osborne looks like the Giant in that old comic opera "Jack in the Beanstalk."

Fred Tenney pulled off a rare stunt when he felled a hunt to third and nipped Big Metz. If Stormstedt and dumped down the first base line when Fred was moving towards third, the big leaguer would have looked like a sucker.—Lynn News.

Billy Hamilton squatted in the shade of the bench yesterday as Uncle Jake Morse gave him a vacation because of his run-in Wednesday with Connolly in this city.

A correspondent for Sporting Life takes exceptions to the assertion that Harry Woodwood's performance at Worcester, June 8, when he pitched 11 innings against the Durrket men and did not allow them a hit or run, is singular. The correspondent says that in a New York state league game played at Utica, Sept. 12, 1907, J. Leo Fairbanks of Utica, pitching for Albany, shut out Utica for 12 innings without a hit or run. The game went 15 innings, Albany winning by the score of 4 to 0. Fairbanks allowed a hit in the 14th inning and another in the 15th. He struck out 16 men and batted only two passes. He made no wild pitch and hit no batsman. Albany played without an error, and earned all of its runs. The only Utica man left on base was Frank Carroll, when he knocked out his second hit in the 14th inning. After getting his hit in the 15th inning Carroll was out in attempting to steal who could seem to play was Barrett, who made 20 runs before he was bowled out. None of the other members of the Mohair eleven went into the double numbers.

The score:

The protested game between the Brookside and Phillips teams was won by the latter, the game being forfeited to them, 9 to 0. In this game the Brookside used, it is alleged, a player who had played with another team in the league, and who, it is said, had not secured his release, which, according to the rules of the league, caused the game to be forfeited.

THE PACIFIC MILLS
Hamilton Print Works

It is reported that the Hamilton Mfg. Co. of this city has sold its print works to the Pacific mills of Lawrence and that about all of the overers and some of the help in the print works were taken immediately at noon today. The report has it that the Pacific mills will take possession in a few weeks or as soon as the odds and ends have been picked up and orders finished that are underway.

Asked if there was any foundation in fact for the report that the print works had been sold, Agent Childs of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. referred the reporter to The Sun to the Boston office and at the Boston office the reporter was informed that Treasurer Sharpe was "out of town for the day" and there was no one there who had heard anything about the purchase.

The print works, of course, is but a small part of the plant of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. In a recent report appearing in a trade paper the worth of the Hamilton print works was estimated at $500,000.

The Hamilton Mfg. Co. was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts in 1825 and has been under the Amory management for twenty-three years. In that time there has been paid out of earnings about $1,500,000 for renewals, and close to $3,000,000 for repairs. The average profit per year has been $108,709 or over 9 per cent. on the capitalization, and the total amount of dividends paid was $221,000—making an average dividend per year in that time of about 5 per cent. The estimate for a going mill is usually figured at about $20 per spindle. The Hamilton Mfg. Co. has 118,200 spindles—no that if we figure the capitalization per spindle at only $10, the total value of the plant will be represented by $1,182,000 or about what it is now selling for on the market. The company, however, has a print works which must be worth $500,000, if it is worth $1, and it has a surplus of $757,000. This gives a total estimate of $2,437,000, or over $600,000 above its par value and more than double the amount for which it is now selling.

The company's property covers an acreage of nine and a half acres of ground, consisting of six mills, print works and storerooms for finished goods and its cotton storeroom which was the pioneer of its kind. The company manufactures flannels, prints, ticks, stripes, drills, sheetings and shirtings; employs 2300 people; consumes about 200,000 pounds of cotton per week and dyes and prints about 1,000,000 yards per week. Its product is sold through Wellington, Sears & Co.

ANOTHER TONG WAR

Two Chinamen Fatally Wounded and One Painfully Injured

NEW YORK, June 28.—The tong war that sleeps but never dies, despite threats, promises and solemn treaties, broke out again yesterday afternoon within the little triangle of narrow streets just off the Bowery known as Chinatown.

In 90 seconds three Chinamen were shot, two of them fatally, a third was painfully wounded and more than 40 shots from heavy-calibered revolvers splattered against the bricks of pavements. In three minutes seven Chinamen were arrested.

It was all over nearly as quickly as it had begun and the remainder of the afternoon the streets were as quiet as they had been an instant before battle and murder broke the stillness.

It had happened that the 2000th anniversary of the founding of the society of the Four Brothers fell on this day of rest, and in its honor the members were to give a banquet in Pell street at 5 o'clock. A monster scarlet flag scoloped in green floated from the banquet hall, and guests began to arrive early from all parts of the city and even from neighboring towns.

Sunday is market day for Chinatown. Then the streets are thick with nightsores, then chop-suey restaurants thrive best and in remote back rooms the dice rattle faster and the dominoes click sharper.

It was in the midst of this restlessness, shuffling throng, down thick with policemen, that the shooting began at just 4 o'clock. There is no certainty of the precise provocation, but it is generally understood in Chinatown that the Ong Leong tong did not relish the fact that Chu Hen, recently acquitted of the murder of Ong Leong tong man, was to be the guest of honor.

The Hip Sing tong, the Ong Leong tong and the Four Brothers occupy each their own street, and no prudent member of one society trespasses on the territory of another. Pickets had been posted today at the ends of Pell street by the Four Brothers, and scouts of the Ong Leong tong patrolled the adjacent boundary of Mott street.

There were more policemen on the beat than usual, both because this was Sunday and because of the banquet.

Somewhere stepped over the line. Somebody began to shoot.

It is doubtful if any white man will ever know who trespassed and who punished, because the rain of bullets came too fast from too many directions at once for the eye to catch the first flash.

And no Chinaman will ever tell.

Sen Chin, the inevitable innocent bystander, was the first to fall, shot through the abdomen. He will die. Chu Foo was shot behind the ear and in the back. He died last night. Chu Pan was shot through the left thigh. His injuries are not serious.

Thus far it has been impossible to learn to which tong the individual wounded belong. All were taken to a hospital.

The police made a scramble for everybody that ran, but there were more honest fugitives than combatants, and doorways are thicker in Chinatown than burrows in a rabbit warren. Seven of whom the police say they saw shooting and on others revolvers were found.

The reserves were called out, a cordon was drawn tight about the entire quarter, all visitors were barred, and no curiosity wagons were allowed last night. Then the interrupted banquet of the Four Brothers, with Chu Hen as the guest of honor, went on.

RESISTED ARREST

Man Killed Two Officers and Wounded Three Others

OCILLA, Ga., June 27.—Barred out of his home near here, W. H. Bostwick who last night killed two officers and seriously wounded three others, was still successfully resisting the police and sheriff's posse at an early hour today. The deputies were inclined to wait the arrival of the militia called out shortly before midnight by Governor Brown.

With Bostwick in the house were six of his children, all small and some of them girls.

Four officers were sent last night to arrest Bostwick and he opened fire on them as soon as they neared the house. Steve Davis, the Ocilla chief of police, and Deputy Sheriff Sheffield were instantly killed. Sheriff J. P. McAnis was fatally wounded and Deputy T. C. Bass was shot in the abdomen and seriously hurt. The Merrimack Women's Store

ANNOUNCES ITS

JULY REDUCTION SALE

Beginning, Today, June 27

Notwithstanding we have done the most careful merchandising, we find ourselves with heavy stocks which positively must be got down to reasonable bounds before our inventory, July 31st.

So we are stealing this week from our regular season, and are inaugurating this July Reduction Sale today, instead of waiting until the passing of the "Fourth," as is our custom.

ANNUAL OUTING

Of the Five Scandinavian Societies

Midsummer's Day, the summer festival of the Scandinavians, was observed Saturday at Nabnasset grove in West Chelmsford by the five Scandinavian societies in this city. The day was ideal for the festivities, and about 1000 Swedes, Norwegians and Danes made their way to the pleasure grounds, where a delightful program of games and sports of the mother country was carried out.

During the forenoon several hundred made their way to the picnic grounds, but the majority of the people did not arrive until during the early part of the afternoon. Many of those in attendance wore the costumes of the Scandinavian countries, while others wore quaint and pretty head dresses.

In front of the pavilion was erected a mammoth majestans or midsummer pole. This was twined with laurel and other greenery and at the top were the flags of America, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

About 2.30 o'clock Mr. Torsten Reensterna welcomed the guests. His address was in English and during the course of his remarks he said the hope that the bond of friendship of the three races would continue for years to come. At the conclusion of his speech he was greeted with cheers, after which "America" was sung.

A hand perched on the top of the roof of the pavilion then hit up an old country polka and the men and women who were in costume danced about the pole. Anna Bernstrom appeared in the costume of Boshulan, a town in southern Sweden. Anna Svensson, in the costume of a Jemtland maiden. Jennie L. Ingestad and Mabel Erikson were in Norwegian national costumes, with bodices of bright red and with skirts of darker hue. Julia Johnson represented Wingok.

Hilda Persson represented Skane, a portion of South Sweden, and Anna Peterson was in the national costume of Norway, as were Jennie and Laura Christenson. Mada Ehnstrom wore the costume of Dalarna. Frederick Ehnstrom was in the dress of Wingok, and Ida Alexander wore the costume of Bohuslan. Rena Svensson wore the pretty costume of Smaland, and Dorothy Kristofferson was in the dress of a Norwegian peasant maid from Tyrsel. Helga Westgaard wore the costume of a Hedmark woman from Norway. Caroline Olsen and Borghild Olsen wore the Norwegian national costume.

Little four year old Astrid Persson appeared in the costume of Skane, Sweden.

Then came the sports. The first contest was a tug-of-war between the single and married men which was won by the former. The single men's team was made up as follows:

Eliaison, John Nelson, Peterson, M. Anderson and Swanson. The losing team was: Nystrom, Wikander, Persson, Swanson and Carlstrom. The prize was $5, the captain of the winning team got the odd dollar.

The 100 yard dash for girls was captured by Fanny Anderson while Anna Svensson came in second.

There were but two teams which finished in the three-legged race. Bergman and M. Anderson won the first prize while Oscar Lindquist and Gustaf Bratt came in second.

In the egg race for young women there were 19 starters. Alma Johnson won first place and the second place was captured by Anna Svensson.

The sack race, 100 yards, was won by Wesley Laurin, with a man named Hush second.

In the ball driving contest, Anna Svensson, who had previously captured two prizes, took the first prize, a rug, driving 27 nails in two minutes. Mrs. Lillian Peterson was second, driving 17 nails.

The shoe race was won by George Wiklund. Arthur Nilsson was second, and he captured a ball, glove and bat. The 40 yards dash for boys was won by William Berg with George Palmgren, second. The 50 yards dash for girls under 10 years of age, was won by Ellen Peterson, Norma Reensterna was second.

The final sport of the afternoon was a "roughnut" race. The participants in the race had to start for the hanging rolls 50 yards away, rush up to them, eat them and then run to the final tape. Edith Nystrom got the first place, and Cecilia Anderson was second.

A basket supper was enjoyed at six o'clock and after the contents of the baskets had been disposed of there was music, dancing and bonfires.

The officers who had charge of the affair were as follows:

Swedish Mutual Benefit society, Torsten Reensterna, general chairman of the day, and Harold Horndale, and A. P. Hallenborg; Norwegian Sick Benefit society, John Silversen, T. Hansson and H. Hansen; Norske, No. 75, Order of Wusa, Albert Carlsson, Carl Bernston and Niles Nelson; John Erickson council, No. 1833, Royal Arcanum, John Lund, Victor Platin and Gustaf Johnson; and Court Scandinavia, Foresters of America, Nils Anderson, Emil Persson and Frank Palmgren. Assisting these members of the general committee were: Erik A. Johnson, Per Ekengren, C. Myhr, Seyerlin Nelson, Erik Hedman, August Eliason, Gustaf Johnson, Carl Christenson, Anders Johnson and C. P. Westson.

AT SALEM DEPOT

Balloon Massachusetts Made Landing

The balloon "Massachusetts," belonging to the New England Aero club, carrying Charles J. Gilden, Elmer Van Valkenberg, of South Framingham, and Mrs. Merton N. Gilden, of this city, which rose from the works of the Lowell Gas Light Co. in School street, at 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, landed an hour and a half later on George Street, in Salem, Mass., N. H., about 15 miles from the starting point.

The occupants of the basket had a most delightful trip even though they did not travel as long a distance as they would have had there been a brisker breeze.

Four automobiles filled with friends of the people in the basket followed the balloon, and arrived at the field where the landing was made at the same time as the balloon. Mr. Gilden after packing up his balloon returned to his home in Boston.

TO SIGN TREATY

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Ambassador Bryce will journey to Washington from the summer home of his British embassy in New Hampshire this week for the purely ministerial function of uniting with Secretary Knox in the signing of a treaty providing for the adjustment of certain pecuniary claims of citizens of the United States or Great Britain against each other.

These are what may be regarded as "left over claims," that is, those which were not included in various conventions and arbitrations during the past century. No one knows the sum total involved, though it cannot be considerable.

A RELIGIOUS RIOT

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, June 27.—A religious riot occurred before the quarters of the Basque club today, and there were 100 wounded. Municipal guards charged the disturbers, killing one man and wounding seven others.

TWO MEN SHOT

Woman Hit With a Cannon Ball

WORCESTER, June 27.—An Italian row, in which baseball clubs, cannon balls and revolvers were used with good effect, was stopped after two men had been shot and a woman hit over the head with one of the cannon balls yesterday. None of the victims were seriously hurt.

Joe Pajisettito was shot in the left arm, and Gusto Tivino was shot in the hand with a 33 calibre revolver which the police claim was wielded by Pasquale Pajisettito, brother of one of the injured men. Both were taken to the City hospital for treatment.

Pasquale was arrested charged with carrying a dangerous weapon and his wife was treated for a large scalp wound at the police station. The police were unable to determine what caused the trouble. A hundred people were attracted to the scene of the fight in Mulberry street court and the police had trouble to disperse them.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 27.—

"We'll settle this thing right now," said David Downes, as he reached for his rifle and jamming in a 30-20 cartridge, fired point blank at his mother-in-law, Mrs. Iva Woodard, who stood so near to him that the muzzle almost touched her.

She fell dead as the slug crashed through her brain. Then as quickly as Downes could throw in another cartridge he fired at his wife, who also fell dead in her tracks.

The crazed man then placed the muzzle in his mouth and sent a shot into his own brain.

The three lives were snuffed out in 15 seconds.

Downes is a farm hand, aged 38, and with his wife and their 5-year-old daughter lived in rather humble circumstances in a small house two miles from this village on the road to Prentiss.

Mrs. Downes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Iva Woodard, live directly across the road. Saturday night Mrs. Downes and her daughter stayed at the Woodard house and yesterday morning they went home, where they found David Downes. With them went Mr. and Mrs. Woodard and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson relatives, and there was a sort of family reunion.

While the circumstances which led up to the shooting vary because of the rapid progress of the triple tragedy, it appears that the wife and mother-in-law of Downes upbraided him because he had been so cross to Mrs. Downes, who declared she was going to leave him and take up her residence with her parents.

Downes said that he would try to do better and pleaded with his wife to remain. She appeared determined to leave, however.

Then suddenly reaching for his rifle, which stood behind him, he fired the three fatal shots.

At the first shot Woodard and the Gibsons fled in terror. Neighbors summoned physicians, but they could do nothing.

C. M. Lombard, first selectman, took charge and the house was placed under guard pending the arrival of the coroner, Charles E. Rackliffe of Oldtown.

Downes has always had a good reputation for honesty and industry. He married his wife, who was 28, about five years ago. Recently rumors that they had quarreled have been known, but were not considered more than family jars.

GREAT WILD WEST

RANCH 101 OF MILLER BROTHERS TO BE HERE JULY 6

The famous 101 ranch, of Bliss, Oklahoma, whose Wild West Show is coming to this city for two performances on Wednesday, July 6, is essentially a young man's enterprise. None of the trio of brothers who own and operate it has attained the forty-year mark. Joseph C. Miller is president of the family corporation; George T. is secretary and general director, and Zack T. assumes active charge of the tremendous live stock transaction.

The genesis of the largest ranch in the country was in 1871, when George W. Miller, father of the family, then a young Kentuckian, rode through the Indian territory behind a bunch of Texas steers. He had gone west with a few dollars and a lot of Kentucky wisdom about horses and cattle. He saw a chance to make money by buying Texas steers where they were born, driving them on a long feed through the grassy Indian territory, and shipping them by railroad to St. Louis and Chicago from Baxter Springs, Kansas, which at that period was one of the snappiest towns on earth.

He trailed down into Texas, bought a bunch of steers for $8 per head and drove them up into Kansas, consuming six cents by the way, and sold them for $12 a head.

The next year he started back to Texas with half of the proceeds in a coin belt about his waist and the rest in a cigar box, all in gold. A Mexican herder stole the cigar box, and Mr. Miller had to return with half a drove. But the year following he loaded a wagon train with bacon, canned goods and calico, and started south. The Mexican herders could not steal these, and he laid the foundation for the family fortune.

During his long and lonely expeditions through the Indian territory George Miller picked up his own trails, and the one he oftenest followed lay along the Arkansas river, where the grass was long and juicy. This afterward became the reservation of the Ponca, Otoe and Missouri Indians. Mr. Miller had determined to own it some day.

day. He settled in Kansas, near Winfield, but the southern lands were ever in his mind.

In the course of time Oklahoma was opened to the white settlement, and a youth sat at noon on a thoroughbred Kentucky racer, near the Chillicothe Indian school, a few miles south of Arkansas City, Kansas. Surrounding him were thousands of home-hungry persons, in naked wagons, a horse and a foot, all feverishly intent on making the race into the new land for a homestead. The richest prizes lay along the river courses and speed and endurance were the essentials. Many looked with envy upon the blooded racer and his exuberant rider. As the sun reached the meridian, a United States army officer raised his pistol and fired. His troopers sprang aside and loosed the great army of homeseekers.

Out of the mass leaped the Kentucky bay, heading straight for the south. From scores of other points along the line likewise rushed out other men and other horses, aiming, too, for the Cherokee tracts. But the Kentucky beast had the lead. He disappeared at the horizon before his slower companions were fully on their journey.

It was a ride of forty miles, but before sunset he had reached a bend in the Salt Fork of the Arkansas river on the edge of the reservation. The youth sprang from his horse and planted a flag in the ground. The dumb animal sank to his knees and died; the youth fell beside him and slept long.

The youth was "Joe" Miller, today president of the vast ranch which began with his wild ride.

MANUFACTURES

EXPORTS THE LARGEST IN OUR HISTORY

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Exports of manufactures in May were larger than in any earlier month in the history of our export trade, and for the full fiscal year 1910 will be larger than in any earlier fiscal year. The total value of the manufactures exported in the month of May was 71 million dollars, including in this term both manufactures ready for consumption and manufactures for further use in manufacturing, and for the 11 months ending with May amounted to 689 million dollars, indicating that June, the 12th month of the year, will certainly break the record for the fiscal year 1910 above that of any of its predecessors. The total value of manufactures exceeded the high record of 1908. Should the June exports of manufactures equal those of May, for which the figures are just at hand, the total for the fiscal year 1910 would amount to 760 million dollars. In the 11 months ending with May manufacturers form 44 per cent of the exports, a materially higher percentage than in any earlier year.

Not only will the value of manufactures exported in 1910 exceed that of any earlier year, but the value of manufacturers' materials imported will also be larger than in any earlier year. The total value of manufacturers' materials imported in the 11 months ending with May is 793 million dollars, and for the month of May 85 million, indicating that the total for the full year will be fully 850 million dollars, against 761 million in 1907, the former high record year.

THE LYNN BANDIT

Tells How the Daring Robbery Was Planned

LYNN, June 27.—The principal scenes in the tragedy of Saturday, when Thomas A. Landregan, shoe manufacturer, and Patrolman James H. Carroll were murdered by three desperadoes, were yesterday visited by thousands of people.

Besides Lynn residents visitors from neighboring places gathered in large numbers at the place on Oxford and Willow streets where Landregan and Carroll were shot down and the robbers started on their run with the bag containing the $4000 the murdered men were carrying to the shoe factory to pay off the help.

The next place of great interest was the woods and brush field near Pine Grove cemetery and the corner of Washington and Boston streets. At the latter place the man giving the name of Andy Epsom was shot by Patrolman Thompson.

In the woods groups of men, women and children walked around pointing out places where the robbers were brought to bay and where the cordons of police closed in on them. The spot of the latter suddenly dropped. The officer, the arrested man says, did not know he had killed Joe.

Dr. Needlebaum of Boston came to Lynn yesterday and had a talk with Iwanowski. He thought the young man came from the same place as he did in Austria, but decided this was not the case.

Resemblance to Lett
Of the scores who viewed the body of the dead bandit yesterday one man expressed an opinion that there was a great similarity between the dead man and one of the associates of Gutman, the bandit who was shot and killed in the Forest Hills cemetery in July two years ago.

This visitor, who was from Boston, had an opportunity at the time of the Jamaica Plain excitement to examine many of the alleged companions of Gutman, and on one occasion he visited the house on Oak Grove terrace, Roxbury, where Gutman lived up to the day of the shooting up of the McManus & Wintersen barroom, which was the first act in the Jamaica Plain tragedy.

On the night when he visited the Oak Grove terrace boarding house, he saw three of the dwellers and talked to one of them the others pleading that they did not understand English, although they were interested listeners of the conversation that ensued.

During the questioning a strongly built, light complexioned man came from one of the rooms and in a foreign language asked some questions, and, according to the man who viewed the body yesterday, the resemblance of the dead bandit to that Lett is very pronounced, even to the brown curly hair. The only discrepancy in the descripwhere the dead bandit was found and the place where Wankowski the man locked up, made his last stand and surrendered, attracted many visitors.

Epsom, the wounded bandit, was questioned and for more than an hour officers and interpreters stood at his bedside and endeavored to get his story. He was born in the province of Galicia, Austria, he said, and came to this country seven months ago in company with Wankowski, the bandit arrested. He said he first knew "Joe," the dead man, in New York. What "Joe's" full name was he did not know, he said, and neither did he know the name of the man at police headquarters. He met the latter on the steamer coming across, he said.

Epsom, gasping at times and evidently in great pain from his wounds, said tion of the bandit and the unknown Lett is that the bandit has a short, stubby mustache of a sandy color. That, however, might have grown since.

While the Boston visitor would not positively identify the bandit as one of the men he saw, he was satisfied that the resemblance was so pronounced that it was worth investigating, which the police agreed they would do.

He further supplied the police with names given to him as those of the three men he talked to as well as information regarding other inmates of the house on Oak Grove terrace. The name of the man whom he believed that the dead man resembled is said to be Vosberg or Volberg.

Today the police through an interpreter will investigate Wankowski, the bandit under arrest, as re-that before he came to this country he was a smuggler, carrying articles across the Austrian-Russian frontier. Four years ago his father was killed by a Russian officer, Galicia, where he says he was born. He is the northernmost province of Austria and on the Russian frontier.

He saved up enough money to pay a passage to this country and his arrival kept in New York since his arrival until last week, when he came to Boston with the other two men. He has a mother, two sisters and two brothers in Austria, he says.

So far as details connected with the robbery and murder the police were unable to gain anything from the wounded man. He repeatedly said he knew nothing about the others and took but little interest when told one was dead and the other arrested, except to say that he supposed he would be killed also.

Watched for Two Weeks

Again was Iwanowski, the bandit under arrest, interviewed by Chief Burke and Deputy Bartlett. He said he knew the others only by the names of Andy and Joe and displayed absolutely no interest when reminded that one was dead and the other dying.

He said that for at least two weeks the movements of Mr. Landregan in securing the money for the weekly payroll had been watched and that the whole affair was planned. He did not of the shooting, he says, and in this he is corroborated by eye-witnesses of the affair.

He is certain an officer killed his companion "Joe," for he says he saw the officer shoot at "Joe" and the head gards the information, and it is believed that he may be induced to talk. Iwanowski was unknown to the visitor.

LARCENY IS CHARGED

Man Arrested in Lawrence for Lowell Police

Cornelius Reardon, aged 23 years, was arrested in Lawrence this morning by two inspectors of the police department in that city on a warrant issued by the Lowell police charging him with the larceny of a large amount of silverware belonging to Mrs. Kate Hornbrook, who conducts a lodging house at 69 Tyler street. While none of the silver was recovered and he denies that he ever stole the goods the police claim to have enough of evidence against him to convict him.

According to the story given out by the local police Reardon had been lodging at Mrs. Hornbrook's house on Friday, May 20, he disappeared without even paying his board. At the same time Mrs. Hornbrook discovered that some of her valuable silver service was missing. While the goods ta-

FOUND DYING

Bostwick Had Killed Two Men and Wounded Three

ATLANTA, Ga., June 27.—W. H. Bostwick, the desperado who killed two men and wounded three at his home near Ocala yesterday, was found dying in his barbed wire cage early today when the Fitzgerald company of the National Guard rushed and captured the house. He expired within an hour. The five children who were in the house with him were rescued uninjured. It is supposed that a bullet fired during the fight with the posse last night struck him. Sheriff J. P. McInnes, one of those wounded, died today.

The Fitzgerald company upon arrival today promptly rushed the house, which had been the scene of a fierce fire of bullets all night. For fear of hurting the children the soldiers did not fire, but moved upon the place at double time. The first ones kicked in the door and with drawn revolvers entered. Bostwick was found on the floor unconscious. The children, terrified, huddled near.

The battle of last night was one of the bloodiest and most picturesque in the history of the state.

COL. ROOSEVELT

Will be in Boston Tomorrow

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 27.—Theodore Roosevelt spent the early part of the day in an attempt to catch up with some of the work which is waiting for him. He kept closely at home and busied himself with his correspondence. When he left the White House there were a number of matters which he was obliged to drop abruptly and which he is now winding up.

The former president spent some time today in preparing for his trip to Boston tomorrow. His plans for the trip have not yet been completed and he is not in a position to announce what, if any, political conferences will be held in Massachusetts.

NO OPERATION

NEW YORK, June 27.—Reports that an operation is to be performed on the throat of Theodore Roosevelt were emphatically denied today by Dr. Walter F. Chappell, who was said to have had an engagement to attend the colonel. Dr. Chappell said: A newspaper stated that an engagement had been made for me to meet Theodore Roosevelt at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat hospital and there perform an operation upon his throat. It is absurdly false from beginning to end. In the first place I have not been in communication with Colonel Roosevelt since his return and from other sources I have heard that the affection of his throat is trivial.

The officials at the Manhattan hospital denied that any engagement had been made there by Colonel Roosevelt.

AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., June 27.—The Dartmouth college seniors today celebrated class day with all the traditional observances and time honored customs.

Led by Clark W. Tobin of Dorchester, Mass., captain of last year's football team and the first marshal of the class, the seniors marched into the old chapel in Dartmouth hall, where the first of the formal exercises were held. Other speakers in the little chapel and the little park were Class President

JURORS FOUGHT

Over the Jeffries-Johnson Bout

CHICAGO, June 27.—At 11 a. m. today the jury which is considering the Brown bribery case had been out 67 hours. There was no apparent sign of an agreement.

"Boys," said Judge McShure today to the reporters, "it is quite useless to guess how the jury stands. Nobody knows. I don't know myself. I saw in one of the papers that the jurymen have been engaged in a fistie encounter. There was nothing to it. Jurors who are agreed as to the verdict got into friendly arguments to the relative merits of Jeffries and Johnson. This developed into a wrestling match. It was not serious."

Asked how long the jury might stay out, the judge said: "I want to leave the city with my family next Friday. If they stand 6 to 8 at that time probably I will discharge them. If it is 11 to 1, or 10 to 2—something like that—I may hold them still longer."

"DAKOTA DAN"

Is Denied a Trial by Jury

BOSTON, June 27.—The Dakota claimant to the Russell property whose trial in the Middlesex probate court consumed six months, was today denied a trial by a jury on his appeal from the decision throwing out his claims.

THE HEIRS LOSE

COURT SAYS THEY CANNOT SHARE IN ESTATE

BOSTON, June 27.—There was a legal echo of the fatalities connected with the sinking of the Steamer Republic on Jan. 23, 1909, in the supreme court today, where it was held that the heirs of Mrs. Mary F. Lynch, one of the victims, were not entitled to part of the estate of her husband, Eugene Lynch, who died three days after the disaster.

Mrs. Lynch was instantly killed when the Florida rammed the Republic, but Mr. Lynch was taken off the steamer badly injured, and died in a hospital. The heirs of Mrs. Lynch claimed that the power of appointment under her will was exercised by her, giving them a claim on the property of Mr. Lynch. This the court denied.

TIRE EXPLODED

AND MAN MET WITH PAINFUL INJURY

ASHBY, Mass., June 27.—George Shuttleworth of the firm of Simon and Shuttleworth, fruit importers, 100 Lyly street, England, received a broken left wrist and numerous bruises about his body when an automobile in which he was riding slipped and crashed into an outbuilding on the Brooks farm here today. Three of his companions were shaken up, but not badly injured. The automobile was driven along the road at a moderate rate of speed when one of the forward tires exploded, rendering the machine unmanageable.

THE YALE CREWS

GALES, PERRY, June 27.—The Thames was ruffled by wind today and the crews did not attempt much work. They peddled about near the quaiets this morning, and later were photographed. A visitor today was William H. (Pa.) Corbin, '93 of Hartford, a Yale football player and oarsman.

HAS TYPHOID FEVER

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Another midshipman of the practice squadron of the United States naval academy has fallen a victim of typhoid fever. The navy department received a telegram from the commander of the squadron, now in Plymouth, Eng., stating that Midshipman Richard Evelyn, second class on the Massachusetts had been transferred to the naval hospital suffering from typhoid fever. It was reported that there were no other cases. Byrd comes from Virginia. When the squadron arrived in England Midshipman G. A. Smith of Illinois, stationed on the Iowa, was taken to a hospital with typhoid fever.

TO HAVE ELECTRIC ROADS

NEW YORK, June 27.—Reoul Dev, acting consul-general of Turkey in this city announced today that the ministry of public works in Constantinople has invited bids for the construction of an extensive system of electric trolley lines in Constantinople and vicinity. To the successful bidder are offered the franchises of five lines decided upon by the government and such lines as the bidder may propose and the government may find desirable to include in the concession.

LYMAN SCHOOL INQUIRY

BOSTON, June 27.—Cary Dreyfus of Boston, another of the trustees of the Lyman School for Boys, was before the special legislative investigating committee today and said that he believed in humane treatment of the boys but that corporal punishment was sometimes necessary.

An affidavit from a former inmate was read in which it was stated that corporal punishment had been used on him by means of a piece of hose soaked in brine, and that he could not sit down for two weeks.

MILITIA INVITED

Chief Marshal H. O'Sullivan Invites Militia Boys to Participate—Local Companies Preparing for Their Annual Camp Duty

That Chief Marshal Humphrey O'Sullivan means to make the monster Hibernian parade of August 24 a memorable event is evidenced by the fact that he has extended an invitation to all of the local militia companies to act as escort for the Hibernians in the big parade. As the militiamen knew what an invitation from Mr. O'Sullivan means there is little doubt as to the acceptance of the invitation.

Company M it would appear will be unable to attend as the Ninth Regiment, of which it is a part, has been ordered to Pine Plains from August 23

the day preceding the local parade, until August 30 for maneuvers such as the Sixth regiment went through at the same place two years ago.

The local members of the Sixth regiment are enthusiastic over the fact that they are to go into regimental camp at South Framingham from July 23 to 30. South Framingham is a welcome name after the strenuous times at Pine Plains. Preparations are under way at the armory at present for the annual tour of duty. The local companies of the Sixth regiment have taken no action on Mr. O'Sullivan's invitation as yet owing to the near approach of the camp season.

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT

Seeks the Extradition of Porter Charlton

ROME, June 27.—The foreign office today decided to follow the provisions of the Italian-American extradition conventions and to ask for the extradition of Porter Charlton, leaving it with the American authorities to accept or refuse the request.

As soon as it was known here that the confessed slayer was under arrest in the United States, the ministry of justice recognized the unusual situation in which the Italian authorities were placed and forthwith referred the whole matter to the foreign office. Extradition between Italy and the United States is provided for in the conventions of 1868 and 1884, but Italy has always held that these treaties did not cover the cases of Italian citizens who, having committed crimes in the United States, escaped to their native country. In such instances the government has insisted that the accused be tried in the courts of their country. Several times requests for extraditions of Italian criminals, from the American state department, have been refused.

Nevertheless, in the present case the government determined to put the matter up to Washington. Should the American state department follow the precedent established by this country and refuse the extradition of Charlton, its action will be construed as a recognition of the Italian interpretation of extradition conventions, providing, of course, that the refusal is not based upon the grounds that the prisoner is insane or for any reason other than that he is an American citizen.

WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 27.—With the class day exercises on the campus at the celebration of the 70th commencement at Wesleyan university continued today. The president's reception during the late afternoon will be followed by the reunion banquets of the returning classes.

COMMENCEMENT AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 27.—Commencement week at Harvard, which began yesterday with the anniversary services of the class of 1835, continued today with reunions of many other classes and the meeting of the dental school alumni at the new building on Longwood avenue, Boston.

The law school celebration will come tomorrow, with Attorney General Wickham as the orator, followed on Wednesday by the commencement exercises at which Theodore Roosevelt will be present. A few hours before the former president takes his place as presiding officer of the Harvard Alumni Association in Memorial Hall, his successor will pass through a part of Cambridge on his way to his summer home in Beverly.

Phi Beta Kappa day on Thursday will be marked by the oration by Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York, while Professor Henry Van Dyke of Princeton will read the poem.

As side show to the great week of the university will be the Harvard-Yale baseball game in New York, and the rowing regatta between the two universities at New London.

DEALS WRIGHT QUALIFIED
WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 27. Deals C. Wright of Boston, qualified for the final singles in the all-England tennis championship tournament today, defeating A. H. Lowe in the semi-finals, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Wright's opponent in the finals will be A. F. Williams, the New Zealand player who was a member of the Australasian team which successfully defended the Davis trophy a year ago.

A CHIMNEY FIRE
An alarm from box 116 at 1:25 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a chimney fire in the house owned by Elizabeth Hill at 162 Chapel street. A stream from the extinguishers put an end to the blaze.

PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Was Entered in Behalf of the Captured Bandit

LYNN, June 23.—Wasili Iwanowski, the captured bandit, appeared in the district court here to answer to a double charge of murder, in connection with the killing on Saturday of Thomas A. Landregan and Policeman James H. Carroll. By direction of Judge Lummus, a plea of not guilty was entered and the prisoner was held without bail for the grand jury.

Iwanowski, as he now calls himself, after previously giving the names of Boll Kovansky and Baccini Wladowski, did not make any plea when called upon to answer to the charge in court today. There were several witnesses waiting to be heard, and the prisoner looked them over and then said, through an interpreter who had notified him that he should plead to the charge against him: "They can tell what they know; they probably know more about it than any one else."

When Iwanowski was removed from the court room and taken to the street, the wagon in which he was driven to a photographer's studio was followed by a crowd of more than 200 persons. Several photographs of the alleged murderer were taken, after which he was driven to Salem, where he was placed in the Essex county jail in that city.

MILL CHANGES

Will Bring Some Benefit to City

The proposed absorption of the Hamilton print works by the Pacific mills of Lawrence will bring several compensations for Lowell. The Hamilton company will not reduce the number of its employees but will enlarge in other directions and the manufacture of other fabrics. The changes in the buildings will benefit the property along Central street quite materially. Instead of having a lot of unsightly buildings and the blank Hamilton wall, good only for the display of show bills, there will be attractive stores from the canal bridge to Jackson street. All the offensive odors from the print works will be eliminated as will to a large extent the smoke nuisance from the big chimney rising over Central street.

The new works, which doubtless are occupied by enterprising merchants so that this part of the street will undergo a vast improvement not only in appearance but for business purposes. This will be a great improvement to Central street and one that will add to the beauty and commercial value of the street. Rumor has it that the Merrimack Print works may soon be absorbed in a similar manner, although fairly successful. The great tendency is to consolidate this business in large plants so that the work can be done more cheaply by running steadily on large orders instead of as the case in small plants, continually changing on small orders.

It is rumored that a yarn mill will be built on the space to be vacated to the rear of Central street.

A great surprise to the owners of others in the print works Saturday. One man fainted and was taken home in a hack.

DEMPSEY'S PLANT

Narrowly Escaped Destruction by Fire

But for the prompt discovery of the flames and the quick work of the Boston firemen the large wholesale liquor plant, in Boston, of P. Dempsey & Co. of this city, would have been destroyed by fire Saturday evening and a stock of domestic and imported liquors of an estimated value of nearly $100,000 consumed.

The P. Dempsey company occupies a six story building in Merrimack street, using every floor in the building. The entire plant shut down at five o'clock Saturday evening. Among its employees are several Lowell men.

About seven o'clock an employee of a stable nearby noticed smoke issuing from a window on the fourth floor of the building and he immediately pulled in an alarm from a neighboring box.

The firemen discovered a lively blaze on the fourth floor which is used as a cooper shop which is burned through the ceiling to the fifth floor on which is stored a costly stock of spirits, etc. It is supposed that one of the employees of the cooper shop left a hot branding iron on the woodwork, which caused the fire. The woodwork and the partitions were quite severely burned, but the stock for the most part escaped. The fire burned within a few feet of ten barrels of alcohol, while several carloads of excelsior escaped by a few feet. The damage to the stock will be comparatively light.

ES ATTACKS LODGE

HON. BUTLER AMES, M. C.

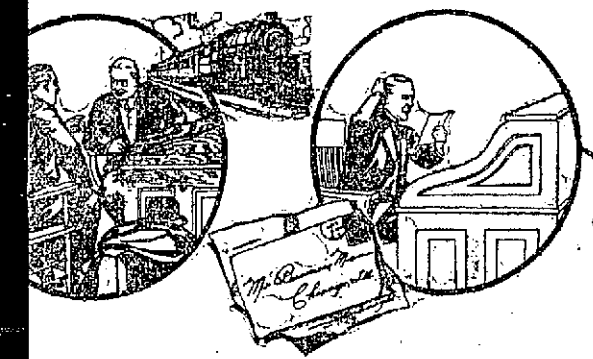

es Formal Announcement of andidacy for the Senate

STON, June 27.—Representative Ames yesterday announced his candidacy for the Senate, to succeed Senator Mr. Ames' statement of his now makes the official of his candidacy for the Senate, having tried in someone else to lead the loss Lodge and his political machine, backed by all the nations and by all the state patronage at his command, for many years as a ready tool to crush all political endeavors or opinions not by Mr. Lodge.

But one, born to wealth and family pride, surrounded by standards of education and high ideals, who takes or tries to take for a political ally or friend that which belongs to his country, deserves no honor or consideration from the people he has tried to dispossess.

Why Lodge Has Failed

quickly than does Mr. Ames the talents possessed by Mr. Lodge—a scholar, a historian, an author of wide and varied experience and whose very length of service ought, under ordinary circumstances, to be a bar to his removal.

"With all his gifts and opportunities he has made such use of them that his continuance in public life depends, not upon his service to the people of his state, but to a political machine. This machine is used as a club for the individual of independent thought and action, while it serves as a willing tool to those of wealth, of influence and of power, seeking undue favors.

"Had he made his successes depend upon principle and not on politics, his position today would be unassailable. Lodge's Hope in Roosevelt

"The political boss and manipulator of the state, unwilling to follow the policy of 'live and let live,' he has used his great power to assess those who dared differ in opinion or principle. It is reported that in his present extremity, fearing to seek reelection on his long public record in Congress and in the state, his one hope is that Mr. Roosevelt may create new confidence in his behavior by speaking for him as an old friend.

"It is hard to believe that the ex-president will lend himself to the political support of one, even though a friend, who has consistently violated in this state all the teachings of which he is the great exponent.

"The public state of mind in the state today is the result, not of what has been said against Mr. Lodge, for no one has dared to attack him, but of each individual's own interpretation of his acts and utterances and of the conduct of the machine of which he is the moving force.

The Issue of the Campaign

"The people of the state will realize in such a case that the ex-president could not have the intimate knowledge acquired through sorrowful experience and possessed by each citizen of Massachusetts, and so would appreciate that his support of Mr. Lodge was out of keeping with the facts.

"Massachusetts will be fully able to judge and decide for herself from an experience of some 20 years.

"The Lodge machine and the lobby, worked in the Senate again this year to successfully defeat the direct primary bill, which had passed the house.

"To the support or defeat of this bill I did not lift so much as a finger, though its passage would have been to my political advantage.

"With direct primaries it is universally admitted that Mr. Lodge would have no possible chance of re-election.

"The issue of the coming campaign will be Lodgeism and political misrule, with the open connivance of the machine lobby with large financial interests to control elections and legislative action.

Will Try to Pledge Candidates

"It is desirable to call the attention of the voters of Massachusetts to the fact that by compelling every candidate for the coming legislature to declare himself, unequivocally, for Mr. Ames or Mr. Lodge, an opportunity will thereby be given to expression by the people of their desire at the polls.

"The Lodge machine will make every effort to prevent the pledging of candidates in the belief that unpledged candidates can be controlled by the machine or by money or by corporation influence. To prevent this Mr. Ames will use every endeavor to compel candidates in every district to pledge themselves on this issue, and to this end asks the co-operation of every voter who, believing in fair play, political freedom and independent thought, desires an end of the present political misrule with its machine-lobby control.

"The defeat of Mr. Lodge and the termination of this machine will tend more than anything else to party success, not only in the state but in the nation. It will restore confidence in republican management by breaking the legislature lobby from the political machine, and by defeating a public official who has so long served the private interests rather than the public good."

HIP INJURED

James Fitzgerald of 13 Willis street, while stepping off a car at the corner of Merrimack and Suffolk streets shortly after five o'clock yesterday afternoon fell and cut his head and sustained bruises about the hip. The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

THE EXPRESS BUSINESS

The Board of Trade should use its influence to hurry the coming of the trolley express. While the local merchants are complaining of the inadequacy of the express service in Lowell, the new line seems to be letting its best opportunity slip by. The express service is very important to a business city, and if it be deficient the citizens alone can bring about the required remedy.

THE LYNN TRAGEDY

The police of Lynn are to be congratulated upon the promptness with which they bagged the three desperate highwaymen who made so bold as to plan and execute a deliberate murder in broad daylight for the purpose of robbery.

A shoe manufacturer, who had secured the services of an officer to protect him, was on his way to his shop from the bank when both men were instantly shot down by yeggs who carried off the bag of money. But, thanks to the vigilance of the police, their good marksmanship and courage, they very soon laid two of the highwaymen low and captured the third. All three, it is said, are strangers who may have come from New York. The crime was such a bold one that had the culprits escaped the police would have been severely criticized, as it required but a short time to throw the city into a ferment of excitement.

It has been reported that officials of the General Electric company have been in dread of some such outrage as this for months past, but they were very cautious and never carried their money so openly. The fact that one of the men belonged in New York would indicate that they came to Lynn for the purpose.

It is a source of gratification that the highwaymen were so promptly shot down and captured. That will teach others a wholesome lesson.

It seems that we have arrived at a period when no man is safe even on the public streets in daylight if he is known to carry any large amount of money. Lynn has suffered serious loss from the yeggs, but they will give the city a wide berth in the future.

It seems that some steps should be taken to prevent the indiscriminate sale of the most deadly weapons to all kinds of foreigners, anarchists, highwaymen, thugs and thieves of all descriptions.

It behooves the officers of every city to be trained as marksmen with the revolver and to be supplied with the best and most recent weapons of the kind to be had.

ENFORCING LAW IN TOLEDO

Brand Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, O., has issued a very interesting pamphlet on the subject of law enforcement in reply to certain appeals made to him for improvement in the moral conditions prevailing throughout the city.

So far as can be learned from the mayor's letter, reference was made to gambling and immoral dens which, as is well known, are quite prevalent in western cities.

In his letter Mayor Whitlock shows that he is considerable of a philosopher and that he doubts the efficacy of compulsory methods of making people good. This will be seen from the following paragraph:

"What you regret and deplore and what I regret and deplore, is the existence of vice and crime in the world today. You propose to abolish them by the use of force; in my philosophy they can never be abolished until we ascertain the causes of them, and then remove those causes. To do this, we shall have to undertake reforms with which the policemen and the gaudier will have little to do; indeed, the accomplishment of those reforms will do away with the policemen and the gaudier, or release them from their present duties of destruction, to real service for mankind. These reforms should eventually do away with those influences in our system which give monopolies and privileges to a few, and by denying common rights to the many, reduce them to a condition of involuntary poverty. For it is involuntary poverty, and its direct and indirect effects, that produce crime, and our duty is to make involuntary poverty impossible."

In seeking to remove the cause of crime while at the same time battling with the effects, Mayor Whitlock is apparently taking the right course. Being acquainted with the local conditions he knows how far compulsion can be carried without defeating its purpose. Cities vary very greatly in this respect. The western cities, we surmise, would not stand the restraint that is willingly accepted by the people of eastern cities.

It is but a few years ago since the mayor of Toledo began a rigorous enforcement of the Sunday laws. This had continued only for two Sundays when the city council repealed every ordinance providing for Sabbath observance. With that as the last popular expression on the subject, Mayor Whitlock says he does not feel authorized to go too far in the line of policy adopted by Mayor Jones. But he seeks to attain the same ends by a different policy, and if we are to judge from his letter he is attaining fairly satisfactory results.

In the very worst cities there is a moral sentiment which if properly aroused and appealed to will banish gambling and its concomitant evils, social vice and intemperance.

Mayor Whitlock makes the point that as each city has its individuality and should be allowed to make its own police regulations instead of being governed by general statutes. In order to make the people better and to lessen crime he further recommends the extension of opportunities for rest and recreation with wholesome and ennobling entertainment. Much has been done in this respect, he says, by providing branch libraries, public parks, comfort stations, band concerts, public baths, swimming pools, playgrounds, both for children and adults with opportunity for indoor and outdoor sport. The school buildings, he says, should be freely used by all the people, and public buildings should be erected in which all the people would take pride and delight.

In this method of drawing the people out from the secret dens of vice and teaching them to enjoy innocent recreation, Mayor Whitlock is not alone in opinion of its general efficacy. Judge Pickman of this city preaches the same doctrine and it is being generally accepted by all the municipalities in this country.

SEEN AND HEARD

City Auditor Arthur. F. Brodie of Kansas City, Mo., has just put in his office an automatic timekeeping clock at which his clerks must register when they begin and leave of work. It is said that similar clocks will be put in at other departments.

It is all right to tell people how handsome you were when you were a baby boy, but don't make the mistake of bringing out the old family album and showing pictures of yourself to prove it.

If the man with the artistic temperament doesn't marry a wife with practical common sense, the family is pretty sure to come to grief.

The people who put on eye glasses to make them look intellectual would be credited with being intellectual under any other circumstances.

After all, nobody can blame the bald-headed man if he runs enthusiastically to whiskers.

Don't spend any time considering whether or not you have reason to feel ashamed of your great-grandfather. Think whether your great-grandfather would have any reason to feel ashamed of you.

When a woman marries a man just to get a living without working, it serves her right if things go wrong and she finds out that she has to support her husband.—Somerville Journal.

PASSING OF THE CRADLE
Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden cradle.
The rude hand of progress has thrust it aside.
No more to its motion, o'er sleep's ocean,
Our play-way wayfarers peacefully glide.

No more by the rhythm of slow-moving rocker
Their sweet, dreamy fancies are fostered and fed;
No more to its singing the cradle goes swinging,
The child of this era is put into bed.
Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden cradle!
It lent to the twilight a strange, sad charm;
When, as the cradle rocked, when play-time was over,
How soft seemed its shelter from dangerous harm!

How soft seemed the pillow, how distant the ceiling,
How weird were the voices that whispered around!
What dreams would come flooding,
We floated away into slumber profound!
Good-by to the cradle, the old wooden cradle!
The babe of today does not know it by sight;
When day leaves the border, with system and order,
The child goes to bed and we put out the light.

I bow to Progression, and ask no concession,
Tho' straw be her pathway with wrecks of the past;
So off with the lumber, that sweet ark of chamber,
The old wooden cradle, is ruthlessly cast.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

There is also one woman sexton in a small church in Lincolnshire. The office is hereditary and has been in her family for more than two hundred years.

The late King Edward was a great cigar smoker, but in the privacy of his workroom at Buckingham palace and Sandringham, he liked a pipe. King George is also a cigar smoker, but he does not disdain a pipe, for which he formed a habit when he was an active naval officer.

The czar of Russia contents himself with cigarettes. Formerly the kaiser was an inveterate cigar and pipe smoker, but on the advice of his doctors he has almost given up the habit, in spite of his 30 years' (the Austrian emperor is fond of a pipe and smoking does not affect his health).

King George of Greece smokes quantities of cigarettes, which he usually throws away half consumed. King Victor Emmanuel is a moderate smoker of cigars and cigarettes. King Peter of Serbia smokes a pipe, a habit contracted when he was at the military school of Saint Cyr.

King Alfonso manages to get through a fair quantity of cigars and cigarettes. His neighbor, King Manuel of Portugal, has not yet learned to appreciate a cigar, contenting himself with the cigarette.

"The Eleventh Hour," a spirited novel of the Mexican war, was suggested to the author, Lieut. David Potter, by a sword with a history. This sword hung over a fireplace in Lieut. Potter's blood when it had been placed by his uncle, an officer in the regiment of New Jersey volunteers. It had been surrendered to him by a Confederate officer in one of the skirmishes that preceded the battle of Fredericksburg, who stated that it had been captured from a Mexican officer on the field of Resaca de la Palma during the war with Mexico. Lieutenant Potter is a graduate of Princeton, has been in the navy for the past twelve years, serving in the war with Spain and in the Philippine campaign, and is now a paymaster with the rank of lieutenant commander. Out of the past twelve years five or six have been spent cruising about the world on men-of-war—the Philippines and Sulu, Borneo and elsewhere in the Pacific, South America, etc. He is now a paymaster with the rank of lieutenant commander. COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of The Lowell Sun:—Your editorial of Thursday on The Colburn school has caused me to encroach upon the valuable space in your paper that I might answer a few of your assertions. Now that the Training school has been abolished, it seems fitting and proper for those who have hitherto remained silent (as The Lowell Sun) to come forward and attempt to throw light on the conditions and evils supposed to have existed there. This doing little regard is paid to the references people of the city may draw to the character of the graduates of the Colburn school. It is particularly in the case of those who have passed from her walls, that I send this letter.

My attention was called to your editorial by one who never went to this school, but who was aware that my name was enlisted on the roll of her graduates. This person asked me if conditions were as you pictured them. I replied while you pictured them happy school. I told him emphatically "No!" In this I was within my rights as I attended this school when the training school system was in full bloom, and never to my recollection, has it happened that it was necessary to draft the janitor to suppress a disorder. I am sure that you would not make any such statement unless you had ample proof for it, and I should be much enlightened and surprised to find your information reliable.

The same discipline was maintained while I attended the school when the real principal was present or absent. I do not know what you mean by "delegated authority," but if by it you mean "the three teachers to be provided for," I can only say that they have their appointments practically as assistant principals as the school will show. I believe the assistant master at the high school is just as competent as the real master of the same school to exact discipline and I cannot see why my belief should change in regard to the three assistants of the training school.

As shown by your words "it is alleged," "Somehow the results attained in the past have been disappointing." This part of your editorial especially aroused my wrath and justly so, for by it you reflect on every graduate of the Colburn school. On what grounds, pray, do you base this assertion? If you had but considered before placing this statement before the public, I am sure that it would never have been printed. The graduates of the Colburn school have no cause to hang their heads when they look about them and see the results of their education. Among her graduates are such men in every walk of life equal, if not superior, to the graduates of any school in the city.

At the graduation exercises held last Wednesday morning at the Colburn school, one of those absent of graduates, congratulated them on graduating from a grammar school and especially from the Colburn school. He said that the records show that the graduates from this school enter high school younger than the average age of graduates from other schools of the city, and that their average after entering has been creditable.

Judging by the above, I should say that the service and discipline at the Colburn school was as good as any in Lowell.

Yours respectfully,
Cornelius J. O'Neill.
Lowell, June 24, 1910.

What The Sun said of past conditions referred to the Training school as a whole and not particularly to the Colburn school as the writer of the above communication seems to assume. Understanding that the grammar and primary departments are to be separated, we advocated the election of an experienced male principal to the Colburn school, and we do not see how past graduates can take offense at that. We did not reflect on the graduates nor upon the faculty of the Training school, three able members of which remain to be appointed to suitable positions in the schools. There is no comparison of the graduates of one school with those of another after entering the High School.—Ed.

COL. ROOSEVELT

REPLIES TO LETTERS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

PATERSON, N. J., June 27.—The proudest set of boys and girls in this city today are the members of the "SB" class of school No. 21. A letter from ex-President Roosevelt written to their teacher, is the cause of the class feeling so proud. Several days ago Miss Anna Firth had each of the boys and girls in the class write an individual letter to the colonel, telling him how glad they were that he was home again. The children did not suppose they would receive an answer, and are naturally very proud of the following:

"To the Principal of School No. 21.
"Dear Sir: It is physically impossible for me to even read, much less answer, the enormous numbers of letters I am now receiving, but I cannot let the twenty-six very nice letters which I have received from your scholars pass without a word of hearty appreciation. Of course, it is impossible to thank each individual writer, but I am sure you will tell the boys and girls how I appreciate the fine welcome they have given me. I also congratulate you. The letters are so neatly and admirably written that they reflect great credit on the school and its teachers. With very best wishes to you all.
(Signed) Theodore Roosevelt."

HANGED HERSELF

Lancaster School Girl a

Suicide

LANCASTER, June 27.—Following her being disciplined yesterday for a slight misconduct, the body of Eva Smith, a 16-year-old girl, was found hanging from a clothes hook in her room at the State Industrial school for girls here today. Medical Examiner George L. Toben who was called to view the body stated that to all appearances the girl had been dead three or four hours. Even since she was brought to the institution her conduct had been better than the average girl, according to the school authorities. Yesterday she disobeyed a school rule and according to a statement given out by one of the officials, was sent to her room. It is said that the girl had recently received letters from several girls, dwelling largely upon suicide and persons at the school believe that the reading of the letters caused her to take her own life.

TO RAISE THE MAINE

Army Engineers Planning to Begin the Work

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Of course the army engineers will do their best to carry out the wishes of congress, twice expressed, that an effort shall be made to raise the wreck of the battleship Maine from the bottom of Havana harbor, where it lies embedded in 27 feet of slime. But the engineers are frank to confess that they do not know the extent of the task before them and they believe that the $200,000 appropriation will not be sufficient. So their present idea is to use as much of the money as may be necessary to make a thorough examination of the wreck and the surrounding bottom of the harbor.

The only known method of raising a ship in the condition of the Maine, is to surround her with a coffer dam from which the water can be pumped, allowing the hull to be drained and the holes in the bottom closed. Engineering history fails to disclose a coffer dam of the mammoth proportions that would be required to enclose the Maine, for it must be as long as a city block, and as high as a five or six story building that is, from the bottom of the timbers to the top, its cost would probably exceed the total appropriation. A thorough preliminary investigation will cost a good deal of money and much time. In fact it is reasonably certain that congress will again be in session before the results are known, and the engineers can tell just how much money it will cost to raise the ship. Then, if congress should decide to supply the deficiency in the appropriation the workers will go ahead with their work. Otherwise it seems probable that the Maine will be left under water and removed piecemeal from the bottom of the harbor.

MAY BE FATAL

WORCESTER GIRL'S CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE FROM RANGE

WORCESTER, June 27.—Annie Siff, 10 years old, was probably fatally burned yesterday at her home, 26 Waverly street, when her clothing caught fire from the gas range as she was lifting a kettle from it to help her mother. Mrs. Bernard Siff, the mother, was also severely burned about the hands and arms trying to save the child.

The little girl was burned about the face, neck and chest, and her entire abdomen was one mass of burns. While the hospital physicians see a chance for her recovery it is not expected.

The girl went to remove the kettle from the stove, when the gas flame ignited her sleeve and in a few seconds she was a mass of flames. Her mother tore the clothing from the girl's body, saving her from immediate death, and her own injuries are serious, but not fatal.

THE LYNN BANDIT

Tells How the Daring Robbery Was Planned

LYNN, June 27.—The principal scenes in the tragedy of Saturday, when Thomas A. Landregan, shoe manufacturer, and Patrolman James H. Carroll were murdered by three desperadoes, were yesterday visited by thousands of people.

Besides Lynn residents' visitors from neighboring places gathered in large numbers at the place on Oxford and Willow streets where Landregan and Carroll were shot down and the robbers started on their run with the bag, containing the $4500 the murdered men were carrying to the shoe factory to pay off the help.

The next place of great interest was the woods and brush field near Pine Grove cemetery and the corner of Washington and Boston streets. At the latter place the man giving the name of Andy Epsan was shot by Patrolman Thompson.

In the woods groups of men, women and children walked around pointing out places where the robbers were brought to bay and where the coroner of police closed in on them. The spot of the latter suddenly dropped. The officer, the arrested man says, did not know he had killed Joe.

Dr. Needlebaum of Boston came to Lynn yesterday and had a talk with Ivanowski. He thought the young man came from the same place as he did in Austria, but decided this was not the case.

Resemblance to Lett

Of the scores who viewed the body of the dead bandit yesterday one man expressed an opinion that there was a great similarity between the dead man and one of the associates of Gutman, the bandit who was shot and killed in the Forest Hills cemetery in July two years ago.

This visitor, who was from Boston, had an opportunity at the time of the Jamaica Plain excitement to examine many of the alleged companions of Gutman, and on one occasion he visited the house on Oak Grove terrace, Roxbury, where Gutman lived up to the day of the shooting up of the McManus & Wintersen barroom, which was the first act in the Jamaica Plain tragedy.

On the night when he visited the Oak Grove terrace boarding house he saw three of the dwellers and talked to one of them, the others pleading that they did not understand English, although they were interested listeners of the conversation that ensued.

During the questioning a strongly built, light complexioned man came from one of the rooms and in a foreign language asked some questions, and according to the man who viewed the body yesterday, the resemblance of the dead bandit to that Lett is very pronounced, even to the brown curly hair. The only discrepancy in the description of the bandit and the unknown Lett is that the bandit has a short, stubby mustache of a sandy color. That, however, might have grown since.

While the Boston visitor would not positively identify the bandit as one of the men he saw, he was satisfied that the resemblance was so pronounced that it was worth investigating, which the police agreed they would do.

He further supplied the police with names given to him as those of the three men he talked to as well as information regarding other inmates of the house on Oak Grove terrace. The name of the man whom he believed that the dead man resembled is said to be Vosberg or Vosberg.

Today the police through an interpreter will investigate Wasili Ivanowski, the bandit under arrest, as regards the information, and it is believed that he may be induced to talk. Ivanowski was unknown to the visitor.

WASILI IWANKOWSKI Lynn Bandit Who Led in the Shooting

that before he came to this country he was a smuggler, carrying articles across the Austrian-Russian frontier. Four years ago his father was killed by a Russian officer, Galicia, where he says he was born, is the northernmost province of Austria and on the Russian frontier.

He saved up enough money to pay a passage to this country and has always been in New York since his arrival until last week, when he came to Boston with the other two men. He has a mother, two sisters and two brothers in Austria, he says.

So far as details connected with the robbery and murder the police were unable to gain anything from the wounded man. He repeatedly said he knew nothing about the others and took but little interest when told one was dead and the other arrested, except to say that he supposed he would be killed also.

Watched for Two Weeks

Again was Ivanowski, the bandit under arrest, interviewed by Chief Burkes and Deputy Bartlett. He said he knew the others only by the names of Andy and Joe and displayed absolutely no interest when reminded that one was dead and the other dying.

He said that for at least two weeks the movements of Mr. Landregan in securing the money for the weekly payroll had been watched and that the whole affair was planned. He did not of the shooting, in says, and in this he is corroborated by eye-witnesses of the affair.

He is certain an officer killed his companion "Joe" for he says he saw the officer shoot at "Joe" and the bandit

ORDER OF OWLS

New Organization Has Been Formed

The New England Order of Owls was permanently organized yesterday afternoon at Corinthian hall, Washington and Concord streets, Boston, at a convention of 150 Owls from all parts of New England. The name was adopted only after an attempt had been made to call the new order the Lions. "The lion is the king of beasts," explained the man who suggested the name, "and can make the elk, moose, eagle and such creatures look sick." The convention was in session from 2 o'clock until 10, with John P. Sullivan of Holyoke in the chair and Herbert A. Kenny secretary. The following officers were chosen: Supreme past president, C. E. Thorngrain, Hartford, Conn.; supreme president, Martin A. Joyce, Boston; supreme vice president, P. Vinciguerra, Springfield; treasurer, Herbert A. Kenny, Boston; supreme advocate, Cornelius Moynahan, Boston; supreme secretary, John Barnes, Holyoke; supreme warden, Charles Jenkins, Revere; supreme inner guard, Robert W. J. Belliey, Springfield; supreme trustees, Dr. Plunkett, Lowell, George A. Eaton, Boston and Col. Roger F. Scannell, Boston.

Hartford next was the first to ask a charter yesterday and it was granted unanimously. It will be known as No. 1. Massachusetts next is No. 2 and Springfield No. 3. The three pioneers in the reorganization of the old order, Arthur Lewis and Carl E. Thorngrain of Hartford and Col. Scannell of Boston, were present. Each of the delegates present pledged allegiance to the new order. The next convention will be in Hartford within two months.

CHURCH PASTOR

Has Been Requested to Resign

FLORENCE, June 27.—The Rev. Patrick H. Galen, pastor of the Church of the Annunciation, announced to his congregation yesterday that he had been asked to resign his charge because of a sermon which he preached last Sunday, in which he advocated that young men of the Catholic faith attend such institutions of learning as Harvard and Yale and the young women Smith College and other similar institutions. The request for his resignation came from Bishop Bevan of the Springfield diocese, and Father Galen has been allowed, he said, six days in which to tender it. Father Galen has been pastor of the church here for 21 years, and his congregation is much aroused at the request of the bishop. In his sermon last Sunday Father Galen told of the good which was being done the young men and women of the faith who had attended or were attending the Protestant institutions, and especially congratulated the young women who are studying at Smith. After announcing that he was to resign, Father Galen said:

"This is a very severe blow to me, but I have never defied the authority of the church or broken the rules knowingly, and I shall not defy them now. I have always preached obedience and I shall myself obey instructions in this case." The members of the congregation are considering an appeal. Father Galen's announcement followed the receipt of a letter from Bishop Thomas D. Bevan, in which the bishop said that the priest's words last Sunday, "aggravated by their appearance in the public press, hurt us deeply." The letter stated that, expecting eventual action from Catholic officials above the bishop, "we must act summarily and do request that you send your resignation from the pastorate of the Church of the Annunciation within six days." Father Galen announced yesterday that his resignation will be forthcoming, and asked his parishioners especially to make up his mind to resign to this parish. He especially requested them to give him no testimonials. "It is your prayers and good wishes, not your money, that I want," he said. Have The Sun mailed to you regularly every evening while away on your vacation.

MASKED BANDITS

Held Up and Robbed a Train at Ogden, Utah

OGDEN, Utah, June 27.—Three masked bandits held up the second section of the Oregon Short line train at 1:30 o'clock this morning, at Second street in the northern part of this city. All of the passengers in the train were relieved of their valuables and the express messenger was compelled to deliver the contents of the safe. The exact amount the robbers obtained has not been reported. Two passengers and two trainmen were injured. The robbers stopped the train by placing railroad torpedoes on the track. When the engineer brought the train to a stop the head brakeman went forward to ascertain the cause of the delay and was struck with a revolver by one of the robbers. He was then taken at the point of a pistol to the express car and compelled to call to the messengers to open the door. As soon as the door was opened one of the bandits crawled in and commanded the messenger to open the safe. After rifling the safe, the robbers turned to the coaches. As they started for the coaches Rear Brakeman N. B. Franklin was met as he was on three blocks to the home of Deputy Sheriff John Hulchens, whom he arrested and informed of the robbery. The deputy arrived at the scene just as the train pulled out. The train robbers went through each coach with a deliberation that showed they were not novices. When Conductor H. L. Williams left the train he was stopped by one of the robbers and ordered back into a coach. While one of the desperadoes stood guard over Engineer Kirkwood, the other two with drawn revolvers went through the train, ordering each passenger to hand over his valuables. Mrs. J. H. Ball's earrings were torn from her ears. A foreigner whose name was not learned was assaulted by the robbers. The man did not understand what was going on and was beaten with the butt of a revolver. After the train had been robbed, the bandits fired their pistols to terrorize the passengers. Then they got into a buggy in which they had driven to the spot and hurried away. Sheriff Wilson gathered a small posse and started in pursuit. There were nearly 100 passengers on the train, every one of whom lost something.

BOY WAS BURNED

In Starting to Celebrate Ahead of Time

The first anti-Fourth of July accident which has come to the notice of The Sun, occurred Saturday afternoon when Andrew Foye, aged nine years, and residing in Charles street, was badly burned as a result of the premature explosion of a small mine. Foye and several other boys of about his own age purchased what is known as a mine. In some unaccountable manner the fuse was broken and one of the boys tried to light the top of the piece of fireworks with a cigarette. Young Foye was stooping over the "mine" at the time the cigarette was applied and before he could get out of the way the powder became ignited and burned him about the legs, one arm and the face. He was taken to the home of a physician nearby and an examination showed that the burns were but superficial. The boy, however, suffered a great deal of pain.

STRIKE IS SETTLED

Spinners Decided to Return to Work This Morning

At a meeting of the spinners and doffers who have been out on strike from the Massachusetts and Prescott mills held last night, it was voted to return to work this morning. There were about 250 strikers in all and about 70 of them did not go to work this morning because their places had been filled. They reported for work but for them, there was nothing doing. About ten days ago the strikers appointed Constantine Anton their representative to confer with the mill people. Man Found Dead in Haverhill HAVERHILL, June 27.—The police are probing a mystery caused by the finding of a body in a local lodging house, the indications pointing to a suicide. Late Saturday evening a man who gave the name of John Smith engaged a room in the Quimby house on Washington square from Mrs. Etta L. Quimby, the proprietor. Yesterday morning when she awoke about 8 she detected the odor of gas, which she traced to the man's room. The door was locked, and she summoned a patrolman and they forced the door. Smith was dead on the bed undressed and the room was filled with gas. The medical examiner was summoned and his report stated that death was due to asphyxiation caused by illuminating gas. The police investigation showed that the window was tightly closed, the door looked from the inside and the gas cock opened to the fullest extent. Smith had been dead about two hours when found. His clothing consisted of a shabby blue serge suit, a white negligee shirt and white underclothing. He was about 31 years of age and 5 feet 3 inches tall. He was of dark complexion with black hair and clean shaven.

Chief Marshal H. O'Sullivan Invites Militia Boys to Participate—Local Companies Preparing for Their Annual Camp Duty

That Chief Marshal Humphrey O'Sullivan means to make the monster Hibernian parade of August 24 a memorable event is evidenced by the fact that he has extended an invitation to all of the local militia companies to act as escort for the Hibernians in the big parade. As the militiamen know what an invitation from Mr. O'Sullivan means there is little doubt as to the acceptance of the invitation.

IN POLICE COURT

Larceny and Other Cases Tried Today

Charles J. Hebert, a young man, was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with breaking and entering the store of Mizeal Jodoin in Alken street in the night time and the larceny of $22.

Hebert seemed to consider the matter as a joke and shouted: "It was $23.30."

Judge Hadley informed the young man the complaint was a rather serious one and that it was no laughing matter. Hebert then entered a plea of guilty and probable cause being found he was held under $500 bonds for his appearance before the superior court.

Jodoin's store was broken into about three weeks ago, entrance into the store having been made by forcing a rear door. The sudden disappearance of Hebert immediately after the break was made caused suspicion to rest upon him. It is said that he has been in New York city, only returning from there a few days ago. He was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Dolphus Giron.

Post Nuptial Battle

John Ciesla was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on his wife, Dora. Through his counsel, Haven G. Hill, he entered pleas of guilty and, during his examination, he admitted that he had been drinking and also slapped his wife's face.

Patrolman John J. Sullivan, who arrested Ciesla in the vicinity of Lakeview avenue last night, said that the complaint came running through the street with her hair disheveled and said that her husband had beaten her and was at that time drunk in the house. Witness said that he called at the house and finding that the husband was drunk placed him under arrest.

Mrs. Ciesla, the complainant, said that she and her husband had been to a wedding. The girl married was a friend of the witness and she had acted as bridesmaid. During the course of the evening considerable beer was drunk by the members of the party but she said that she took none. When she arrived home her husband was very much under the influence of the liquor and he struck her five or six times. She said that he refused to allow her to leave the house and she had to jump through the window.

Ciesla said he had been drinking and that he had slapped his wife's face, but that he did not abuse her in the manner which she had testified.

The defendant was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $15 and furnish bonds in the sum of $100 to keep the peace for six months. The case of drunkenness was dismissed.

Very Serious Charge

Louis Oriolek, aged 20 years, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Inspectors Walsh and McCaughy and Special Officer John Regis on a warrant charging him with felonious assault on a young woman employed at the Merrimack mills.

Oriolek, through his counsel, James E. O'Donnell, entered a plea of not guilty and the case was continued till Wednesday.

Placed on Probation

James E. Butler, charged with drunkenness and non-support of his minor child, was placed in the custody of the probation officer on condition that he pay $3 per week towards the support of the child.

Drunken Offenders

When Patrick Welch was arrested for drunkenness he gave a fictitious name to the keeper. In court this morning he said his name was Welch and denied that he had given the name of McLaughlin. The disposition of the case was postponed until the records could be perused. After some time it was found that Welch had been before the court in recent years under various names. He will spend the next three months in jail.

William H. Hannahan was also given a three months' sentence to the jail. The case of Viola Cronin was continued to July 6 for sentence.

Joseph G. Weaver was fined $6, Andrew Lithovitch and John O'Brien, Sunday drunks, were fined $5 each, there were five first offenders who were fined $3 each and seven simple drunks were released.

BY MOLTEN METAL

Score of Men Scalded and Property Burned

CHICAGO, June 27.—Three men were probably fatally burned and a score of others were painfully injured as a result of being splashed with molten metal pouring from a blast furnace of the Gary, Ind. works of the Illinois Steel company last night. The property loss is estimated at $10,000.

The furnace had just been opened but a string of ladies was ready to receive the hot metal when the tramway gave away and there was no way to plug the furnace or to take care of the hot pig iron. CITY HALL NEWS

July 4 Committee Will Meet Tonight

Board of Health Wants Paved Streets Watered in Hot Weather—School Teachers Will be Paid Wednesday—Other Live Items From City Hall

The special committee on Hunting-ton hall will meet at 7.30 this evening and the special committee on July 4 at 8 o'clock. The time to arrange for the celebration of the greatest day on the map is somewhat limited and the committee will have to get down to business in a hurry.

So far as plans for the celebration are concerned there is nothing in the air. It is possible that the committee will vote to ask Mr. Charles Giddon to give a free balloon ascension. This has been suggested by one of the committee members, and if Mr. Giddon would consent to supply the attraction free of charge it would undoubtedly be a very pleasing feature of the day's celebration. The appropriation for the celebration amounts to $1500 and the chances are that about $500 of that amount will be devoted to fireworks and about $1000 to salutes. The band concerts will cost about $100 apiece. The money for the celebration will be spent under the direction of the mayor.

Paved Streets Watered

The board of health will send a communication to Mayor Meenan asking him to have the smooth paved streets watered frequently during the hot weather in the interest of public health and comfort.

The board of health has notified the landlords who have not complied with the requirements of notices sent out as a result of the reports of the tenement house inspectors to appear before the board at its next meeting. Three places where milk is being sold were reported to the board by its inspectors as not being in a satisfactory condition from a sanitary standpoint. The water was given two weeks in which to make the necessary changes and if the changes are not made within that time the dealers will have to go out of business.

Pay of School Teachers

The school teachers will receive their pay on Wednesday of this week. This is earlier than usual, of course, but owing to the fact that the schools have closed and the payrolls and money are all ready the city auditor and city treasurer want to get it out of the way.

The Pump Question

The city solicitor has opined that the water board could call for bids for the new pump for the Centralville station before the money for the pump is available. However, there was no response attached to the call. The pump matter is on the table in the board of aldermen. The water board has been informed of the city solicitor's opinion and the board deems it inexpedient to call for the bids before the money is available. The opinion of the city solicitor has been asked on the committee on appropriations and the committee voted to recommend that the water board prepare plans and specifications and call for competitive bids. The following letter from the water board to the committee on appropriations is self explanatory:

June 22, 1910.

Mr. F. M. Dowling, Clerk of Committee, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: Yours of the 8th stating that the joint committee on appropriations had voted "To recommend that the water board prepare plans and specifications for new pump and call for competitive bids, if same can be done without expense, the idea being to obtain in this way the exact cost of pump, so the city council can later, after it sees fit, make the necessary appropriation in cash received by the water board and placed on file, or it was voted to notify the committee on appropriations that the water board deems it inexpedient to accept the recommendation of the committee.

Yours truly,

J. W. Crawford, Secretary.

Sale of Fireworks

Young America will have to subsidize very materially this July 4th in order to live up to the laws governing the use of fireworks, and the dealers will have to keep an eye on the window of the chapter 565, of the laws of 1910 gives the state police control of the sale of articles for such celebrations. The state police appoints a local representative and Chief Hosmer has been appointed. The law became operative June 1. The law prohibits the sale of any kind of blank cartridges, toy pistols, toy guns, or toy cannon which will fire blank cartridges. The law also prohibits the sale of any kind of fireworks containing picric acid or picrates, or any firecrackers more than one inch in length or three-eighths of an inch in thickness. This section, however, does not apply to illuminating fireworks set off between the hours of 7 p. m. and midnight except those containing picric acid or picrates.

Is Not Superstitious

"Beware of the bird that flies in your window!" This was a warning sent down from the spook hospital when trees were tiny plants and men were sensible. That's a good many years ago, but to this very day you can find many who believe that a bird flying in through the window is an evil omen. James Dow, inspector of buildings, doesn't believe in signs. There are a great many people who don't believe in signs. Fish warden and farmers will tell you that and in fact we have had personal experience. We have a sign in the editorial window room which requests the visitor to remain in that room until waited upon. About nine-tenths of our visitors don't believe in signs. But, to return to Mr. Dow. A pretty little canary flew into his office last Saturday and proceeded to make itself at home. Mr. Dow is a great lover of birds and animals and he proceeded to have the canary realize that he was just as welcome there as he was at home. He gave him to eat and to drink and the first twitter from the bird sounded like "Jim-jim-jim-jim-jim-jim" and Mr. Dow was tickled to death. He said the bird was calling him Jimmie. Mr. Dow's office is in the basement and he thought that perhaps the bird had flown down from an upstairs office. He knew that Miss Hill in the city clerk's office was very fond of birds and he thought perhaps the canary belonged to her. Miss Hill, however, denied the soft impeachment, and what did Mr. Dow do but buy a cage and take the bird home. That proves beyond doubt that he is not superstitious and just for that we sincerely hope that the canary will learn to praise in song the name of Jimmie Dow.

THE LYNN BANDIT

Tells How the Daring Robbery Was Planned

LYNN, June 27.—The principal scene in the tragedy of Saturday, when Thomas A. Landregan, shoe manufacturer, and Patrolman James H. Carroll were murdered by three desperadoes, were yesterday visited by thousands of people.

Besides Lynn residents visitors from neighboring places gathered in large numbers at the place on Oxford and Willow streets where Landregan and Carroll were shot down and the robbers started on their run with the bag containing the $4600 the murdered men were carrying to the shoe factory to pay off the help.

The next place of great interest was the woods and brush field near Pine Grove cemetery and the corner of Washington and Boston streets. At the latter place the man giving the name of Andy Epsen was shot by Patrolman Thompson.

In the woods groups of men, women and children walked around pointing out places where the robbers were brought to bay and where the cordon of police closed in on them. The spot of the latter suddenly dropped. The officer, the arrested man says, did not know he had killed Joe.

Dr. Needlebaum of Boston came to Lynn yesterday and had a talk with Ivanowski. He thought the young man came from the same place as he did in Austria, but decided this was not the case.

Resemblance to Lett

Of the scores who viewed the body of the dead bandit yesterday one man expressed an opinion that there was a great similarity between the dead man and one of the associates of Gutman, the bandit who was shot and killed in the Forest Hills cemetery in July two years ago.

This visitor, who was from Boston, had an opportunity at the time of the Jamaica Plain excitement to examine many of the alleged companions of Gutman, and on one occasion he visited the house on Oak Grove terrace, Roxbury, where Gutman lived up to the day of the shooting up of the McManus & Winteren burrow, which was the first act in the Jamaica Plain tragedy.

On the night when he visited the Oak Grove terrace boarding house he saw three of the dwellers and talked to one of them, the others pleading that they did not understand English, although they were interested listeners of the conversation that ensued.

During the questioning a strongly built, light complexioned man came from one of the rooms and in a foreign language asked some questions, and according to the man who viewed the body yesterday, the resemblance of the dead bandit to that Lett is very pronounced, even to the brown curly hair. The only discrepancy in the description of the bandit and the unknown Lett is that the bandit has a short, stubby mustache of a sandy color. That, however, might have grown since.

where the dead bandit was found and the place where Wankowski, the man locked up, made his last stand and surrendered, attracted many visitors. Epsen, the wounded bandit, was questioned and for more than an hour officers and interpreters stood at his bedside and endeavored to get his story. He was born in the province of Galicia, Austria, he said, and came to this country seven months ago in company with Wasili Ivanowski, the bandit arrested. He said he first knew "Joe," the dead man, in New York. What "Joe's" full name was he did not know, he said, and neither did he know the name of the man at police headquarters. He met the latter on the steamer coming across, he said. Epsen, gasping at times and evidently in great pain from his wounds, said

While the Boston visitor would not positively identify the bandit as one of the men he saw, he was satisfied that the resemblance was so pronounced that it was worth investigating, which the police agreed they would do.

He further supplied the police with names given to him as those of the three men he talked to as well as information regarding other inmates of the house on Oak Grove terrace. The name of the man whom he believed that the dead man resembled is said to be Vosberg or Volberg.

Today the police through an interpreter will investigate Wasili Ivanowski, the bandit under arrest, as to

that before he came to this country he was a smuggler, carrying articles across the Austrian-Russian frontier. Four years ago his father was killed by a Russian officer, Galicia, where he says he was born, is the northernmost province of Austria and on the Russian frontier.

He saved up enough money to pay a passage to this country and has always been in New York since his arrival until last week, when he came to Boston with the other two men. He has a mother, two sisters and two brothers in Austria, he says.

So far as details connected with the robbery and murder the police were unable to gain anything from the wounded man. He repeatedly said he knew nothing about the others and took but little interest when told he was dead and the other arrested, except to say that he supposed he would be killed also.

Watched for Two Weeks

Again was Ivanowski, the bandit under arrest, interviewed by Chief Burkes and Deputy Bartlett. He said he knew the others only by the names of Andy and Joe and displayed absolutely no interest when reminded that one was dead and the other dying.

He said that for at least two weeks the movements of Mr. Landregan in securing the money for the weekly payroll had been watched and that the whole affair was planned. He did most of the shooting, he says, and in this he is corroborated by eye-witnesses of the affair.

He is certain an officer killed his companion "Joe" for he says he saw the officer shoot at "Joe" and the head gards the information, and it is believed that he may be induced to talk. Ivanowski was unknown to the visitor.

AMES ATTACKS LODGE

HON. BUTLER AMES, M. C.

Makes Formal Announcement of Candidacy for the Senate

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Representative Butler Ames yesterday formally announced his candidacy for the United States senate, to succeed Senator Lodge. Mr. Ames' statement follows:

"Mr. Ames now makes the official announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate, having tried in vain to induce someone else to lead the fight against Boss Lodge and his political machine."

"This machine, backed by all the large corporations and by all the state and federal patronage at his command, has served for many years as a ready and efficient tool to crush all political ambitions, endeavors or opinions not sanctioned by Mr. Lodge."

"His orders have gone out to crush not only to suit his own political ends, but also to advance the selfish financial schemes of the large railroads, banking and manufacturing interests he serves in the halls of congress as well as in the Massachusetts legislature."

"His machine, controlling for so many years the political destinies in the state, has been connected with, has been a party to and has grown up with the lobby that piles to trade at the state house."

Lobby Leader Lodge's Friend
"The well recognized leader of the lobby has been a member of the state central committee for more than a decade. In that committee he has been a leader and his word was law, for was and is he not one of Mr. Lodge's closest political friends and advisers?"

"This man was driven from the republican state central committee last fall by outraged public sentiment, and though still the head of the lobby, has been kept away from the state house since that time."

Why Lodge Has Failed
"While he is conscious of his own shortcomings, no one recognizes more quickly than does Mr. Ames the talents possessed by Mr. Lodge—a scholar, a historian, an author of wide and varied experience and whose very length of service ought, under ordinary circumstances, to be a bar to his removal."

"With all his gifts and opportunities he has made such use of them that his continuance in public life depends, not upon his service to the people of his state, but to a political machine. This machine is used as a club for the individual of independent thought and action, while it serves as a willing tool to those of wealth, of influence and of power, seeking undue favors."

"Had he made his successes depend upon principle and not on politics, his position today would be unassailable."

Lodge's Hope in Roosevelt
"The political boss and manipulator of the state, unwilling to follow the policy of 'live and let live,' he has used his great power to assassinate those who dared differ in opinion or principle. It is reported that in his present extremity, fearing to seek reelection on his long public record in congress and in the state, his one hope is that Mr. Roosevelt may create new confidence in his behalf by speaking for him as an old friend."

"It is hard to believe that the ex-president will lend himself to the political support of one, even though a friend, who has consistently violated in this state all the teachings of which he is the great exponent."

"The public state of mind in the state today is the result, not of what has been said against Mr. Lodge, for no one has dared to attack him, but of each individual's own interpretation of his acts and utterances and of the conduct of the machine of which he is the moving force."

The Issue of the Campaign
"The people of the state will realize in such a case that the ex-president could not have the intimate knowledge acquired through sorrowful experience and possessed by each citizen of Massachusetts, and so would appreciate that his support of Mr. Lodge was out of keeping with the facts."

"Massachusetts will be fully able to judge and decide for herself from an experience of some 20 years."

"The Lodge machine and the lobby worked in the senate again this year to successfully defeat the direct primary bill, which had passed the house."

"To the support or defeat of this bill I did not lift so much as a finger, though its passage would have been to my political advantage."

"With direct primaries it is universally admitted that Mr. Lodge would have no possible chance of re-election."

"The issue of the coming campaign will be Lodgeism and political misrule, with the open connivance of the machine lobby with large financial interests to control elections and legislative action."

Will Try to Pledge Candidates
"It is desirable to call the attention of the voters of Massachusetts to the fact that by compelling every candidate for the coming legislature to declare himself, unequivocally, for Mr. Ames or for Mr. Lodge, an opportunity will thereby be given for an expression by the people of their desire at the polls."

"The Lodge machine will make every effort to prevent the pledging of candidates in the belief that unpledged candidates can be controlled by the machine or by money or by corporation influence. To prevent this Mr. Ames will use every endeavor to compel candidates in every district to pledge themselves on this issue, and to this end asks the co-operation of every voter who, believing in fair play, political freedom and independent thought, desires an end of the present political misrule with its machine-lobby control."

"The defeat of Mr. Lodge and the termination of this machine will tend more than anything else to party success, not only in the state but in the nation. It will restore confidence in republican management, by divorcing the legislature from the political machine, and by defeating a public official who has so long served the private interests rather than the public good."

WIP INJURED
James Fitzgerald of 13 Willis street, while stepping off a car at the corner of Merrimack and Suffolk streets shortly after five o'clock yesterday afternoon fell and cut his head and sustained bruises about the hip. The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment."

PLAYED BALL ON SUNDAY
John L. Grady, aged 16 years, was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Stephen Chastles for playing baseball on the Lord's Day. He will be brought before Judge Halloway in the juvenile morning of the police court Friday morning."

LIKELY TO DIE

Revere Boys Jumped Off a Car

REVERE, June 27.—Walter Stevens, aged 12, son of Anthony Stevens, janitor of the Revere town hall, and Anthony Curtis, a lad about the same age, son of John Curtis, 235 Park avenue, were probably fatally injured about 5 yesterday afternoon by jumping off an electric car which was traveling at fast speed on Beach street, near Webster street.

The boys had been to the beach together and were on their way to their homes in the central part of the town. They were seen near the Grand Army hall by Dr. Joseph E. Lamb, agent of the board of health, jumping on the rear of an electric car to ride a short distance while the conductor was engaged at the other end of the car. Dr. Lamb recognized the Stevens boy and warned him to stop. The boys then walked on toward Broadway till they were out of sight, when they apparently jumped on the rear of another car. A short distance west of the B. & M. R. R. bridge some one shouted at the boys and they jumped from the moving car. Both were thrown heavily on the pavement. The right side of the Stevens boy's head was crushed and his right shoulder was broken.

Young Curtis struck on his forehead, fracturing his skull. Both were unconscious when picked up. Walter Kleckham took the boys in his automobile to the office of Dr. J. S. Morris, who ordered them removed to the Frost hospital, Chelsea.

An operation was performed on Anthony Curtis, but the hospital authorities give slight encouragement that either boy will live.

MATHEWS ELECT

NEW OFFICERS FOR NEXT SIX MONTHS

The semi-annual election of officers of the Mathew Temperance Institute was held yesterday morning at the institute building in Dutton street. Owing to the fact that every member was interested in the election there was a large attendance.

The following were the officers chosen to occupy the chairs during the ensuing six months: President, James J. Gallagher; vice-president, Michael J. Boyle; spiritual director, Rev. Dr. Ketcher; recording secretary, George F. Briggan; financial secretary, James F. Grouse; treasurer, Peter F. Brady; marshal, Robert E. Spencer; board of trustees, Patrick McCann, John Ralls, John J. Guthrie; board of examiners, Frank Kelley, Henry Danglefield, William Conley; literary committee, James F. Riley, John McDermott, Edward Harris.

The society also appointed a committee to make arrangements for the celebration of St. Matthew's birthday anniversary on Monday, October 10.

They arranged for a special meeting of the society to be held on Sunday morning, July 17, to make arrangements to take part in the national convention of the C. T. A. U. of America in Boston, the week of August 7.

Y.M.C.I. OFFICERS

CHOSEN FOR THE ENSUING SIX MONTHS

The semi-annual election of officers took place yesterday at the regular meeting of the Young Men's Catholic Institute. The meeting was presided over by President King and the following were the officers elected: President, John J. Sullivan; vice president, Patrick Farrell; treasurer, Rev. John P. O'Brien, O. M. I.; financial secretary, Michael O'Keefe; recording secretary, George F. O'Meara; board of trustees, William J. King and John Martin; marshal, John T. Taylor.

The installation of the newly elected officers will take place next Sunday morning at the regular meeting and President King appointed James V. Tully, William O'Meara and James J. Kelley as a committee on arrangements.

A committee of five was appointed to have charge of arrangements for an outing to be held in August.

Several members spoke on the good and welfare and several recommendations from the board of trustees were accepted and changes in the constitution of the organization were made.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 115 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that nature may expect nature to bring on them the Change of Life. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued it since. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—Mrs. SARAH LOUGHEON, 414 S. Livingston St., Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache and nervous prostration.

No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made exclusively from roots and herbs.

DIAMOND NOTES
At Lynn today.
Four home games this week.

Last week was certainly a bad one for Lowell.

We'll be in the first division yet. The Lowell team has too many good players to go bad all the time.

President John I. Taylor and Manager Donovan got busy yesterday, and made arrangements to send several young players to clubs where they can get real experience. Garberich was sent back to Providence. Manager Jimmie Collins coming to Boston to close the deal. Martin McHale, a pitcher secured from the University of Maine, will go to Brockton of the New England league. Heane, an infielder, has been secured by Lawrence. Chris Mahoney, the Fordham pitcher, is likely to go to some minor league club.

Manager John H. O'Brien of the Fall River baseball club has given Jimmy Canavan, scout for the Detroit American, an option on Pitcher Hugh Deacon until July 15 for $2500 cash. Canavan is said to have been very highly impressed with the young fellow's ability, though it is his first year as a professional.

He went to Fall River with a remarkable record for victories and strikes-out. THE JEFFRIES SMILE AND THE ONE HE SAYS WON'T COME OFF

JAMES J. JEFFRIES

RENO, Nev., June 27.—If opinions would win a prize fight the coming contest between Jeffries and Johnson is now over, with Jeffries the winner. Many experts on the ground have expressed their opinion that big Jim is a physical marvel and fit to fight the battle of his career. Mike Murphy, trainer of University of Pennsylvania, one of the best judges of athletes in the world, who recently arrived here, says he is amazed at the excellence of Jeff's condition and declares that the big fellow is the finest specimen of a man that he ever witnessed. Billy Muldoon, the former world's champion wrestler and also a splendid judge of an athlete's condition, has expressed himself as amazed at the appearance of the big fellow. "I have never seen him look better in my life," said he. This, coming from Billy Muldoon, should carry some weight with the men who have not been able to bring themselves to believe that Jeffries is ready to fight. The change in attitude seemed a tonic to the "hope of the white race." Not only is he lightning fast in his training stunts but he goes at his work as if he enjoyed it, playing all sorts of tricks upon his attendants and romping like an overgrown boy.

lessed by Lowell, is not making good. Lack of control in his falling.

Pocahontas John Smith when he resigned the managerial berth at Lowell was paid a full season's salary. Jimmy Gray told John he could remain the entire season if he desired, but the low spoken veteran sadly said, "It's no use, I cannot deliver the goods." Gray paid out $470 for players from California during the spring workout and when they failed to make good, it broke Smith's heart. Smith also worried when the team did not win, and Gray said that John took it so to heart that he was ashamed to go out upon the coaching lines. The owner of the Lowell club and old Pocahontas parted firm friends and one of the best managers and players that ever donned a uniform has likely passed from the New England league forever. Smith was too good a fellow to manage a lot of pampered and spoiled ball tossers, and he realized it after taking another try at the helm. All Lowell fans should think well of John Smith who was always on the level and who worked hard to deliver to them the best team in the circuit.—Lynn News.

Fred Tenney pulled off a rare stunt when he felled a bunt to third and nipped Big Metz. If Swormstedt and jumped down the first base line when Fred was moving towards third, the big leaguer would have looked like a sucker.—Lynn News.

Billy Hamilton squatted in the shade of the bench yesterday as Uncle Jake Biorse gave him a vacation because of his run-in Wednesday with Connolly in this city.

A correspondent for Sporting Life takes exception to the assertion that Harry Wernwood's performance at Worcester, June 8, when he pitched 11 innings against the Burkett men and did not allow them a hit or run, is singular. The correspondent says that in a New York state league game played at Utica, Sept. 12, 1907, J. Lee Fairbanks of Utica, pitching for Albany, shut out Utica for 12 innings without a hit or run. The game went 10 innings, Albany winning by the score of 4 to 0. Fairbanks allowed a hit in the 12th inning and another in the 16th. He struck out 16 men and issued only two passes. He made no wild pitch and hit no batsman. Albany played without an error, and earned all of its runs. The only Utica man left on base was Frank Carroll, when he knocked out his second hit in the 16th inning. After getting his hit in the 16th inning Carroll was out in attempting to steal second. Not a Utica player reached base. Fairbanks is now with Utica and pitching winning ball.

CRICKET GAMES

Mohairs Defeated at Lawrence Saturday

The Mohairs went to Lawrence Saturday afternoon and were severely trounced by the team representing that city, the score being 184 to 66.

Lawrence went to bat first and when the first wicket fell 32 runs had been scored. Fifth of the down river team was the star player of the game, scoring 44 runs before he was retired.

The only man on the Lowell team who could seem to play was Barrett, who made 20 runs before he was bowled out. None of the other members of the Mohair eleven went into the double numbers.

THE PACIFIC MILLS

Reported to Have Bought the Hamilton Print Works

It is reported that the Hamilton Mfg. Co. of this city has sold its print works to the Pacific mills of Lawrence and that about all of the overruns and some of the help in the print works were laid off immediately at noon today. The report has it that the Pacific mills will take possession in a few weeks or as soon as the odds and ends have been picked up and orders finished that are underway.

Asked if there was any foundation in fact for the report that the print works had been sold, Agent Childs of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. referred the reporter to The Sun to the Boston office and at the Boston office the reporter was informed that Treasurer Sharpe was "out of town for the day," and there was no one there who had heard anything about the purchase.

The print works, of course, is but a small part of the plant of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. In a recent report appearing in a trade paper the worth of the Hamilton print works was estimated at $500,000.

The Hamilton Mfg. Co. was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts in 1825 and has been under the Amory management for twenty-three years. In that time there has been paid out of earnings about $1,500,000 for renewals, and close to $3,000,000 for re-

THE LOWELL SUN

SUN BUILDING, MERRIMACK SQUARE, LOWELL, MASS.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

THE EXPRESS BUSINESS

The Board of Trade should use its influence to hurry the coming of the trolley express. While the local merchants are complaining of the inadequacy of the express service in Lowell, the new line seems to be letting its best opportunity slip by. The express service is very important to a business city, and if it be deficient the citizens alone can bring about the required remedy.

THE LYNN TRAGEDY

The police of Lynn are to be congratulated upon the promptness with which they bagged the three desperate highwaymen who made so bold as to plan and execute a deliberate murder in broad daylight for the purpose of robbery.

A shoe manufacturer, who had secured the services of an officer to protect him, was on his way to his shop from the bank when both men were instantly shot down by yeggs who carried off the bag of money. But, thanks to the vigilance of the police, their good marksmanship and courage, they very soon laid two of the highwaymen low and captured the third. All three, it is said, are strangers who may have come from New York. The crime was such a bold one that had the culprits escaped the police would have been severely criticized, as it required but a short time to throw the city into a ferment of excitement.

It has been reported that officials of the General Electric company have been in dread of some such outrage as this for months past, but they were very cautious and never carried their money so openly. The fact that one of the men belonged in New York would indicate that they came to Lynn for the purpose.

It is a source of gratification that the highwaymen were so promptly shot down and captured. That will teach others a wholesome lesson.

It seems that we have arrived at a period when no man is safe even on the public streets in daylight if he is known to carry any large amount of money. Lynn has suffered serious loss from the yeggs, but they will give the city a wide berth in the future.

It seems that some steps should be taken to prevent the indiscriminate sale of the most deadly weapons to all kinds of foreigners, anarchists, highwaymen, thugs and thieves of all descriptions.

It behooves the officers of every city to be trained as marksmen with the revolver and to be supplied with the best and most recent weapons of the kind to be had.

ENFORCING LAW IN TOLEDO

Brand Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, O., has issued a very interesting pamphlet on the subject of law enforcement in reply to certain appeals made to him for improvement in the moral conditions prevailing throughout the city.

So far as can be learned from the mayor's letter, reference was made to gambling and immoral dens which, as is well known, are quite prevalent in western cities.

In his letter Mayor Whitlock shows that he is considerable of a philosopher and that he doubts the efficacy of compulsory methods of making people good. This will be seen from the following paragraph:

"What you regret and deplore and what I regret and deplore, is the existence of vice and crime in the world today. You propose to abolish them by the use of force; in my philosophy they can never be abolished until we ascertain the causes of them, and then remove those causes. To do this, we shall have to undertake reforms with which the policeman and the gaoler will have little to do; indeed, the accomplishment of those reforms will do away with the policeman and the gaoler, or release them from their present duties of destruction, to real service for mankind. These reforms should eventually do away with those influences in our system which give monopolies and privileges to a few, and by denying common rights to the many, reduce them to a condition of involuntary poverty. For it is involuntary poverty, and its direct and indirect effects, that produce crime, and our duty is to make involuntary poverty impossible."

In seeking to remove the cause of crime while at the same time battling with the effects, Mayor Whitlock is apparently taking the right course. Being acquainted with the local conditions he knows how far compulsion can be carried without defeating its purpose. Cities vary very greatly in this respect. The western cities, we surmise, would not stand the restraint that is willingly accepted by the people of eastern cities.

It is but a few years ago since the mayor of Toledo began a rigorous enforcement of the Sunday laws. This had continued only for two Sundays when the city council repealed every ordinance providing for Sabbath observance. With that as the last popular expression on the subject, Mayor Whitlock says he does not feel authorized to go too far in the line of policy adopted by Mayor Jones. But he seeks to attain the same ends by a different policy, and if we are to judge from his letter he is attaining fairly satisfactory results.

In the very worst cities there is a moral sentiment which if properly aroused and appealed to will banish gambling and its concomitant evils, social vice and intemperance.

Mayor Whitlock makes the point that as each city has its individuality and should be allowed to make its own police regulations instead of being governed by general statutes. In order to make the people better and to lessen crime he further recommends the extension of opportunities for rest and recreation with wholesome and ennobling entertainment. Much has been done in this respect, he says, by providing branch libraries, public parks, comfort stations, band concerts, public baths, swimming pools, playgrounds, both for children and adults with opportunity for indoor and outdoor sport. The school buildings, he says, should be freely used by all the people, and public buildings should be erected in which all the people would take pride and delight.

In this method of drawing the people out from the secret dens of vice and teaching them to enjoy innocent recreation, Mayor Whitlock is not alone in opinion of its general efficacy. Judge Pickman of this city preaches the same doctrine and it is being generally accepted by all the municipalities in this country.

City Auditor Arthur F. Brodie of Kansas City, Mo., has just put in his office an automatic timekeeping clock, at which he expects to register when they begin and leave off work. It is said that similar clocks will be put in the other departments.

PASSING OF THE CRADLE
Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden cradle,
The rude hand of progress has thrust it aside,
No more to its motion, o'er sleep's fairy ocean,
Our play-weary wayfarers peacefully glide.

No more by the rhythm of slow-moving rocker
Their sweet, dreamy fancies are fostered and fed;
No more to low singing the cradle
The child of this era is put into bed.

Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden cradle!
It lent to the twilight a strange, subtle charm;
When the sweet clover, when play-time was over,
How safe seemed its shelter from dangerous harm!

How soft seemed the pillow, how distant the ceiling,
How sweet the voices that whispered around;
What dreams would come docketing,
We floated away into slumber profound!

Good-by to the cradle, the old wooden cradle,
The babe of today does not know it by sight,
When day leaves the border, with system and order,
The child goes to bed and we put out the light.

I bow to Progression, and ask no concession,
Tho' I would be her pathway with wrecks of the past;
So off with the lumber, that sweet relic of yore,
The old wooden cradle, is ruthlessly cast.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Rev. Joseph B. Kettle of St. Joseph, Mo., has accepted the call extended by the Orthodox Congregational church and parish of Leominster, and hopes to begin his pastoral duty July 1.

A woman has just been appointed church warden at Walsgram-on-Sowe in Warwickshire, England. She is the ninth woman to hold such an office in England. There is also one woman sexton in a small church in Lincolnshire. The office is hereditary and has been in her family for more than two hundred years.

The athletic spirit which animates the pages of Mr. North's "Cam and Camino" is the same that led him as an undergraduate to take the first track team east from California to compete in the intercollegiate games and has since led him in search of the adventure into most of the out-of-the-way corners of the west. One of these out of the way places is Magdalena Bay, which is regarded by naval authorities as the most important strategic harbor on the Pacific coast.

The late King Edward was a great cigar smoker, but his private secretary, who was in the Buckingham palace and Sandringham, he liked a pipe. King George is also a cigar smoker, but he does not disdain a pipe, for which he formed a liking when he was an active naval officer.

The Kaiser of Russia contents himself with cigarettes. Formerly the Kaiser was an inveterate cigar and pipe smoker, but on the advice of his doctors he has almost given up the habit. In spite of his 80 years the Austrian emperor is fond of a pipe and smoking does not affect his health.

King George of Greece smokes quantities of cigarettes, which he usually throws away half consumed. King Victor Emmanuel is a moderate smoker of cigars and cigarettes. King Peter of Serbia prefers a pipe, a habit he contracted when he was at the military school of Saint Cyr.

King Alfonso makes it a get through a fair quantity of cigars and cigarettes. His neighbor, King Manuel of Portugal, has not yet learned to appreciate a cigar, contenting himself with the cigarette.

"The Eleventh Hour," a spirited novel of the Mexican war, was suggested to the author, Lieut. David Potter, by a sword with a history. This sword hung over a fireplace in Lieut. Potter's boyhood home, where it had been placed by his uncle, an officer in the regiment of Lieut. Potter's father.

It had been surrendered to him by a Confederate officer in one of the skirmishes that preceded the battle of Fredericksburg, who stated that it had been captured from a Mexican officer on the field of Resaca de la Palma during the war with Mexico. Lieut. Potter is a graduate of Princeton, has been in the navy for the past twelve years, serving in the war with Spain and in the Philippine campaign, and is now a paymaster with the rank of lieutenant commander. Out of the past twelve years five or six have been spent cruising about the world on men-of-war—the Philippines and Sulu, Borneo and elsewhere in the Far East, South America, etc. He has hunted wild buffalo in Borneo, once, and with the real Sultan of Sulu, and is one of the few men of his generation who have seen slaves offered for sale at public auction—in the Moro market in Mindanao in 1899.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of The Lowell Sun:
Your editorial of Thursday of the Colburn school has caused me to enclose upon the valuable space in your paper that I might answer a few of your assertions. Now that the Training school has been abolished, it seems fitting and proper that those who have hitherto remained silent (as The Lowell Sun) to come forward and attempt to throw light on the conditions and in so doing little regard is paid to the character of the city may draw as to the character of the graduates of the Colburn school. It is particularly in defense of those who have passed from her walls, that I send this letter.

My attention was called to your editorial by one who never went to this school, but who was aware that my name was enlisted on the roll of her graduates. This person asked me, if conditions as you pictured them happened while I was at the Colburn school, I would within my rights as I attended this school when the training school system was in full bloom, and never to my recollection, have I perceived that it was necessary to draft the janitor to suppress disorder. I am sure that you would not make any such statement unless you had ample proof for it, and I should be much enlightened and surprised to find your information reliable.

The same discipline was maintained while I attended the school when the real principal was present or absent. I do not know what you mean by "delegated authority," but if by it you mean "the three teachers to be provided for," I can only say that they have their appointments practically as assistant principals as their salaries will show. I believe the assistant master at the high school is just as competent as the real master of the same school to exact discipline and I cannot see why my belief should change in regard to the three assistants of the training school. You speak on hearsay in regard to this as shown by your words "it is alleged."

Somehow the results attained in this part of your editorial especially aroused my wrath and I must say, if you reflect on every graduate of the Colburn school. On what grounds, pray, do you base this assertion? If you had but considered before placing this statement before the public, I am sure that it would never have been printed. The graduates of the Colburn school have no cause to hang their heads when they look about them and see the results far from disappointing. Among her graduates she numbers men in every walk of life equal, if not superior to the graduates of any school in the city.

At the graduation exercises held last Wednesday morning at the Colburn school, our esteemed superintendent of schools in speaking to those about to graduate, congratulated them on graduating from a grammar school and especially from the Colburn school. He said that the records show that the graduates from this school enter high school younger than the average age of graduates from the other schools of the city, and that their average after entering has been creditable.

Judge by the above, I should say that the service and discipline at the Colburn school was as good as any in Lowell.

Yours respectfully,
Cornelius J. O'Neill.
Lowell, June 24, 1910.

What The Sun said of past conditions referred to the Training school as a whole and not particularly to the Colburn school as the writer of the above communication seems to assume. Understanding that the grammar and primary departments are to be separated, we advocated the election of an experienced male principal to the Colburn school, and we do not see how past graduates can take offense at that. We did not reflect on the graduates nor upon the faculty of the Training school, three able members of which remain to be appointed to suitable positions in the schools. There is no comparison of the graduates of one school with those of another after entering the High School.—Ed.

TO RAISE THE MAINE

Army Engineers Planning to Begin the Work

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Of course the army engineers will do their best to carry out the wishes of congress, twice expressed, that an effort shall be made to raise the wreck of the battleship Maine from the bottom of Havana harbor, where it lies embedded in 27 feet of silt. But the engineers are frank to confess that they do not know the extent of the task before them and they believe that the $300,000 appropriation will not be sufficient. So their present idea is to use as much of the money as may be necessary to make a thorough examination of the wreck and the surrounding bottom of the harbor.

The only known method of raising a ship in the condition of the Maine, is to surround her with a coffer dam, from which the water can be pumped, and the hull to be drained and the bottom of the bottom closed. The engineering history fails to disclose a coffer dam of the mammoth proportions that would be required to enclose the Maine, for it must be as long as a city block, and as high as a five or six story building that is, from the bottom of the bottom to the top. Its cost would probably exceed the total appropriation. A thorough preliminary investigation will cost a good deal of money and much time. In fact it is reasonably certain that congress will again be in session before the results are known, and the engineers can tell just how much money will cost to raise the ship. Then, if congress should decide to supply the deficiency in the appropriation the workers will go ahead with their work. Otherwise it seems probable that the Maine will be up under water and removed piecemeal from the bottom of the harbor.

MAY BE FATAL
WORCESTER GIRL'S CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE FROM RANGE

WORCESTER, June 27.—Annie Siff, 10 years old, was probably fatally burned yesterday at her home, 26 Waverly street, when her clothing caught fire from the gas range as she was lifting a kettle from it to help her mother. Mrs. Remond Siff, the mother, was also severely burned about the hands and arms trying to save the child.

The little girl was burned about the face, neck and chest, and her entire abdomen was one mass of burns. While the hospital physicians see a chance for her recovery it is not expected.

The girl went to remove the kettle from the stove, when the gas flame ignited her sleeve and in a few seconds she was a mass of flames. Her mother tore the clothing from the girl's body, saving her from immediate death, and her own injuries are serious, but not fatal.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Man Killed Two Persons and Then Committed Suicide

SPRINGFIELD, Me., June 27.—"We'll settle this thing right now," said David Downes, as he reached for his rifle and jacking in a 30-30 cartridge, fired point blank at his mother-in-law, Mrs. Iva Woodward, who stood so near to him that the muzzle almost touched her.

She fell dead as the slug crashed through her brain. Then as quickly as Downes could throw in another cartridge he fired at his wife, who also fell dead in her tracks.

The crazed man then placed the muzzle in his mouth and sent a shot into his own brain.

The three lives were snuffed out in 15 seconds.

Downes is a farm hand, aged 33, and with his wife and their 5-year-old daughter lived in rather humble circumstances in a small house two miles from this village on the road to Prentiss.

Mrs. Downes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Iva Woodward, live directly across the road. Saturday night Mrs. Downes and her daughter stayed at the Woodward house and yesterday morning they went home, where they found David Downes. With them went Mr. and Mrs. Woodward and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson re-atives, and there was a sort of family reunion.

While the circumstances which led up to the shooting vary because of the rapid progress of the triple tragedy, it appears that the wife and mother-in-law of Downes upbraided him because he had been so cross to Mrs. Downes, who declared she was going to leave him and take up her residence with her parents.

Downes said that he would try to do better and pleaded with his wife to remain. She appeared determined to leave, however.

Then suddenly reaching for his rifle, which stood behind him, he fired the three fatal shots.

At the first shot Woodward and the Gibsons fled in terror. Neighbors summoned physicians, but they could do nothing.

C. M. Lombard, first selectman, took charge and the house was placed under guard pending the arrival of the coroner, Charles E. Rackliffe of Oldtown.

Downes has always had a good reputation for honesty and industry. He married his wife, who was 23, about five years ago. Recently rumors that they had quarreled have been known, but were not considered more than family jars.

GREAT WILD WEST

RANCH 101 OF MILLER BROTHERS TO BE HERE JULY 6

The famous 101 ranch, of Billas, Oklahoma, whose Wild West Show is coming to this city for two performances on Wednesday, July 6, is essentially a young man's enterprise. None of the trio of brothers who own and operate it has attained the forty-year mark. Joseph C. Miller is president of the family corporation; George L. is secretary and general director, and Zack T. assumes active charge of the tremendous live stock transaction.

The genesis of the largest ranch in the country was in 1871, when George W. Miller, father of the family, then a young Kentuckian, rode through the Indian territory and bought a bunch of Texas steers. He had gone west with a few dollars and a lot of Kentucky wisdom about horses and cattle. He saw a chance to make money by buying Texas steers where they were being driven on a long feed through the grassy Indian territory, and shipping them by railroad to St. Louis and Chicago from Baxter Springs, Kansas, which at that period was one of the snappiest towns on earth.

He trailed down into Texas, bought a bunch of steers for $5 per head and drove them to Kansas, consuming six months by the way, and sold them for $42 a head.

The next year he started back to Texas with half of the proceeds in a coin belt about his waist and the rest in a cigar box, all in gold. A Mexican bandit stole the cigar box, and Mr. Miller had to return without it. He drove. But the year following he loaded a wagon train with bacon, canned goods and calves, and started south. The Mexican bandits could not steal these, and he laid the foundation for the family fortune.

During his long and lonely expeditions through the Indian territory, George Miller picked up his own traits, and the one he oftenest followed lay along the Arkansas river, where the grass was long and juicy. This afterward became the reservation of the Ponca, Otoe and Missourian Indians. Mr. Miller had determined to own it some day.

Shall We Have a Denatured Fourth?

Uncle Sam, in account with the celebration of Independence day (1903-1908)—

DEBIT:

1,316 deaths and 27,980 serious injuries, property loss amounting to millions of dollars.

CREDIT:

Jubilant and noisy outlet for the patriotic instincts of Americans, mainly youngsters anxious to celebrate the Fourth of July "fittingly."

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

So reads the account in the nation's books. In your opinion, reader, does it balance exactly? Or do you believe that the advocates of the "safe and sane Fourth," which have been making such great gains, have the better of the argument?

Perhaps your enthusiasm for the noisy Fourth varies in inverse proportion to your age, as the mathematicians might say—that is, the greater the number of your years the smaller your amount of ability to find joy and patriotic inspiration in the sizz-boom-bang of what has come to be known as the conventional Fourth. If you can look backward over a long series of Fourth's, all of them marked to your personal knowledge by death and suffering and loss, perhaps you are less enthusiastic about the noisy celebration of Independence day than you were when you were younger.

On the other hand, if you are old enough to read this and yet young enough to feel a thrill instead of a grouch when a big firecracker lets out its "bang," perhaps you think the danger of the Fourth of July has been grossly exaggerated. Probably deep down in your subconscious self you have a feeling that the Fourth is worth all that it costs.

If you belong to the former class and believe that the style of celebrating the Fourth that prevails generally is thoughtless, reckless, barbaric and destructive to the people who are leading the crusade against it, want your cooperation. If you are one of the latter unconvinced class your attention is invited again to the figures printed at the top of this article. They are not manufactured, exaggerated or colored. They are authentic and bona fide figures gathered by an able statistician employed by one of the leading newspapers of the country.

The "Safe and Sane" Argument.

These figures are impressive enough to give pause to the most enthusiastic of the believers in "letting the children enjoy themselves on the Fourth." "Certainly, let them enjoy themselves," say the advocates of the "safe and sane Fourth," "but let them do it without the frightful sacrifices entailed by the indiscriminate use of toy cannons, bombs, giant firecrackers, firearms and other death dealing agencies. We have no quarrel with the Fourth; we are as patriotic Americans as can be found, and we can discourse to you about the history of Independence day at least as intelligently as the advocates of the 'noisy Fourth.' But we believe, and a large part of the nation is coming around to our way of thinking, that the sacrifice of life and limb and property laid each year on the altar of the Fourth as a literal burnt offering is too great. Let us celebrate the Fourth as ardently as you and I wish, but for the sake of the mothers bereft each year of their children let us make the sacrifice as light as possible."

It is with this sort of argument, backed by figures such as those set forth above, that the men and women who are preaching against the perils of Independence day are re-enforcing their cause and making recruits for it. The movement has made great advances this year. From almost every section of the country—some could almost say from every state—have come reports of the placing of greater restrictions on the sale of fireworks. Some cities have gone the length of abolishing altogether their sale, following in this respect the lead of Springfield, Mass., which decided several years ago that the lives and the safety of her youngsters were of more value to her than the boom and crackle of the individual setting off of fireworks. Her example was quickly followed by other cities and towns. This year no less than eighty cities and towns have either prohibited the sale of fireworks or have taken steps to provide their inhabitants with public shows and entertainments, such as the reading of the Declaration of Independence, patriotic orations by prominent men, the setting off of fixed fireworks under competent direction, etc. Some have adopted both measures.

The recent action of Mayor Gaynor of New York forbidding the sale of fireworks in the metropolis between June 10 and July 10 focused the country's attention on the subject. Other cities hastened to fall into line behind the metropolis. In Hamilton, O., an ordinance of similar effect was passed, and the city proceeded to buy up all of the fireworks within its limits. The money was subscribed by citizens. The fireworks will be set off in a public park on the night of July 4, and there will be the usual patriotic exercises.

Some Unhappy Names For the Fourth.

A prime mover in the action against what has been called "the insane Fourth," "the slaughter of the innocents," "a holiday of disasters" and other opprobrious names is Mrs. Isaac L. Rice of New York, who came prominently before the public a few years ago as the founder and chief supporter of the Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noises. Mrs. Rice bases her objection against the style of celebrating the Fourth now generally prevalent not on the amount of noise it produces, but solely on the needlessness of the sacrifices made.

Early in the present year Mrs. Rice wrote to the governor of each state in the Union soliciting his official help in her furtherance of the celebration of the Fourth in "safe and sane" fashion. Ten of the governors replied, offering all the aid in their power. This encouraged Mrs. Rice to prepare a petition which asked the state legislatures to pass laws doing away with the sale of dangerous fireworks. Among the most ardent advocates of the newer celebration is Governor Weeks of Connecticut, who has been urging "a day of pleasure and profit instead of a day of unrest and horror."

The Other Side of the Argument.

Turning to the other side of the question, it must be admitted that the movement for a less dangerous Fourth has not met with unanimous approval. One of the newspapers of Washington commented thus caustically on the fact that the movement to raise $5,000 for a formal celebration of the Fourth in the national capital showed signs of dying ingloriously:

"Are the old folks going to break their part with the young folks as to celebrating the Fourth of July? We put this question squarely up to the elders, because the fireworks committee is making the S O S signal. The zest and enthusiasm which marked the inauguration of the new style of patriotism has about petered out."

"Would the boys and lumbos promise to let off burning their fingers and blowing their eyes out and setting fire to awnings and show windows and exploding cannon crackers under people's feet in return for the privilege of enjoying from a safe distance at the close of a sleepy and prudish day a display of fireworks on an elaborate scale, typifying great events in the history of the republic? Without waiting for an answer from the youngsters the grownups stopped the sale of fireworks and got up a celebration by contract."

"It proved all it was advertised to be spectacularly, but popularly it did not enjoy a responsive chord. With the vital element of spontaneity lacking, with the real spirit of the day chilled to a perfunctory shout, the Fourth of the forefathers became a barren idealism, an unemancipated joy. The elders no less than the kids realized that the new departure took them too far from the spirit of '76, and unless the movement can be galvanized and given a fresh start on a more liberal basis it is doomed to die of inanition."

My pa wants a Fourth that's safe and sane!
Well, wouldn't that jar you worse than the noise?
That kind of a Fourth might suit Mary Jane
And me, but not on your life for the boys!
We're just wound up, and we've got to let go.
No matter what breaks, on the Fourth of July,
And pa can go driving and yell out "Whoa!"
In his funny way as the fireworks fly.

My pa isn't getting so very old.

But he's losing his memory awful fast.
He was full of pranks as his hide could hold.
As he could tell if he only dast.

For grandma said so herself, she did.
When he kicked last Fourth about the noise
And said he was just the awfulest kid—
He forgets about being one of the boys.

Or if pa wants a quiet Fourth of July
He might go out in a boat on the lake
In the country, like he did when a guy
And took ma out and made her quake—

She wasn't my ma then, only a girl—
But he rocked the boat, and her scream was immense.
So loud it just made his straight hair curl
And my cannon seem like thirty cents.

When I sat pa last Fourth of July
How he come to have a crippled hand—
For, you see, one hand is a finger shy—
He balked enough to beat the band.

"'Twas an accident," was his reply.
And nothing more, but grandma said,
"He was firing an awful Fourth of July
And come nigh losing his crazy head."

So I'm no worse, I reckon, than him.
Leastways I've got ten fingers, you bet!
And I'm just sound in life and limb
And up and having my bed made yet.

And when pa says a Fourth of July
That's safe and sane for his I grin
And give a wink with the other eye
And duck to see the fun begin.

"Again we put the question in behalf of the fireworks committee. Are the old fogies going to break their part with Young America as to celebrating Independence day?"

Young America Not Unanimous.

The Washington editor is at fault in at least two particulars. In the first place, Young America is not quite as unanimous about the noisy celebration of the Fourth of July as he would have us believe. There is no evidence that the boys and girls of cities in which the sale of fireworks has been prohibited are less patriotic than those in the cities in which the other style of celebration will prevail.

In the second place, the scribe is probably mistaken in his reference to "the Fourth of the forefathers." To them Independence day was an occasion for solemn rejoicing, not of loud celebration. Witness the views of John Adams, signer of the Declaration of

READY, SISTER?

HERE SHE GOES, FELLERS!

Independence and later second president of the United States, as expressed in a letter to Mrs. Adams in July, 1776: "I am apt to believe that if [Independence day] will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward, forevermore."

You will observe that he spoke of the use of guns. Did he mean that the guns were to be intrusted to irresponsible youngsters, as they are today?

World's Newest Baby Nation

WHILE we Americans are busily engaged with preparations for the celebration of the one hundred and thirty-fourth birthday of our own new nation that has just had its first natal day. It is not a full fledged nation yet, but it is far more advanced on that road than were the American colonies of Great Britain in July, 1776. If the people of America had at that time half the rights and privileges possessed at the present time by the inhabitants of the new Union of South Africa it is safe to say that our Revolution would have been deferred many years. If, indeed, it would ever have come.

There seems to be no fear that the cry, "Taxation without representation is tyranny," the slogan of the American patriots in '76, will ever be heard in South Africa. The four colonies which form the Union of South Africa have not only the union parliament to consider measures relating to their joint interests, but each of the four—Cape Colony, the Orange River Colony, Natal and the Transvaal—has its own council, consisting of as many members as the colony is entitled to send to the union parliament. All matters of provincial interest are thus certain of a full discussion and airing.

The inauguration of the first parliament of the union, in the fall, will be made the occasion of great pomp and ceremony. In recognition of the importance of the event the late King

Edward planned to send the heir to the throne, now King George, to open the parliament in the name of the sovereign. Death intervened, and the new king has named to go in his stead the Duke of Cornwall, his uncle.

A few years ago King Edward declared in a speech that the union of the South African colonies was "very near to his heart." It is believed that the steps leading to the new union were submitted for his majesty's very careful consideration and that he thought great good would come of the union.

The development of the resources of the country required the tranquillization of its government, a strong central form of administration and the elimination of the causes of friction between the important British and Boer elements of the populace. It was believed that the white men, of Anglo-Baxon and of Dutch descent, must stand shoulder to shoulder in facing the very serious negro problem of South Africa, among other matters that required concerted action and disinterested work for the good of the country.

It is by no means a small country that has been brought into legislative unity in the new government. The combined area of the four colonies comprised in the union is 467,391 square miles. There are 1,118,155 persons of white descent and 4,651,117 natives. The largest and most populous of the four colonies is Cape Colony, with 276,995 square miles, 550,330 white inhabitants and 1,825,172 colored. The imports of Cape Colony from Great Britain in 1908 amounted to more than $8,000,000 and the exports to more than $6,000,000. The second of the four colonies in size and importance is the Transvaal, the third is the Orange River Colony and the fourth is Natal. By an ingenious compromise the branches of government of the united colonies are divided among three of them. After a long discussion of the best possible site for the capital of the union it was decided to make Cape Town, in Cape Colony, the seat of the legislature; Pretoria, in the Transvaal, the seat of the executive government, and Bloemfontein, in the Orange River Colony, the seat of the judiciary. It is believed that this is the first time in the history of the world that a compromise of this sort has been effected.

The assembling of the new parliament in the fall, probably in September, will bring together some of the most interesting men in the world. First and foremost of them will be General Louis Botha, head of the first union cabinet ministry of united South Africa. He is the same General Louis Botha whose name was in the mouth of all the world ten years ago as commander of the Boer forces fighting against Great Britain and defeating them in such terrible battles as those at Colenso and Spion Kop. The years that have passed have transformed him from one of the most determined and able of the foes of Great Britain in South Africa into a firm believer in the unity of the British empire and in the justice of its rule in South Africa. Prior to his assumption of the office of premier of the new colony he was prime minister and minister of agriculture of the Transvaal. Through the change in his political convictions General Botha has managed to retain the good will of his fellow Boers, and he is today their acknowledged leader.

Among the other men who will invest the new parliament with immense interest are the governor general of the union, Viscount Gladstone of Harwarden, son of the famous statesman who declared thirty years ago his belief in the advisability of uniting the colonies of British South Africa into one strong central government.

ROBERT DONNELL.

On the "Stern and Rock Bound Coast"

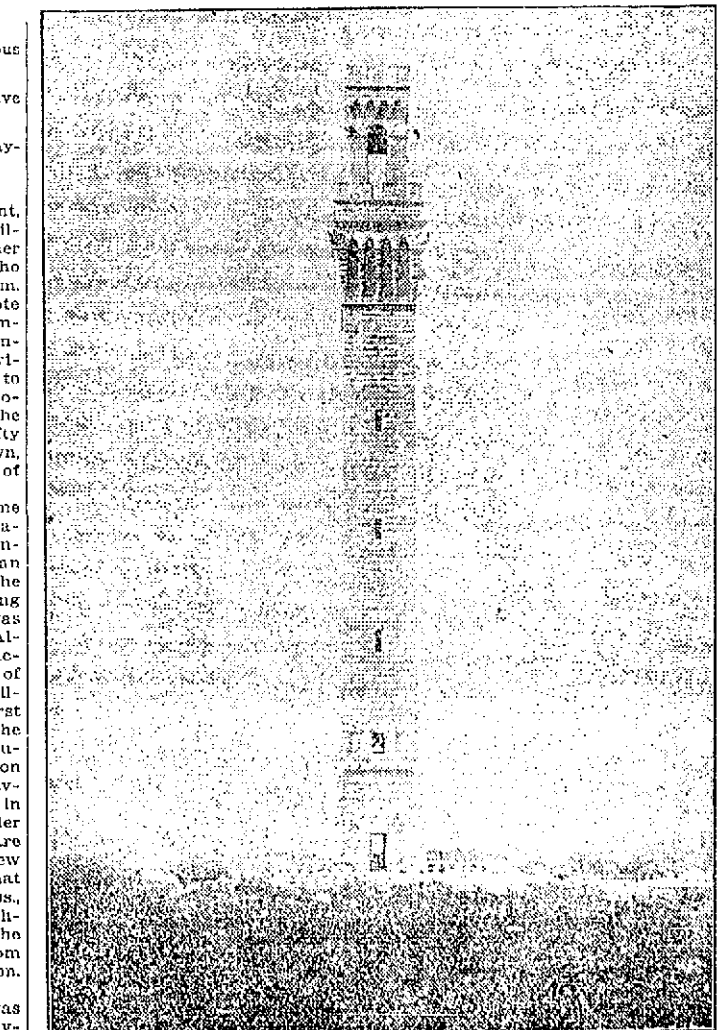

The pilgrim spirit has not fled.
It walks in noon's broad light,
And it watches the bed of the glorious dead.
With the holy stars by night.
It watches the bed of the brave who have died.
And shall guard this icebound shore
Till the waves of the bay where the Mayflower lay
Shall foam and freeze no more.

So sang the Rev. John Pierpont, poet, descendant of the pilgrim fathers and grandfather of the famous financier who took his Christian names from him. The pilgrim spirit of which he wrote will have occasion to rejoice this summer in its own quiet, subdued manner, for it will receive convincing evidence that it has been transmitted to the descendants of the men and women who founded New England. The evidence has taken shape in the lofty pilgrim memorial at Provincetown, Mass., which awaits the convenience of President Taft for its dedication.

The pilgrim memorial is the outcome of the efforts of several years by patriotic men and women who saw unbecoming neglect of the memory of an important historic occurrence in the fact that the place of the first landing of the pilgrim fathers in America was unmarked by a fitting monument. Almost every one who thinks himself acquainted by the primary facts of American history believes that the pilgrim fathers and mothers set foot first on the famous rock at Plymouth. The town on the inner side of Massachusetts bay is made the destination yearly of thousands of patriotic travelers. But they err in thinking that in paying veneration to the rock under the stone canopy at Plymouth they are setting foot on the first place in New England trod by white men. That honor belongs to Provincetown, Mass., the village on the inner side of the fishhook barb of which Cape Cod is the shaft. It lies across the bay from Plymouth, in an easterly direction. The date was Nov. 1, 1620, old style.

It was just before the landing was made at the spot which is now Provincetown that the pilgrims signed their immortal agreement for the "better ordering and preservation and furtherance" of their colony that has been called the first written constitution in the world. Abraham Lincoln declared that this document did more for human liberty than the great charter won by the barons from King John at Runnymede.

There will be imposing ceremonies at Provincetown when the new memorial is dedicated, probably in August. In addition to the president of the United States, dignitaries of the commonwealth of Massachusetts and others will be present. The historical address will be delivered by President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard. The cornerstone of the monument was laid Aug. 20, 1897, by former President Roosevelt, but he will probably be in the west when the monument is dedicated.

The monument is 262 feet and 7 inches high and is constructed of Maine granite. It is modeled after the famous tower of the Palazzo Pubblico in Siena, Italy, which is considered one of the most beautiful campaniles, or bell towers, of Italy. The construction of the Provincetown tower was supervised by engineers of the army. It rests upon a concrete foundation six feet thick. The monument cost about $100,000, of which $40,000 was contributed by the national government and $25,000 by the state of Massachusetts. The remainder was raised by private subscription through the efforts of the Cape Cod Pilgrim Memorial association.

NIGHT EDITION

PERJURY CHARGED

Another Arrest in Connection with the Keliher Case

BOSTON, June 27.—The second arrest on a charge of perjury in connection with the recent trial of William J. Keliher, for aiding Bookkeeper George W. Coleman to loot the National City Bank of Cambridge, was made at the federal building today, when John A. Cunniffe of Dorchester walked into the marshal's office. Cunniffe was secretly indicted last week by the grand jury. When he heard of the indictment he decided to surrender and appeared before Judge Colt in the United States circuit for arraignment. Cunniffe testified at the trial that he accompanied John R. Marshall from a hotel to the West-Union Telegraph company's main office, where an order for $200 was sent to Coleman in Kansas City. The government disputes the truth of Cunniffe's statement maintaining that Marshall was a fictitious name.

WESTFORD MAN IMPERIAL DECREE

Eluded the Authorities Refuses Demand for in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, June 27.—The so-called "circuit man," believed to be Edward Husher of Westford, who has been confined to the General Hospital since June 15 with a fractured skull and has lately shown signs of insanity, successfully eluded the vigilance of the hospital authorities Sunday morning and is now at large. According to the hospital physicians, Husher is very violent. Husher, who claimed his name as the "circuit man" from the fact that he came to the city in company with the 101 Ranch Real Wild West show June 15, was injured by being struck on the head by the Salem street bridge while stealing a ride on the circus train with which he was in no way connected. He was taken to the hospital, where his condition, although serious, was believed to be quite favorable. It is said that during the latter part of last week he showed decided signs of insanity which later assumed alarming proportions and he became at times quite unmanageable. Saturday he succeeded in getting away from the hospital and was at large throughout Saturday night. Sunday morning he was captured by one of the hospital orderlies and returned to his room, where he was kept under the strictest surveillance. It was reported by Dr. Manahan and Sergeant, who were on duty at the time, to make an immediate examination of the patient and insure his being sent to some asylum pending his recovery, when, with the well known cunning of the mentally unbalanced Husher again succeeded in liberating himself, this time, it is said, making his departure through a lavatory window. The police department was communicated with and a thorough search was begun, but without success. Later it was heard that the missing patient had been seen in Andover in the vicinity of the ink factory and Inspectors Woodcock and Kelleher were immediately dispatched to the scene. Their efforts were fruitless and up to an early hour yesterday morning he was still at liberty. Husher is 33 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs 180 pounds. He has a smooth face and was dressed in a gray suit and slouch hat at the time of his escape. His head was swathed in bandages.

HELD IN $5000

Men Pleaded Not Guilty of Assault

MALDEN, June 27.—The two Italians alleged to have attacked and fired several revolver shots at Patrolman John Fleming of Everett early today and later arrested after a long chase, appeared before Judge Bruce in the district court here shortly before noon and entered pleas of not guilty to charges of assault with attempt to murder. The men were held in $5,000 bail which they were unable to furnish, for hearing Thursday. In court the men gave their names as Sebastiano Blosi, 27 years old, of Everett, and Francesco Morri, 31, of Chelsea. Both men emphatically denied any connection with the shooting and said that they were returning home from a christening when taken into custody. While the hearing was in progress, an Italian got up and said that he knew the men and that they had not given their correct names. When questioned by Judge Bruce he refused to say what their right names were, but said that he was a brother of Blosi. The third Italian who is being hunted on the marshes near Chelsea had not been found at noon today.

REVOLVERS USED

Attack Made on Everett Police Officer

EVERETT, June 27.—An attack, in which several revolver shots were fired, was made on Patrolman John Fleming early today by three men who had been reprimanded by the officer for disturbing the peace. Two of the men, Italians, giving their names as Lokosufomeria and Savasgianno Biljole, were captured after a chase, while the third is being hunted on the marshes near Chelsea where the trio fled. On attempting to arrest one of them after he had warned them to stop their noise-making, Officer Fleming was set upon by the three and beaten down. The men then ran, firing at the policeman as they did so. Other patrolmen heard the shots and soon a squad was in pursuit. Two of the men were captured on the marsh, their escape being cut off by the Mystic river. As they had thrown their revolvers away, both offered resistance before they were overpowered. One of the revolvers, a .22 calibre, five shot, was later found by the police.

THREE PERISHED

In Fire That Destroyed Hotel

SENECA FALLS, N. Y., June 27.—Three persons lost their lives and another had a narrow escape from serious injury in a fire that destroyed the New Seneca house here yesterday. A building adjoining the hotel was also burned and the loss is estimated at $40,000. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White of Rochester and an unidentified man who did not register last night. About 20 persons were in the house. White had been working here for about two weeks and expected to return Sunday night to spend Sunday with him. They occupied a front room on the top floor of the hotel, but evidently became confused and were separated when an alarm was sounded by I. P. Croft, proprietor, who discovered the flames. Mrs. White's body was found on the ground floor, partly burned, but death was instantaneous. White's body was found hanging over the transom of a room on the third floor. Harry Stoneburg, a guest, was cut off from escape on the top floor. He leaped from a window, but was able to grasp a rope suspended near the ground and sustained only minor injuries.

MAKES STATEMENT RELATIVE TO ASSAULT CASE
Dr. Antonios Vrahnos, formerly one of Lowell's leading Greek physicians, but now connected with a hospital in Boston, has given friends in this city a statement relative to the brutal assault upon himself and Miss Margaret Gavin of South Boston in the Fenway Thursday evening. Dr. Vrahnos states that he and Miss Gavin were standing at the entrance to the Fenway Thursday evening about 1 o'clock waiting for a car. Two men sprang out upon them and started to assault and rob them. Dr. Vrahnos immediately went to the assistance of the young woman and in the mixup was badly beaten, and lost his Panama hat and all the money he had with him. He was quite badly hurt. Both Dr. Vrahnos and Miss Gavin will appear in court against the man charged with assaulting them.

MILITIA INVITED

Chief Marshal H. O'Sullivan Invites Militia Boys to Participate—Local Companies Preparing for Their Annual Camp Duty
That Chief Marshal Humphrey O'Sullivan means to make the monster Hibernian parade of August 24 a memorable event is evidenced by the fact that he has extended an invitation to all of the local militia companies to act as escorts for the Hibernians in the big parade. As the militia men know what an invitation from Mr. O'Sullivan means there is little doubt as to the acceptance of the invitation. Company M it would appear will be unable to attend as the Ninth Regiment, of which it is a part, has been ordered to Pine Plains from August 23

the day preceding the local parade, until August 30 for maneuvers such as the Sixth regiment went through at the same place two years ago. The local members of the Sixth regiment are enthusiastic over the fact that they are to go into regimental camp at South Framingham from July 23 to 30. South Framingham is a welcome name after the strenuous times at Pine Plains. Preparations are under way at the armory at present for the annual tour of duty. The local companies of the Sixth regiment have taken no action on Mr. O'Sullivan's invitation as yet owing to the near approach of the camp season.

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT

Seeks the Extradition of Porter Charlton

ROME, June 27.—The foreign office today decided to follow the provisions of the Italian-American extradition conventions and to ask for the extradition of Porter Charlton, leaving it with the American authorities to accept or refuse the request. As soon as it was known here that the confessed slayer was under arrest in the United States, the ministry of justice recognized the unusual situation in which the Italian authorities were placed and forthwith referred the whole matter to the foreign office. Extradition between Italy and the United States is provided for in the conventions of 1868 and 1884, but Italy has always held that these treaties did not cover the cases of Italian citizens who, having committed crimes in the United States, escaped to their native country. In such instances the government has insisted that the accused be tried in the courts of their country. Several times requests for extraditions of Italian criminals, from the American state department, have been refused. Nevertheless, in the present case the government determined to put the matter up to Washington. Should the American state department follow the precedent established by this country and refuse the extradition of Charlton, its action will be construed as a recognition of the Italian interpretation of extradition conventions, providing, of course, that the refusal is not based upon the grounds that the prisoner is insane or for any reason other than that he is an American citizen.

CALVARY BAPTIST MEN'S LEAGUE

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's League of the Calvary Baptist church services will be held tonight in the Sunday school room. Plans for the garden fête to be held on the grounds at the George house, July 12, will be discussed and perfected. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 27.—With the class day exercises on the campus, the celebration of the 70th commencement at Wesleyan university continued today. The president's reception during the late afternoon will be followed by the reunion banquets of the returning classes.

COMMENCEMENT AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 27.—Commencement week at Harvard, which began yesterday with the annual exercises of the class of 1910, continued today with readings of many other classes and the meeting of the dental school alumni at the new building on Longwood avenue, Boston. The law school celebration will come tomorrow, with Attorney General Wickes as the orator, followed on Wednesday by the commencement exercises at which Theodore Roosevelt will be present. A few hours before the former president takes his place as president of the Harvard Alumni Association in Memorial Hall, his successor will pass through a part of Cambridge on his way to his summer home in Beverly. Phi Beta Kappa day on Thursday will be marked by the oration by Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York, while Professor Henry Van Dyke of Princeton will read the poem. As side show to the great week of the university will be the Harvard Yale baseball game in New York, and the rowing regatta between the two universities at New London.

PRISONER BROKE DOWN

NEW YORK, June 27.—Today's announced decision of the Italian authorities to apply for Porter Charlton's extradition is believed here to be likely to hasten a decision on the pending question of his mental condition. Coincident with the news from Rome, too, came word from Jersey City, where the confessed wife murderer is confined pending his arraignment tomorrow on the charge of being a fugitive from Italian justice, to the effect that the young prisoner's breakdown of yesterday had been followed by a night of sleeplessness on his part, with frequent sobs when the youth seemed to lose control of himself and to break into sobs and moans. His condition today was considered worse than last night, when Warden Sullivan sent in a hurry call for physician.

NOT AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 27.—It was stated at the White House today that nothing was known there of a prospective meeting of Governor Hughes, Chief Justice Taft and President Taft at Beverly this week or next, other than in the near future. It is said positively that no such arrangement has been suggested at Washington.

PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Was Entered in Behalf of the Captured Bandit

LYNN, June 23.—Wasit Iwanowski, the captured bandit, appeared in the district court here to answer to a double charge of murder, in connection with the killing on Saturday of Thomas A. Landregan and Policeman James H. Carroll. By direction of Judge Linn, a plea of not guilty was entered and the prisoner was held without bail for the grand jury. Iwanowski, as he now calls himself, after previously giving the names of Bell Kovansky and Baccini Wladyski, did not make any plea when called upon to answer to the charges in court today. There were several witnesses waiting to be heard, and the prisoner looked them over and then said, through an interpreter who had notified him that he should plead to the charges against him: "They can tell what they know; they probably know more about it than any one else." When Iwanowski was removed from the court room and taken to the street, the wagon in which he was driven to a photographer's studio was followed by a crowd of more than 200 persons. Several photographs of the alleged murderer were taken, after which he was driven to Salem, where he was placed in the Essex county jail in that city. The condition of Andy Abson, the wounded member of the bandit gang, today, who is at the Lynn hospital,

MILL CHANGES

Will Bring Some Benefit to City

The proposed absorption of the Hamilton print works by the Pacific Mills of Lawrence will bring several compensations for Lowell. The Hamilton company will not reduce the number of its employees but will enlarge in other directions in the manufacture of other fabrics. The changes in the buildings of the street will greatly benefit the city, the property along Central street quite materially. Instead of having a lot of unsightly buildings and the blank Hamilton wall, good only for the display of show bills, there will be attractive stores from the canal bridge to Jackson street. All the odors from the print works will be eliminated as will to a large extent the smoke nuisance from the big chimney rising over Central street. The new stores will doubtless be occupied by enterprising merchants so that the part of the street will undergo a vast improvement not only in appearance but for business purposes. This will be a great improvement to Central street and one that will add to the beauty and the commercial value of the city. Rumor has it that the Merrimack Print works may soon be absorbed in a similar manner although fairly successful. The great tendency is to consolidate this business in large plants so that the work can be done more cheaply by running steadily on large orders instead of as is the case in small plants, continually changing on small orders. It is rumored that a yarn mill will be built on the space to be vacated by the rear of Central street. The news of their discharge came as a great surprise to the overseers and others in the print works Saturday. One man fainted and was taken home in a hack. The sudden turn of affairs was news even to Harry S. Duckworth, superintendent of the print works.

DEMPSEY'S PLANT

Narrowly Escaped Destruction by Fire

But for the prompt discovery of the flames and the quick work of the Boston firemen the large wholesale liquor plant, in Boston, of P. Dempsey & Co. of this city, would have been destroyed by fire Saturday evening, and a stock of domestic and imported liquors of an estimated value of nearly $100,000 consumed. The P. Dempsey company occupies a six story building in Merrimack street, using every floor in the building. The fire plant shut down at five o'clock Saturday evening. Among its employees are several Lowell men. About seven o'clock an employee of a stable nearby noticed smoke issuing from a window on the fourth floor of the building and he immediately pulled in an alarm from a neighboring box. The fire was discovered a lively blaze on the fourth floor which is used as a cooper shop which had burned through the ceiling to the fifth floor on which is stored a costly stock of spirits, etc. It is supposed that one of the employees of the cooper shop left a hot branding iron on the woodwork, which caused the fire. The woodwork and the partitions were quite severely burned, but the stock for the most part escaped. The fire burned within a few feet of ten barrels of alcohol, while several carloads of excellent escaped by a few feet. The damage to the stock will be comparatively light.

AMES ATTACKS LODGE

HON. BUTLER AMES, M. C.

Makes Formal Announcement of Candidacy for the Senate

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Representative Butler Ames yesterday formally announced his candidacy for the United States senate, to succeed Senator Lodge. Mr. Ames' statement follows:

"Mr. Ames now makes the official announcement of his candidacy for the United States senate, having tried in vain to induce someone else to lead the fight against Boss Lodge and his political machine."

"This machine, backed by all the large corporations and by all the state and federal patronage at his command, has served for many years as a ready and efficient tool to crush all political ambitions, endeavors or opinions not sanctioned by Mr. Lodge."

"His orders have gone out to crush not only to suit his own political ends, but also to advance the selfish financial schemes of the large railroads, banking and manufacturing interests he serves in the halls of congress as well as in the Massachusetts legislature."

"His machine, controlling for so many years the political destinies in the state, has been connected with, has been a party to and has grown up with the lobby that plies its trade at the state house."

Lobby Leader Lodge's Friend

"The well recognized leader of the lobby has been a member of the state central committee for more than a decade. In that committee he has been a leader and his word was law, for was and is he not one of Mr. Lodge's closest political friends and advisers?"

"This man was driven from the republican state central committee last fall by outraged public sentiment, and though still the head of the lobby, has been kept away from the state house this year for appearance's sake, and has done his work through lieutenants. His attendance at the state house during past years was so regular that his absence this year has been the cause of almost daily comment."

"It is of interest to know that in the midst of the successful campaign waged in Haverhill last fall against the slandering of the state political machine and the lobby, Mr. Lodge was entertained at this man's home in that city."

"That a member of the state central republican committee, recognized as one of the mouthpieces of Mr. Lodge and having at his back the party machine, made his livelihood by lobbying in the Massachusetts legislature for the large corporations, and at the same time carrying out the mandates of the machine, is a commentary on the machine and the ideals in politics of Mr. Lodge."

Cites Case of Two Colliers

"For some unfortunate born to poverty and with pride of race or tradition of family and who, without education in right or wrong, takes or tries to take for his own purposes that which does not belong to him, for such a person we can have only sympathy and sorrow."

"But one, born to wealth and family pride, surrounded by standards of education and high ideals, who takes or tries to take for a political ally or friend that which belongs to his country, deserves no honor or consideration from the people he has tried to dispossess."

Why Lodge Has Failed

"While he is conscious of his own shortcomings, no one recognizes more quickly than does Mr. Ames the talents possessed by Mr. Lodge, a scholar, a historian, an author of wide and varied experience and whose very length of service ought, under ordinary circumstances, to be a bar to his removal.

"With all his gifts and opportunities he has made such use of them that his continuance in public life depends not upon his service to the people of his state, but to a political machine. This machine is used as a club for the individual of independent thought and action, which it serves as a willing tool to those of wealth, of influence and of power, seeking undue favors."

"Had he made his successes depend upon principle and not on politics, his position today would be unassailable."

Lodge's Hope in Roosevelt

"The political boss and manipulator of the state, unwilling to follow the policy of 'live and let live,' he has used his great power to assassinate those who dared differ in opinion or principle. It is reported that in his present extremity, fearful to seek reelection on his long public record in congress and in the state, his one hope is that Mr. Roosevelt may create new confidence in his behalf by speaking for him as an old friend."

"It is hard to believe that the ex-president will lend himself to the political support of one, even though a friend, who has consistently violated in this state all the teachings of which he is the great exponent."

"The public state of mind in the state today is the result, not of what has been said against Mr. Lodge, for no one has dared to attack him, but of each individual's own interpretation of his acts and utterances and of the conduct of the machine of which he is the moving force."

The Issue of the Campaign

"The people of the state will realize in such a case that the ex-president could not have the intimate acquaintance acquired through sorrowful experience and possessed by each citizen of Massachusetts, and so would appreciate that his support of Mr. Lodge was out of keeping with the facts."

"Massachusetts will be fully able to judge and decide for herself from an experience of some 20 years."

"The Lodge machine and the lobby worked in the senate again this year to successfully defeat the direct primary bill, which had passed the house."

"To the support or defeat of this bill I did not lift so much as a finger, though its passage would have been to my political advantage."

"With direct primaries it is universally admitted that Mr. Lodge would have no possible chance of re-election."

"The issue of the coming campaign will be Lodgeism and political misrule, with the open connivance of the machine lobby with large financial interests to control elections and legislative action."

Will Try to Pledge Candidates

"It is desirable to call the attention of the voters of Massachusetts to the fact that by compelling every candidate for the coming legislature to declare himself, unambiguously, for Mr. Ames or for Mr. Lodge, an opportunity will thereby be given for an expression by the people of their desire at the polls."

"The Lodge machine will make every effort to prevent the pledging of candidates in the belief that unpledged candidates can be controlled by the machine or by money or by corporation influence. To prevent this Mr. Ames will use every endeavor to compel candidates in every district to pledge themselves on this issue, and this end asks the co-operation of every voter who, believing in fair play, political freedom and independent thought, desires an end of the present political misrule with its machine-lobby control."

"The defeat of Mr. Lodge and the termination of this machine will tend more than anything else to party success, not only in the state but in the nation. It will restore confidence in republican management by divorcing the legislature lobby from the political machine, and by defeating a public official who has so long served the private interests rather than the public good."

DIP INJURED

James Fitzgerald of 15 White street, while stepping out of a car at the corner of Merrimack and Suffolk streets shortly after five o'clock yesterday afternoon, fell and cut his head and sustained serious lacerations about the hip. The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment.

PLAYED BALL ON SUNDAY

John L. Gandy, 34 1/2 years, was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Stephen Christie for playing baseball on the Lord's Day. He will be brought before Judge Hadley in the juvenile session of the police court Friday morning.

Revere Boys Jumped
Off a Car

REVERE, June 27.—Walter Stevens, aged 12, son of Anthony Stevens, janitor of the Revere town hall, and Anthony Curtis, a lad about the same age, son of John Curtis, 225 Park avenue, were probably fatally injured about 5 yesterday afternoon by jumping off an electric car which was traveling at fast speed on Beach street, near Webster street.

The boys had been to the beach together and were on their way to their homes in the central part of the town. They were seen near Grand Army hall by Dr. Joseph E. Lamb, agent of the board of health, jumping on the rear of an electric car to ride a short distance while the conductor was engaged at the other end of the car. Dr. Lamb recognized the Stevens boy and warned him to stop. The boys then walked toward Broadway till they were out of sight, when they apparently jumped on the rear of another car. A short distance west of the B. & M. R. R. bridge some one shouted at the boys and they jumped from the moving car. Both were thrown heavily on the cross pavement. The right side of the Stevens boy's head was crushed and his right shoulder was broken.

Young Curtis struck on his forehead, fracturing his skull. Both were unconscious when picked up. Walter Kirkjian took the boys in his automobile to the office of Dr. J. S. Morris, who ordered them removed to the Frost hospital, Chelsea.

An operation was performed on Anthony Curtis, but the hospital authorities give slight encouragement that either boy will live.

MATHEWS ELECT

NEW OFFICERS FOR NEXT SIX MONTHS

The semi-annual election of officers of the Mathew's Temperance Institute was held yesterday morning at the institute building in Dutton street. Owing to the fact that every member was interested in the election there was a large attendance.

The following were the officers chosen to occupy the chairs during the ensuing six months: President, James J. Gallagher; vice-president, Michael J. Boyle; spiritual director, Rev. Dr. Kehler; recording secretary, George F. Briggan; financial secretary, James F. Marshall; treasurer, Robert E. Brady; marshal, Robert E. Spencer; board of trustees, Patrick McCann, John Ralls, John J. Gullrich; board of examiners, Frank Kelley, Henry Danglefield, William Conley; literary committee, James E. Riley, John McDermott, Edward Harris.

The society also appointed a committee to make arrangements for the celebration of Fr. Mathew's birthday anniversary on Monday, October 10.

They arranged for a special meeting of the society to be held on Sunday morning, July 17, to make arrangements to take part in the national convention of the C. T. A. U. of America in Boston, the week of August 7.

Y.M.C.I. OFFICERS

CHOSEN FOR THE ENSUING SIX MONTHS

The semi-annual election of officers took place yesterday at the regular meeting of the Young Men's Catholic Institute. The meeting was presided over by President King and the following were the officers elected: President, John J. Sullivan; vice president, Patrick Farrell; treasurer, Rev. John P. O'Brien, O. M. I.; financial secretary, Michael O'Keefe; recording secretary, George F. O'Leary; board of trustees, William J. King and John Martin; marshal, John Tansey.

The installation of the newly elected officers will take place next Sunday morning at the regular meeting and President King appointed James V. Tully, William O'Leary and James J. Kelley as a committee on arrangements.

A committee of five was appointed to have charge of arrangements for an outing to be held in August.

Several members spoke on the good and welfare and several recommendations from the board of trustees were accepted and changes in the constitution of the organization were made.

WOMEN
OF MIDDLE
AGENeed Lydia E. Pinkham's
Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 118 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that women are expected to bring on them the Change of Life. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued its use. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—MRS. SARAH LOUISIANA, 414 S. Livingston St., Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache and nervous prostration.

No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made exclusively from roots and herbs.

DIAMOND NOTES
At Lynn today.
Four home games this week.

Last week was certainly a bad one for Lowell.

We'll be in the first division yet. The Lowell team has too many good players to go bad all the time.

President John I. Taylor and Manager Donavan met yesterday, and made arrangements to send several young players to clubs where they can get real work. Barberich was sent back to Providence. Manager Jimmie Collins coming to Boston to close the deal. Martin McHale, a pitcher secured from the University of Maine, will go to Brockton of the New England league. Hearn, an infielder, has been secured by Worcester. Chris Mahoney, the Portland pitcher, is likely to go to some minor league club.

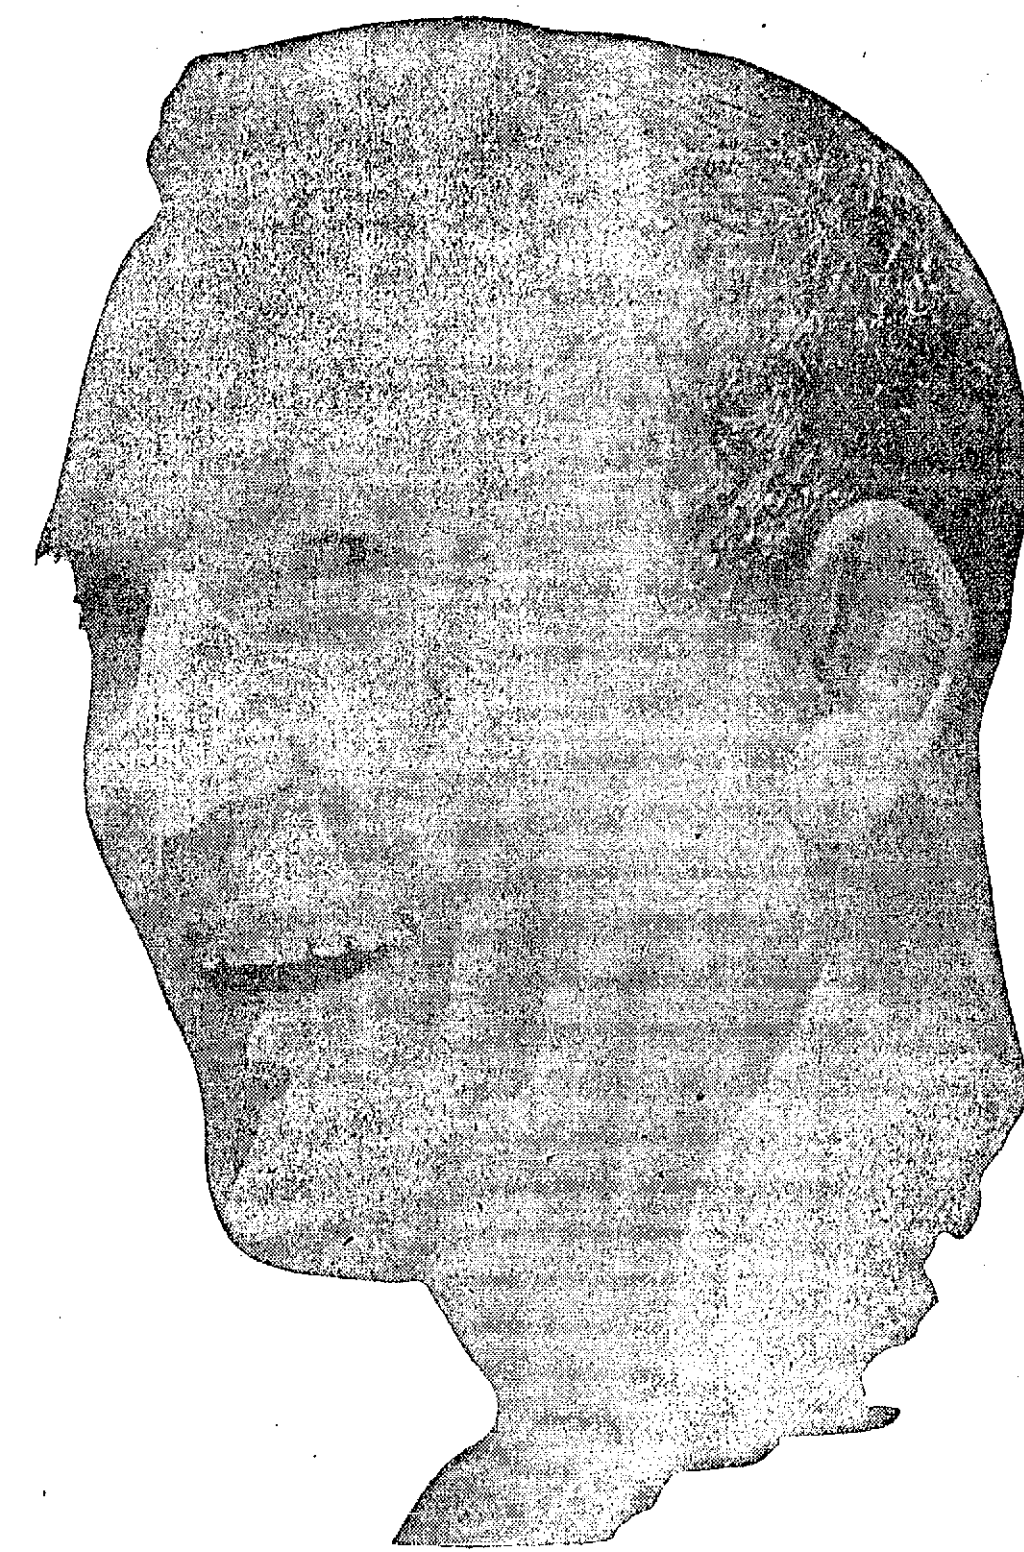

Manager John H. O'Brien of the Fall River baseball club has given Jimmy Canavan, scout for the Detroit Americans, an option on July 11 for $2500 back. Canavan is said to have been very highly impressed with the young fellow's ability, though it is his first year as a professional.

He went to Fall River with a remarkable record for victories and strike-outs as a semi-professional in New York state the past two years, and from the way he has been going in Fall River he bids fair to duplicate the performance. It is possible that the deal will not be closed until Manager Jennings of the Tigers gets a chance to see the other fellow in action.

Bursley, the Lowell pitcher slated to report here any time now, pitched for the Somersworth, N. H., team against Dover, Saturday, and Dover won, 2 to 0. Pugsley allowed five hits.

Lowell has had hard luck in its catching department. With Hunter in the game, the team would be several games ahead of its present record.

THE JEFFRIES SMILE AND THE

JAMES J. JEFFRIES

RENO, Nev., June 27.—If opinions would win a prize fight the coming contest between Jeffries and Johnson is now over, with Jeffries the winner. Many experts on the ground have expressed their opinion that big Jim is a physical marvel and fit to fight the battle of his career. Mike Murphy, trainer of University of Pennsylvania, one of the best judges of athletes in the world, who recently arrived here, says he is amazed at the excellence of Jeff's condition and declares that the big fellow is the finest specimen of a man that he ever witnessed. Billy Muldoon, the former world's champion wrestler and also a splendid judge of an athlete's condition, has expressed himself as amazed at the appearance of the big fellow. "I have never seen him look better in my life," said he. This, coming from Billy Muldoon, should carry some weight with the men who have not been able to bring themselves to believe that Jeffries is ready to fight. The change in altitude seemed a tonic to the "hope of the white race." Not only is he lightning fast in his training stunts but he goes at his work as if he enjoyed it, playing all sorts of tricks upon his attendants and romping like an overgrown boy.

leased by Lowell, is not making good. Lack of control is his failing.

Pocahontas John Smith when he resigned the managerial berth at Lowell was paid a full season's salary. Jimmy Gray told John he could remain the entire season if he desired, but the low spoken veteran said, "It's no use, I cannot deliver the goods." Gray paid out $470 for players from California during the spring workout and when they failed to make good, it broke Smith's heart. Smith also worried when the team did not win, and Gray said that John took it so to heart that he was ashamed to go out upon the coaching lines. The owner of the Lowell club and old Pocahontas parted firm friends and one of the best managers and players that ever donned a uniform has likely passed from the New England league forever. Smith was too good a fellow to manage a lot of pampered and spoiled ball tossers, and he realized it after taking another try at the helm. All Lowell fans should think well of John Smith who was always on the level and who worked hard to deliver to them the best team in the circuit.—Lynn News.

Tom McCoy says that Pitcher Osborne looks like the Giant in that old time comic opera "Jack in the Beanstalk."

Fred Tenney pulled off a rare stunt when he felled a bunt to third and nipped Big Metz. If Swornstedt and dumped down the first base line when Fred was moving towards third, the big leaguer would have looked like a sucker.—Lynn News.

Billy Hamilton squatted in the shade of the bench yesterday as Uncle Jake Morse gave him a vacation because of his run-in Wednesday with Connolly in this city.

A correspondent for Sporting Life takes exceptions to the assertion that Harry Wormwood's performance at Worcester, June 8, when he pitched 11 innings against the Burket men and did not allow them a hit or run, is singular. The correspondent says that in a New York state league game played at Utica, Sept. 12, 1907, J. Leo Fairbanks of Utica, pitching for Albany, shut out Utica for 12 innings without a hit or run. The game went 16 innings, Albany winning by the score of 4 to 0. Fairbanks allowed a hit in the 13th inning and another in the 14th. He struck out 16 men and issued only two passes. He made no wild pitch and hit no batsman. Albany played without an error, and earned all of its runs. The only Utica man left on base was Frank Carroll, when he knocked out his second hit in the 14th inning. After getting his hit in the 13th inning Carroll was out in attempting to steal second. Not a Utica player reached base. Fairbanks is now with Utica and pitching winning ball.

The protested game between the Brookside and Pillings teams was won by the latter, the game being forfeited to them, 9 to 0. In this game the Brookside used, it is alleged, a player who had played with another team in the league, and who, it is said, had not secured his release, which, according to the rules of the league, caused the game to be forfeited.

The games for next week are as follows: Wanderers vs. Crimsons at South common.

The Sanctuaries choir baseball team has re-organized for the season of 1910 and would like to arrange a game with any team in or out of the city. Manager J. J. Queenan.

The Mohairs went to Lawrence Saturday afternoon and were severely trounced by the team representing that city, the score being 134 to 56.

Lawrence went to bat first and when the first wicket fell 32 runs had been scored. Fifth of the down river team was the star player of the game, scoring 41 runs before he was retired.

The only man on the Lowell team

who could seem to play was Barrett, who made 26 runs before he was bowled out. None of the other members of the Mohair eleven went into the double numbers.

BY PUPILS OF SACRED HEART SCHOOL

A most interesting exhibition of the work done by the pupils of the Sacred Heart school was held in the school hall Saturday and was visited by a large number of the friends of the pupils. A feature of the exhibit was the needlework of the girls who showed wonderful proficiency in this practical branch.

THE PACIFIC MILLS

Hamilton Print Works

It is reported that the Hamilton Mfg. Co. of this city has sold its print works to the Pacific Mills of Lawrence and that about all of the overseers and some of the help in the print works were laid off incidentally at noon today. The report has it that the Pacific Mills will take possession in a few weeks or as soon as the odds and ends have been picked up and orders finished that are underway.

Asked if there was any foundation in fact for the report that the print works had been sold, Agent Childs of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. referred the reporter for The Sun to the Boston office and at the Boston office the reporter was informed that "Treasurer Sharpe was 'out of town for the day,' and there was no one there who had heard anything about the purchase.

The print works, of course, is but a small part of the plant of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. In a recent report appearing in a trade paper the worth of the Hamilton print works was estimated at $500,000.

The Hamilton Mfg. Co. was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts in 1825 and has been under the Amory management for twenty-three years. In that time there has been paid out of earnings about $1,500,000 for renewals, and close to $3,000,000 for repairs. The average profit per year has been $199,709 or over 9 per cent. on the capitalization, and the total amount of dividends paid was $801,000—making an average dividend per year in that time of about 5 per cent. The estimate for a going mill is usually figured at about $20 per spindle. The Hamilton Mfg. Co. has 118,200 spindles—so that if we figure the capitalization per spindle at $20, the total value of the plant will be represented by $1,182,000 or about what it is now selling for on the market. The company, however, has a print works which must be worth $500,000, if it is worth $1, and it has a surplus of $757,000. This gives a total estimate of $2,437,000, or over $600,000 above its par value and more than double the amount for which it is now selling.

The company's property covers an acreage of nine and a half acres of ground consisting of six mills, print works and storerooms for finished goods and its cotton storerooms which was the pioneer of its kind. The company manufactures flannels, prints (ticks, stripes, drills, sheetings and shirtings; employs 2380 people; consumes about 200,000 pounds of cotton per week and dyes and prints about 1,000,000 yards per week. Its product is sold through Wellington, Sears & Co.

ANOTHER TONG WAR

Two Chinamen Fatally Wounded and One Painfully Injured

NEW YORK, June 28.—The tong war that sleeps but never dies, despite threats, promises and solemn treaties, broke out again yesterday afternoon within the little triangle of narrow streets just off the Bowery known as Chinatown.

In 50 seconds three Chinamen were shot, two of them fatally, a third was painfully wounded and more than 40 shots from heavy-calibered revolvers splattered against the bricks of pavements. In three minutes seven Chinamen were arrested.

It was all over nearly as quickly as it had begun and the remainder of the afternoon the streets were as quiet as they had been an instant before battle and murder broke the stillness.

It had happened that the 2000th anniversary of the founding of the society of the Four Brothers fell on this day of rest, and in its honor the members were to give a banquet in Pell street at 5 o'clock. A monster scarlet flag scoloped in green floated from the banquet hall, and guests began to arrive early from all parts of the city and even from neighboring towns.

Sunday is market day for Chinatown. Then the streets are thick with sightseers, then chop-suey restaurants thrive best and in remote back rooms the dice rattle faster and the dominoes click sharper.

It was in the midst of this restlessness, shuffling throng, sown thick with policemen, that the shooting began at just 4 o'clock. There is no certainty of the precise provocation, but it is generally understood in Chinatown that the Ong Leong tong did not relish the fact that Chu Hen, recently acquitted of the murder of Ong Leong tong man, was to be the guest of honor.

The Hip Sing tong, the Ong Leong tong and the Four Brothers occupy each their own street, and no prudent member of one society trespasses on the territory of another. Pickets had been posted today at the ends of Pell street by the Four Brothers, and scouts of the Ong Leong tong patrolled the adjacent boundary of Mott street. There were more policemen on the beat than usual, both because this was Sunday and because of the banquet.

Somebody stepped over the line. Somebody began to shoot.

It is doubtful if any white man will ever know who trespassed and who punished, because the rain of bullets came too fast from too many directions at once for the eye to catch the first flash.

And no Chinaman will ever tell. Sen Chin, the inevitable innocent bystander, was the first to fall, shot through the abdomen. He will die. Chu Poo was shot behind the ear and in the back. He died last night. Chu Pan was shot through the left thigh. His injuries are not serious.

Thus far it has been impossible to learn to which tong the individual wounded belong. All were taken to a hospital.

The police made a scramble for everybody that ran, but there were more honest fugitives than combatants, and doorways are thicker in Chinatown than burrows in a rabbit warren. Seven were caught, some of whom the police say they saw shooting and on others revolvers were found.

The reserves were called out, a cordon was drawn tight about the entire quarter, all visitors were barred, and no curiosity wagons were allowed last night. Then the interrupted banquet of the Four Brothers, with Chu Pan as the guest of honor, went on.

RESISTED ARREST

Man Killed Two Officers and Wounded Three Others

OCILLA, Ga., June 27.—Barricaded in his home near here, W. H. Bostwick who last night killed two officers and seriously wounded three others was still successfully resisting the police and sheriff's posse at an early hour today. The deputies were inclined to wait the arrival of the militia called out shortly before midnight by Governor Brown.

With Bostwick in the house were six of his children, all small and some of them girls.

Four officers were sent last night to arrest Bostwick and he opened fire on them as soon as they neared the house. Steve Davis, the Ocilla chief of police, and Deputy Sheriff Sheffield were instantly killed; Sheriff J. P. McInnis was fatally wounded and Deputy T. C. Bass was shot in the abdomen and seriously hurt. Threats were made by the posse to burn Bostwick out of his house but when it was seen that nothing could be accomplished in that way, the deputies began firing. It is not known whether any of the bullets found a human mark. It is known that one of the little girls in the house is ill.

It is stated that several months ago Bostwick shot his brother-in-law, C. G. Fields and was arrested, charged with assault with intent to murder. He was put under a peace bond but his bondsman recently told the sheriff that he wanted to be relieved from responsibility. On Friday a deputy went to Bostwick's house to arrest him but Bostwick told him he would never submit to arrest; that he would die first.

A large number of citizens left Ocilla for the scene of the shooting last night well armed.

ANNUAL OUTING

Of the Five Scandinavian Societies

Midsummer's Day, the summer festival of the Scandinavians, was observed Saturday at Nabnasset grove in West Chelmsford by the five Scandinavian societies in this city. The day was ideal for the festivities, and about 1000 Swedes, Norwegians and Danes made their way to the pleasure grounds, where a delightful program of games and sports of the mother country was carried out.

During the forenoon several hundred made their way to the picnic grounds, but the majority of the people did not arrive until during the early part of the afternoon. Many of those in attendance wore the costumes of the Scandinavian countries, while others wore quaint and pretty head dresses.

In front of the pavilion was erected a mammoth majstang or midsummer pole. This was twined with laurel and other greenery and at the top were the flags of America, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

About 2.30 o'clock Mr. Torsten Reensterna welcomed the guests. His address was in English and during the course of his remarks he said he hoped that the bond of friendship of the three races would continue for years to come. At the conclusion of his speech he was greeted with cheers, after which "America" was sung.

A band perched on the top of the roof of the pavilion then lit up an old country polka and the men and women who were in costume danced about the pole. Anna Bernston appeared in the costume of Bohuslan, a town in southern Sweden. Anna Svensson, in the costume of a Jemtland maiden. Jennie L. Ingstead and Mabel Erikson were in Norwegian national costume, with bodices of bright red and with skirts of darker hue. Julia Johnson represented Vingokor.

Hilda Persson represented Skane, a portion of South Sweden, and Anna Peterson was in the national costume of Norway, as were Jennie and Laura Christanson. Eleda Elnehom wore the costume of Dalarna. Fredrika Elnehom was in the dress of Vingokor, and Ida Alexander wore the costume of Bohuslan. Bena Svensson wore the prettiest costume of Smaland, and Dorothy Kristofferson was in the dress of a Norwegian peasant maid from Tyrsel. Helga Westgaard wore the dress of a Hedmark, a province in Norway. Caroline Olsen and Houghita Olsen wore the Norwegian national costume.

Little four year old Astrid Persson appeared in the costume of Skane, Sweden.

Then came the sports. The first contest was a tug-of-war between the single and married men which was won by the former. The single men's team was made up as follows:

Ellison, John Nelson, Peterson, M. Anderson and Swanson. The losing team was: Nyström, Wikander, Hanson, Swanson and Crabtree. The prize was $5. The captain of the winning team got the odd dollar.

The 100 yard dash for girls was captured by Fanny Anderson while Anna Svensson came in second.

There were but two teams which finished in the three-legged race. Bergman and M. Anderson won the first prize while Oscar Linquist and Gustaf Bratt came in second.

In the egg race for young women there were 19 starters. Alma Johnson won first place and the second place was captured by Anna Svensson.

The sack race, 100 yards, was won

In the nail driving contest, Anna Svensson, who had previously captured two prizes, took the first prize, a rug, driving 31 nails in two minutes. Mrs. Lillian Peterson was second, driving 27 nails.

The shoe race was won by George Wilkins. Arthur Nilsson was second, and he captured a ball, glove and bat. The 10 yards dash for boys was won by William Berg, with George Palmgren second. The 50 yards dash for girls under 10 years of age, was won by Ellen Peterson, Norma Reensterna was second.

The final sport of the afternoon was a "doughnut" race. The participants in the race had to start for the hanging rolls 50 yards away, rush up to them, eat them and then run to the final tape. Edh. Nyström got the first place, and Cecilia Anderson was second.

A basket supper was enjoyed at six o'clock and after the contents of the baskets had been disposed of there was music, dancing and boating.

The officers who had charge of the affair were as follows:
Swedish Mutual Benefit society, Torsten Reensterna, general chairman of the day, and Harold Hornsdaal, and A. P. Hallenberg; Norwegian Sick Benefit society, John Siverson, P. Hansen and H. Hansen; Nornen, No. 76, Order of Wasa, Albert Carlson, Carl Bernson and Niles Nelson; John Eriksson council, No. 152, Royal Arcanum, John Lund, Victor Philin and Gustaf Johnson; and Court Scandinavia, Foresters of America, Nils Anderson, Emil Persson and Frank Palmgren. Assisting these members of the general committee were: Erik A. Johnson, Per Ekenstam, C. Myhr, S. E. Nelson, Erik Hedman, August Eliason, Gustaf Johnson, Carl Christanson, Anders Johnson and C. F. AT SALEM DEPOT

Balloon Massachusetts Made Landing

The balloon "Massachusetts," belonging to the New England Aero club, carrying Charles J. Glidden, Elmer Van Valkenberg, of South Framingham, and Mrs. Merton N. Glidden, of this city, which rose from the works of the Lowell Gas Light Co. in school street, at 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, landed an hour and a half later on George Noyes' farm, in Salem Depot, N. H., about 15 miles from the starting point.

The occupants of the basket had a most delightful trip even though they did not travel as long a distance as they would have had there been a brisk breeze.

Four automobiles filled with friends of the people in the basket followed the balloon and arrived at the field where the landing was made at the same time as the balloon. Mr. Glidden after packing up his balloon returned to his home in Boston.

TO SIGN TREATY

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Ambassador Bryce will journey to Washington from the summer home of his British embassy in New Hampshire this week for the purely ministerial function of signing with Secretary Knox in the signing of a treaty providing for the adjustment of certain pecuniary claims of citizens of the United States or Great Britain against each other. Those are what may be regarded as "left over claims," that is, those which were not included in various conventions and arbitrations during the past century. No one knows the sum total involved, though it cannot be considerable.

TWO MEN SHOT

Woman Hit With a Cannon Ball

WORCESTER, June 27.—An Italian row, in which baseball clubs, cannon balls and revolvers were used with good effect, was stopped after two men had been shot and a woman hit over the head with one of the cannon balls yesterday. None of the victims were seriously hurt.

Joe Pajisettio was shot in the left arm, and Gusto Tivino was shot in the hand with a 35 calibre revolver which the police claim was wielded by Pasquale Pajisettio, brother of one of the injured men. Both were taken to the City hospital for treatment.

Pasquale was arrested charged with carrying a dangerous weapon and his wife was treated for a large scalp wound at the police station. The police were unable to determine what caused the trouble. A hundred people were attracted to the scene of the fight in Mulberry street court and the police had trouble to disperse them.

ANNOUNCES ITS

Beginning, Today, June 27

Notwithstanding we have done the most careful merchandising, we find ourselves with heavy stocks which positively must be got down to reasonable bounds before our inventory, July 31st.

So we are stealing this week from our regular season, and are inaugurating this July Reduction Sale today, instead of waiting until the passing of the "Fourth," as is our custom.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pitote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

THE EXPRESS BUSINESS

The Board of Trade should use its influence to hurry the coming of the trolley express. While the local merchants are complaining of the inadequacy of the express service in Lowell, the new line seems to be letting its best opportunity slip by. The express service is very important to a business city, and if it be deficient the citizens alone can bring about the required remedy.

THE LYNN TRAGEDY

The police of Lynn are to be congratulated upon the promptness with which they bagged the three desperate highwaymen who made so bold as to plan and execute a deliberate murder in broad daylight for the purpose of robbery.

A shoe manufacturer, who had secured the services of an officer to protect him, was on his way to his shop from the bank when both men were instantly shot down by yeggs who carried off the bag of money. But, thanks to the vigilance of the police, their good marksmanship and courage, they very soon laid two of the highwaymen low and captured the third. All three, it is said, are strangers who may have come from New York. The crime was such a bold one that had the culprits escaped the police would have been severely criticized, as it required but a short time to throw the city into a ferment of excitement.

It has been reported that officials of the General Electric company have been in dread of some such outrage as this for months past, but they were very cautious and never carried their money so openly. The fact that one of the men belonged in New York would indicate that they came to Lynn for the purpose.

It is a source of gratification that the highwaymen were so promptly shot down and captured. That will teach others a wholesome lesson.

It seems that we have arrived at a period when no man is safe even on the public streets in daylight if he is known to carry any large amount of money. Lynn has suffered serious loss from the yeggs, but they will give the city a wide berth in the future.

It seems that some steps should be taken to prevent the indiscriminate sale of the most deadly weapons to all kinds of foreigners, anarchists, highwaymen, thugs and thieves of all descriptions.

It behooves the officers of every city to be trained as marksmen with the revolver and to be supplied with the best and most recent weapons of the kind to be had.

ENFORCING LAW IN TOLEDO

Braud Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, O., has issued a very interesting pamphlet on the subject of law enforcement in reply to certain appeals made to him for improvement in the moral conditions prevailing throughout the city.

So far as can be learned from the mayor's letter, reference was made to gambling and immoral dens which, as is well known, are quite prevalent in western cities.

In his letter Mayor Whitlock shows that he is considerable of a philosopher and that he doubts the efficacy of compulsory methods of making people good. This will be seen from the following paragraph:

"What you regret and deplore and what I regret and deplore, is the existence of vice and crime in the world today. You propose to abolish them by the use of force; in my philosophy they can never be abolished until we ascertain the causes of them, and then remove those causes. To do this, we shall have to undertake reforms with which the policeman and the gaoler will have little to do; indeed, the accomplishment of those reforms will do away with the policeman and the gaoler, or release them from their present duties of destruction, to real service for mankind. These reforms should eventually do away with those influences in our system which give monopolies and privileges to a few, and by denying common rights to the many, reduce them to a condition of involuntary poverty. For it is involuntary poverty, and its direct and indirect effects, that produce crime, and our duty is to make involuntary poverty impossible."

In seeking to remove the cause of crime while at the same time battling with the effects, Mayor Whitlock is apparently taking the right course. Being acquainted with the local conditions he knows how far compulsion can be carried without defeating its purpose. Cities vary very greatly in this respect. The western cities, we surmise, would not stand the restraint that is willingly accepted by the people of eastern cities.

It is but a few years ago since the mayor of Toledo began a rigorous enforcement of the Sunday laws. This had continued only for two Sundays when the city council repealed every ordinance providing for Sabbath observance. With that as the last popular expression on the subject, Mayor Whitlock says he does not feel authorized to go too far in the line of policy adopted by Mayor Jones. But he seeks to attain the same ends by a different policy, and if we are to judge from his letter he is attaining fairly satisfactory results.

In the very worst cities there is a moral sentiment which if properly aroused and appealed to will banish gambling and its concomitant evils, social vice and intemperance.

Mayor Whitlock makes the point that as each city has its individuality and should be allowed to make its own police regulations instead of being governed by general statutes. In order to make the people better and to lessen crime he further recommends the extension of opportunities for rest and recreation with wholesome and ennobling entertainment. Much has been done in this respect, he says, by providing branch libraries, public parks, comfort stations, band concerts, public baths, swimming pools, playgrounds, both for children and adults with opportunity for indoor and outdoor sport. The school buildings, he says, should be freely used by all the people, and public buildings should be erected in which all the people would take pride and delight.

In this method of drawing the people out from the secret dens of vice and teaching them to enjoy innocent recreation, Mayor Whitlock is not alone in opinion of its general efficacy. Judge Pickman of this city preaches the same doctrine and it is being generally accepted by all the municipalities in this country.

SEEN AND HEARD

City Auditor Arthur F. Brodie of Kansas City, Mo., has just put in his office an automatic timekeeping clock, at which his clerks must register when they begin and leave off work. It is said that similar clocks will be put in the other departments.

It is all right to tell people how handsome you were when you were a baby boy, but don't make the mistake of bringing out the old family album and showing pictures of yourself to prove it.

If the man with the artistic temperament doesn't marry a wife with practical common sense, the family is pretty sure to come to grief.

The people who put on eye glasses to make them look intellectual never would be credited with being intellectual under any other circumstances.

After all, nobody can blame the bald headed man if he runs enthusiastically to whistlers.

Don't spend any time considering whether or not you have reason to feel ashamed of your great-grandfather. Think whether your great-grandfather would have any reason to feel ashamed of you.

When a woman marries a man just to get a living without working, it serves her right if things go wrong and she finds out that she has to support her husband.—Somerville Journal.

PASSING OF THE CRADLE

Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden cradle.

The rude hand of progress has thrust it aside.

No more to its motion, o'er sleep's fairy ocean.

Our play-weary wayfarers peacefully glide.

No more by the rhythm of slow-moving rocker.

Their sweet, dreamy fancies are fostered and fed.

No more to low singing the cradle goes swinging.

The child of this era is put into bed.

Good-by to the cradle, the dear wooden cradle.

It went to the twilight a strange, subtle charm.

When bees left the clover, when play-time was o'er.

How soft seemed the pillow, how distant the ceiling.

How weird were the voices that whispered and pined.

What dreams would come flocking, as rocking and rocking.

We floated away into slumber profound.

Good-by to the cradle, the old wooden cradle.

The babe of today does not know it by sight.

When day leaves the border, with system and order.

The child goes to bed and we put out the light.

I bow to Progression, and ask no concession.

The old wooden cradle, is ruthlessly cast.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Rev. Joseph B. Kettle of St. Joseph, Mo., has accepted the call extended by the Orthodox Congregational church and parish of Leominster, and hopes to begin his pastorate July 1.

A woman has just been appointed church warden at Walsingham-on-Sowe in Warwickshire, England. She is the ninth woman to hold such an office in England. There is also one woman sexton in a small church in Lincolnshire. The office is hereditary and has been in her family for more than two hundred years.

The athletic spirit which animates the pages of Mr. Arthur W. North's "Camp and Camino" is the same that led him as an undergraduate to take the first track team east from California to compete in the intercollegiate games and has since sent him in search of adventure into most of the out of the way corners of the west. One of these out of the way places is Magdalena Bay, which, together with certain naval authorities are the most important strategic harbor on the Pacific coast.

The late King Edward was a great cigar smoker, but in the privacy of his workroom at Buckingham palace and Sandringham he liked a pipe. King George is also a cigar smoker, but he does not disdain a pipe, for which he formed a liking when he was an active naval officer.

The czar of Russia contents himself with cigarettes. Formerly the kaiser was an inveterate cigar and pipe smoker, but on the advice of his doctors he has almost given up the habit. In spite of his 80 years the Austrian emperor is fond of a pipe and smoking does not affect his health.

King George of Greece smokes quantities of cigarettes, which he usually throws away half consumed. King Victor Emmanuel is a moderate smoker of cigars and cigarettes. King Peter of Serbia prefers a pipe, a habit he contracted when he was at the military school of Saint Cyr. King Alfonso manages to get through a fair quantity of cigars and cigarettes. His neighbor, King Manuel of Portugal, has not yet learned to appreciate a cigar, contenting himself with the cigarette.

"The Eleventh Hour," a spirited novel of the Mexican war, was suggested to the author, Lieut. David Potter, by a sword with a history. This sword hung over a fireplace in Lieut. Potter's boyhood home, where it had been placed by his uncle, an officer in the regiment of New Jersey volunteers.

He had been surrendered to him by a Confederate officer in one of the skirmishes that preceded the battle of Fredericksburg, who stated that it had been captured from a Mexican officer on the field of Rosaca de la Palma during the war with Mexico. Lieutenant Potter is a graduate of Princeton, has been in the navy for the past twelve years, serving in the war with Spain and in the Philippine campaign, and is now a paymaster with the rank of lieutenant commander. Out of the past twelve years five or six have been spent cruising about the world on men-of-war—the Philippines and Sulu, Borneo and elsewhere in the Far East, South America, etc. He has hunted wild buffalo in Borneo, once dined with the real Sultan of Sulu, and is one of the few men of his grade who have seen slaves offered for sale at public auction—in the Moro market in Mindanao in 1899.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of The Lowell Sun: Your editorial of Thursday on The Colburn school has caused me to encroach upon the valuable space in your paper that I might answer a few of your assertions. Now that the Training school has been abolished, it seems fitting and proper for those who have hitherto remained silent (as The Lowell Sun) to come forward and attempt to throw light on the conditions and evils supposed to have existed there. In so doing little regard is paid to inferences people of the city may draw as to the character of the graduates of the Colburn school. It is particularly in defense of those who have passed from her walls, that I send this letter.

My attention was called to your editorial by one who never went to this school, but who was aware that my name was enlisted on the roll of her graduates. This person asked me if conditions as you pictured them happened while I was at the Colburn school. I told him emphatically "No!" In this I was within my rights. I attended this school when the training school system was in full bloom, and never to my recollection, has it happened that it was necessary to draft the janitor to suppress disorder. I am sure that you would not make any such statement unless you had ample proof for it, and I should be much enlightened and surprised to find your information reliable.

The same discipline was maintained while I attended the school when the first principal was present or absent. I do not know what you mean by "delegated authority," but if by the three teachers to be provided for, I can only say that they have their appointments practically as assistant principals as their salaries will show. I believe the assistant master at the high school is just as competent as the real master of the same school to exact discipline and I cannot see why my belief should change in regard to the three assistants of the training school. You speak on hearsay in regard to this as shown by your words "It is alleged." Somehow the results attained in the past have been disappointing. This part of your editorial especially aroused my wrath and justly so, for by it you reflect on every graduate of the Colburn school. On what grounds, pray, do you base this assertion? If you had but considered before placing this in print, it would have been a disgrace to the graduates of the Colburn school, who they look about them and see the results far from disappointing. Among her graduates she numbers men in every walk of life equal, if not superior, to the graduates of any school in the city.

At the graduation exercises held last Wednesday morning at the Colburn school, our esteemed superintendent of schools in speaking to those about to graduate, congratulated them on graduating from a grammar school and especially from the Colburn school. He said that the records show that the graduates from this school enter high school younger than the average age of graduates from the other schools of the city, and that their average after entering college was creditable.

Judging by the above, I should say that the service and discipline at the Colburn school was as good as any in Lowell.

Yours respectfully,
Cornelius J. O'Neill,
Lowell, June 24, 1910.

What The Sun said of past conditions referred to the Training school as a whole and not particularly to the Colburn school as the writer of the above communication seems to assume. Understanding that the grammar and primary departments are to be separated, we advocated the election of an experienced male principal to the Colburn school, and we do not see how past graduates can take offense at that. We did not reflect on the graduates nor upon the faculty of the Training school, three able members of which remain to be appointed to suitable positions in the schools. There is no comparison of the graduates of one school with those of another after entering the High school.—Ed.

COL. ROOSEVELT REPLIES TO LETTERS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

PATERSON, N. J., June 27.—The proudest set of boys and girls in this city today are the members of the "3D" class of school No. 21. A letter from ex-President Roosevelt written to their teacher, is the cause of the class feeling so proud. Several days ago Miss Anna Fitch had each of the boys and girls in the class write an individual letter to the colonel, telling him how glad they were that he was home again. The children did not suppose they would receive an answer, and are naturally very proud of the following: "To the Principal of School No. 21:—Dear Sir: It is physically impossible for me to even read, much less answer, the enormous numbers of letters I am now receiving, but I cannot let the twenty-six very nice letters which I have received from your scholars pass without a word of appreciation and thanks. Of course, it is impossible to thank each individual writer, but I hope you will tell the boys and girls how I appreciate the fine welcome they have given me. I also congratulate you. The letters are so neatly and admirably written that they reflect great credit on the school and its teachers. With very best wishes to you all. I am, faithfully yours, (Signed) Theodore Roosevelt."

HANGED HERSELF

Lancaster School Girl a Suicide

LANCASTER, June 27.—Following her being disciplined yesterday for a slight misconduct, the body of Eva Smith, a 16-year-old girl, was found hanging from a clothes hook in her room at the State Industrial school for girls here today. Medical Examiner George L. Toben, who was called to view the body stated that to all appearances the girl had been dead three or four hours. Ever since she was brought to the institution her conduct had been better than the average girl, according to the school authorities. Yesterday she disobeyed a school rule and according to a statement given out by one of the officials, was sent to her room. It is said that the girl had recently received letters from several girls, dwelling largely upon suicide and persons at the school believe that the reading of the letters caused her to take her own life.

TO RAISE THE MAINE

Army Engineers Planning to Begin the Work

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Of course the army engineers will do their best to carry out the wishes of congress, twice expressed, that an effort shall be made to raise the wreck of the battleship Maine from the bottom of Havana harbor, where it lies embedded in 27 feet of slime. But the engineers are frank to confess that they do not know the extent of the task before them and they believe that the $300,000 appropriation will not be sufficient. So their present idea is to use as much of the money as may be necessary to make a thorough examination of the wreck and the surrounding bottom of the harbor.

The only known method of raising a ship in the condition of the Maine, is to surround her with a coffer dam from which the water can be pumped, allowing the hull to be drained and the holes in the bottom closed. Engineering history fails to disclose a coffer dam of the mammoth proportions that would be required to enclose the Maine, for it must be as long as a city block, and as high as a five or six story building that is, from the bottom of the timbers to the top. Its cost would probably exceed the total appropriation. A thorough preliminary investigation will cost a good deal of money and much time. In fact it is reasonably certain that congress will again be in session before the results are known, and the engineers can tell just how much money it will cost to raise the ship. Then, if congress should decide to supply the deficiency in the appropriation the workers will go ahead with their work. Otherwise it seems probable that the Maine will be up under water and removed piecemeal from the bottom of the harbor.

MAY BE FATAL

WORCESTER GIRL'S CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE FROM RANGE

WORCESTER, June 27.—Annie Sitt, 10 years old, was probably fatally burned yesterday at her home, 26 Waverly street, when her clothing caught fire from the gas range as she was lifting a kettle from it to help her mother. Mrs. Bernard Sitt, the mother, was also severely burned about the hands and arms trying to save the child.

The little girl was burned about the face, neck and chest, and her entire abdomen was one mass of burns. While the hospital physicians see a chance for her recovery it is not expected.

The girl went to remove the kettle from the stove, when the gas flame ignited her sleeve and in a few seconds she was a mass of flames. Her mother tore the clothing from the girl's body, saving her from immediate death, and her own injuries are serious, but not fatal.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Man Killed Two Persons and Then Committed Suicide

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 27.—"We'll settle this thing right now," said David Downes, as he reached for his rifle and jacking in a 30-30 cartridge, fired point blank at his mother-in-law, Mrs. Iva Woodard, who stood so near to him that the muzzle almost touched her.

She fell dead as the slug crashed through her brain. Then as quickly as Downes could throw in another cartridge he fired at his wife, who also fell dead in her tracks.

The crazed man then placed the muzzle in his mouth and sent a shot into his own brain.

The three lives were snuffed out in 15 seconds.

Downes is a farm hand, aged 23, and with his wife and their 5-year-old daughter lived in rather humble circumstances in a small house two miles from this village on the road to Prentiss.

Mrs. Downes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Iva Woodard, live directly across the road. Saturday night Mrs. Downes and her daughter stayed at the Woodard house and yesterday morning they went home, where they found David Downes. With them went Mr. and Mrs. Woodard and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson relatives, and there was a sort of family reunion.

While the circumstances which led up to the shooting vary because of the rapid progress of the triple tragedy, it appears that the wife and mother-in-law of Downes upbraided him because he had been so cross to Mrs. Downes, who declared she was going to leave him and take up her residence with her parents.

Downes said that he would try to do better and pleaded with his wife to remain. She appeared determined to leave, however.

Then suddenly reaching for his rifle, which stood behind him, he fired the three fatal shots.

At the first shot Woodard and the Gibsons fled in terror. Neighbors summoned physicians, but they could do nothing.

C. M. Lombard, first selectman, took charge and the house was placed under guard pending the arrival of the coroner, Charles E. Rackliffe of Oldtown.

Downes has always had a good reputation for honesty and industry. He married his wife, who was 28, about five years ago. Recently rumors that they had quarreled have been known, but were not considered more than family jars.

GREAT WILD WEST

RANCH 101 OF MILLER BROTHERS TO BE HERE JULY 6

The famous 101 ranch, of Bliss, Oklahoma, whose Wild West Show is coming to this city, for two performances on Wednesday, July 6, is essentially a young man's enterprise. None of the trio of brothers who own and operate it has attained the forty-year mark. Joseph C. Miller is president of the family corporation; George L. is secretary and general director, and Zack T. assumes active charge of the tremendous live stock transaction.

The genesis of the largest ranch in the country was in 1871, when George W. Miller, father of the family, then a young Kentuckian, rode through the Indian territory behind a bunch of Texas steers. He had gone west with a few dollars and a lot of Kentucky wisdom about horses and cattle. He saw a chance to make money by buying Texas steers where they were born, driving them on a long feed through the grassy Indian territory, and shipping them by railroad to St. Louis and Kansas, which at that time was one of the snappiest towns on earth.

He trailed down into Texas, bought a bunch of steers for $8 per head and drove them up into Kansas, consuming six months by the way, and sold them for $12 a head.

The next year he started back to Texas with half of the proceeds in a coin belt about his waist and the rest in a cigar box, all in gold. A Mexican herder stole the cigar box, and Mr. Miller had to return with half a dozen. But the year following he loaded a wagon with bacon, canned goods and calico, and started south. The Mexican herders could not steal these, and he laid the foundation for the family fortune.

During his long and lonely expeditions through the Indian territory George Miller picked up his own cattle, and the one he oftenest followed lay along the Arkansas river, where the grass was long and juicy. This afterward became the reservation of the Ponca, Otoe and Missouri Indians. Mr. Miller had determined to own it some day.

MANUFACTURES

EXPORTS THE LARGEST IN OUR HISTORY

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Exports of manufactures in May were larger than in any earlier month in the history of our export trade, and for the full fiscal year 1910 will be larger than in any earlier fiscal year. The total value of the manufactures exported in the month of May was 71 million dollars, including in this term both manufactures ready for consumption and manufactures for further use in manufacturing, and for the 11 months ending with May amounted to 699 million dollars, indicating that June, the 12th month of the year, will certainly bring the record for the fiscal year 1910 above that of any of its predecessors.

The total value of manufactures exceeded the high record of 1908. Should the June exports of manufactures equal those of May, for which the figures are just at hand, the total for the fiscal year 1910 would amount to 770 million dollars. In the 11 months ending with May manufactures form 74 per cent of the exports, a materially higher percentage than in any earlier year.

Not only will the value of manufactures exported in 1910 exceed that of any earlier year but the value of manufacturers' materials imported will also be larger than in any earlier year. The total value of manufacturers' materials imported in the 11 months ending with May was 723 million dollars, and for the month of May 65 million, indicating that the total for the full year will be fully 850 million dollars, against 751 million in 1907, the former high record year.
